GAZETTE NOTICE No. 5336

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within sixty (60) days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on form TM. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of KSh. 1,500 (local application) or US$ 75 (foreign application).

Notice is also given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, Kenya Industrial Property Office, Posta Sacco House, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in part A of the register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 5344

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 39 of 1997

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers

and

Stanbic Bank Kenya Limited

Issue in dispute:

DISMISSAL OF MOSES NGATIA

The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as Claimants and Stanbic Bank Kenya Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

The dispute was heard in Nairobi on 3rd December, 1997, 23rd, 24th and 30th June, 1998, respectively. The parties relied on their verbal and written submissions. In addition the following gave evidence under oath:

Claimants.—Moses Ngatia.

Respondents.—Norman Perry Martin.

AWARD

The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 30th May, 1997 was received by the court on 11th August, 1997 together with statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant was employed by the respondents on 3rd December, 1970 and continued working for them until 17th December, 1996 when he was issued with a suspension/dismissal letter ending after 30 days. He was paid upto and including 17th January, 1997.

The aforesaid letter stated in part:

"You have personally acknowledged in the presence of witnesses that you have failed to observe the strictest secrecy regarding the Bank's business, and that your action in passing confidential Bank information to a third party was a breach of paragraph 4 of your letter of appointment which took effect from 3rd December, 1970.

In terms of paragraph A5 (a) (ii) of the Collective Agreement between the Kenya Bankers (Employers) Association and the Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers you have therefore committed a breach of secrecy relating to matters affecting your employer's business, which act constitutes a gross misconduct and justifies instant dismissal."

The grievant was at the time the chief shopsteward and chairman of the central staff committee of the respondents employees.

The two economic disputes between the claimants and the Kenya Bankers Employers Association cause Nos. 53 of 96 and 50 of 1997 are relevant to this dispute because arising out of claimants efforts to procure information regarding the increases that had been granted to the management staff of the Kenya Bankers Employers Association member banks that a document showing the respondents Mombasa branch management remuneration was exhibited in court in cause No. 50 of 97. This document is alleged to be confidential document which the grievant is alleged to have passed to a third party, the claimants, thus breaching the secrecy clause of his contract of employment.

The grievant's dismissal sparked a strike in all the banks in the country and a "return to work formula" stated hereinbelow was hammered out and signed on 20th December, 1996 at 3.30 a.m. with the help of the Ministry of Labour and the strike was called off.

"1. The Minister appoint an investigator to look into the dismissal of Moses Ngatia and the warning letter to Charles O. Okwayo, today, Friday, the 20th December, 1996.

2. No further disciplinary action against the other shopstewards regarding the alleged unauthorized acquisation of documents produced in the Industrial Court until the outcome of the investigation above are known.

3. The striking employees to resume work with immediate effect and there will be no any victimization of either party consequent to the strike."

It is obvious from the above clause 2 that this is a test case and depending on its outcome further disciplinary action against other shopstewards is possible.

This dispute is of great importance as it touches on the principle of the fiduciary relationship between an employee and his employer.

The court must reiterate that an employee should under no circumstances behave in a manner by deed or words that would harm or jeopardize his employer's business. In the banking industry all employees are required to observe the strictest secrecy regarding the bank's business and no information whatsoever disclosed relating to business transacted by the bank or any of its constituents to a third party.

The court upholds its previous rulings on this point but in the dispute before it, the court has to determine if a schedule of the management staff salaries is "bank business" or "business transacted by the bank" and also to generally determine if the management salaries in an organization are to be deemed to be confidential.

In economic disputes before the Industrial Court the trade unions usually submit that the management staff are getting hefty increases and the unionisable employees are denied such increases and were offered low increases.

The trade unions go to great lengths to obtain documents which would prove their such allegations to be true. When asked how they have procured these documents their answer is they have their "spies" all over in the organization.

In economic disputes the trade unions want to know how much profit has been made by the organization, how it is being spent and where the balance is being stashed. They want to know how much of it has gone towards increasing the remuneration package of the management staff.

It is towards this end and other related matters in economic disputes which are also subject to the Wages Guidelines issued by the Minister for Finance that the Industrial Court causes in depth investigation to be made by economists attached to the Central Planning Unit of the Ministry of Labour.

In these investigations the level of improvement of management remuneration figures prominently along with other important financial matters like total labour costs and labour trends including creation of new jobs or contraction of jobs. The individual salaries of management staff are however not disclosed.

The court while accepting the trade unions quest to know the increase granted to management staff would like to point out that the court is really not anxious to know the individual management salaries. The court is concerned to ensure an equitable distribution of money available for salaries between the unionisable and the management staff. This information the court gets from the C.P.U. report.

In the Industrial Relations Charter the level of trade union representation is clearly spelt out. This charter is an agreement between the three social partners in the country, the trade unions, the employers and the Government.

In the Industrial Relations Charter the following jobs are excluded from trade union representation:

(a) Persons who are formulating, administering, coordinating and/or controlling any aspects of the organization policy.

(b) Staff who perform work of a confidential nature as shall be defined by a Tripartite Committee.

(c) Any other category of staff who may in the case of any particular undertaking be excluded from trade union representation.

The Industrial Relations Charter was further revised in April, 1984.

The personnel managers and their deputies in any organization are non-unionisable but the staff in the personnel department are not. All the salary schedules are prepared in the personnel manager's department and all the staff there help in preparation of all these documents and are fully aware of how much each member of the staff is earning. They are, however, under a duty not to disclose this information to unauthorized persons.

Individual management staff salaries are sensitive indeed and can cause considerable embarrassment to an individual if made public.

In any case the Industrial Court has powers under the Trade Disputes Act, section (1) and (2) to require any person—

(a) to furnish in writing or otherwise, such particulars in relation to such matter as it may require;

(b) to attend before it;

(c) to give evidence on oath or otherwise; and

(d) to produce any relevant documents.

It is a fact that the respondents' Mombasa management staff salary schedule was prominently displayed in the two economic disputes between the claimants and the Kenya Bankers Employer's Association. These disputes have already been referred to hereinabove in the award. The management salary schedules from a couple of other banks also featured prominently.

The court is also aware that the shopstewards in the banks have developed this tendency of obtaining management staff salary schedules over the past many years without the Kenya Bankers Employers' Association raising any objection to the production of such documents. It is only recently that they raised an objection to the role played by the C.P.U. in economic disputes but their objection was overruled by the court.

This time around, however, the respondents who are members of the Kenya Bankers Employer's Association have dismissed the grievant, their chief shopsteward, for obtaining their Mombasa branch management salary schedule and passing it on to the claimants whom the respondents regard as third party.

There were, however, two other persons involved in this exercise, the custodian of the document in question and the Mombasa shopsteward who obtained it and sent it to the grievant in Nairobi. No disciplinary action was taken against the two.

The court has always protected the trade union officials against victimization by their employers for indulging in trade union activities provided they are legitimate and acceptable under the industrial relations system.

On balance the court finds that the management staff salaries are not strictly the "banks business" as such but nevertheless they are confidential and should not be disclosed to any unauthorized person.

However, in view of the historical background of the evidence produced by the shopstewards in previous economic disputes without any objection by the banks the court feels that a caution would have been more appropriate in this dispute rather than dismissal.

The punishment meted out to the grievant would appear to be selective as he was the chief shopsteward because the other two employees who were equally guilty were spared.

One other bank in similar circumstances issued a warning letter to the shopsteward concerned while other banks took no action perhaps waiting for the outcome of this dispute.

The court would like to emphasize to all the parties concerned in economic disputes before the court that the court has the appropriate mechanism in place through the Central Planning Unit of the Ministry of Labour to obtain all the relevant information for the court and the parties concerned. The court has also powers to obtain any information it may desire and the parties are free to make applications to the court to obtain such evidence.

The court would like to caution the shopstewards that in view of what is stated hereinabove there is no need for them to indulge in activities which may jeopardize their jobs. The shopstewards are the first ones on the firing line, the rank and file trade union members are hardly ever touched.

The court is using this case to wean away shopstewards from such practices like obtaining confidential documents without authority and in future the court may not be able to help them in such cases.

Just now, however, the court would not like to start an avalanche of dismissals of shopstewards in the banking industry arising out of the return-to-work formula.

In the present case the court finds in view of all the facts and cirmcumstances that the respondents should have given a warning letter to the grievant and he has therefore sufferred a wrongful dismissal.

The grievant worked for the respondents for 26 years and is now 50 years old. The court finds that reinstatement is not warranted and that compensation would be an appropriate remedy in this case.

The court awards that the respondents should pay the grievant five months' salary and house allowance by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal he has suffered in addition to what he has already been paid.

Given in Nairobi on 31st August, 1998.
