GAZETTE NOTICE No. 2673

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 33 OF 1976

Parties:—

Kenya Union of Commercial Food & Allied Workers and
Old Mutual

Issue in dispute:—

Dismissal of Wanganga.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Old Mutual shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 20th and 21st July, 1976, and in addition to relying on their written and verbal submissions called the following witnesses to give evidence on oath:—

Claimants: A. Wanganga.

Respondents: M. A. Gruneberg and S. Y. Sangoro.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 18th December, 1975, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 31st May, 1976, along with the statutory certificates signed by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour.

Wanganga started working for the Respondents on 4th February, 1970, as a member of the subordinate staff. His services were terminated summarily on 11th February, 1975. This was in accordance with Part II paragraph 2 (b) of the collective agreement between the parties. The Respondents' Manager for East Africa stated in the letter of dismissal that he had been previously warned twice on 23rd May and 3rd December, 1974, for absenting himself from work without permission.

The Claimants took up the matter on his behalf and approached the Respondents to discuss the matter but their request was turned down. The matter was subsequently discussed at the Joint Industrial Council where a deadlock was recorded and the matter was reported to the Minister for Labour as a trade dispute.

The dispute was the subject matter of an investigation and the Chief Industrial Relations Officer forwarded the following findings and recommendations to the parties on 30th October, 1975, with a view to promoting a settlement of the dispute:—

"Findings.—From all the available evidence it is quite evident that Wanganga was absent from duty without permission on numerous occasions. He was warned twice in writing and several times verbally for those misdemeanours but did not take heed of them. The last absence on 7th February, 1975, caused his dismissal despite his apology and request for forgiveness.

The collective agreement certainly supports the action taken by the Manager on this occasion. However, it would appear that Wanganga was sickly during this period and in the circumstances on humanitarian grounds he should have been treated more leniently.

Recommendations.—In view of the above remarks I strongly recommend that the dismissal of Wanganga be reduced to termination and be paid one month's wage in lieu of notice in addition to the other terminal benefits."

The Claimants were only too happy to accept the recommendation as aforesaid but the Respondents maintained that since they had acted within the terms of the collective agreement they were not prepared to reconsider the matter on humanitarian grounds as there seemed to be no valid reason for them to do so.

In Court during the hearing the Claimants stated that the Respondents had decided to reduce their staff and had therefore picked on Wanganga in order to get rid of him on flimsy grounds. They felt that this was in order to save having to pay any redundancy benefits.

The Claimants further submitted that their member had been sick on 4th February, 1975, and had twice reported at a clinic for treatment on 4th and 7th February, 1975. In these circumstances and in view of the fact that under the collective agreement he was entitled to 45 days sick leave on full pay followed by another 45 days sick leave on half pay they could not see the reason why he had been dismissed at all. They denied that he had received any previous warnings which in any case they maintained should have been handed to him in the presence of the shopsteward. They asked for his reinstatement without loss of any benefits.

The Respondents submitted that they had scrupulously carried out the provisions of the collective agreement in terminating the services of an employee who had developed a habit of disappearing from work without notifying anyone and without obtaining permission to do so. They stressed that he had been twice previously warned and since he did not improve on his performance and persisted in disappearing on 7th February, 1975, from 4 p.m. onwards they were fully entitled to summarily terminate his services.

The Respondents pointed out that they had paid him a sum of Sh. 765/80 which included the sum of Sh. 200 by way of leave allowance which strictly speaking in the terms of the collective agreement he was not entitled to receive.

The Respondents made it clear that they had not accepted the Chief Industrial Relations Officer's recommendation to reduce his dismissal to a normal termination because the employee had not behaved nicely during his service and was an aggressive and quarrelsome person.

The Court had the benefit of the evidence on oath of Wanganga, the Respondents' Manager for East Africa, Gruneberg, and the Respondents' Building Supervisor, Sangoro.

The Court is satisfied that Wanganga had been issued with two warnings on 23rd May and 3rd December, 1974, as alleged by the Respondents and that these warning letters were not fabricated. The Court further finds that Wanganga did receive them.

The collective agreement between the parties on the subject matter of warnings reads as follows:—

"An employee who has successfully completed his probation and who is guilty of an offence other than that of gross misconduct or other lawful cause for dismissal may be given a warning in writing. The employee shall be free to make an appeal against such warning in accordance with the procedure laid down by the Recognition Agreement between the Group and the Union. An employee who receives two such warnings may on the 3rd occasion be liable to summary dismissal. Provided that all such warnings shall be erased from the record of an employee after a period of 12 months from the date of the last such warning."

It is stated in the aforesaid clause that the employee is free to make an appeal against a warning in accordance with the procedure laid in the recognition agreement and there is no evidence before the Court to show that Wanganga took advantage of this provision to make an appeal against these warnings if they were not valid or justified. Further a Claimants' representative when informed on 11th February, 1975, that Wanganga had been warned twice previously and on the commission of the third offence had been summarily dismissed did not repudiate the fact that Wanganga had received the two warning letters.

From the documentary evidence produced by Wanganga the Court believes that from 4th February onwards he was sick. But the fact remains, according to the evidence of Sangoro, that he had not reported for duty at all on 4th February, 1975. The next day he reported for duty and mentioned about his visit to the clinic and that he was required to go there again on 6th February for which permission was granted to him. He visited the clinic on 6th and reported back on duty before lunch. The next day on 7th he reported for duty as usual but was missing from approximately 4 p.m. and the next when he was seen was on Monday, 10th February.

On 7th February he was found sleeping on 5th floor from 11 a.m. until just before lunch time which fact he admitted to the Manager and Sangoro.

Then there is a letter of apology sent by Wanganga dated 10th February, 1975, where he begged for forgiveness as he went out of the office without permission.

The Court finds that the Respondents have scrupulously followed the provisions of the collective agreement and that his summary dismissal was fully justified because even though Wanganga was not feeling well from 4th February onwards he failed to take advantage of the sick leave clause in the collective agreement and kept on reporting for duty and then disappearing from 4th to 7th February. It was quite easy for Wanganga on 7th February to tell someone that he was going to the clinic as the Building Supervisor was not there but he just disappeared.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court rejects the Claimants' demand.

Given in Nairobi this 30th day of August, 1976.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 35 OF 1976

Parties:—

Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers
and
Garage Simlac

Issues in dispute:—

1. Wages and job description.
2. Effective date and duration.

1. The Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Garage Simlac shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 27th day of July, 1976, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 22nd January, 1976, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 3rd June, 1976, along with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The parties have entered into a recognition and terms and conditions of employment agreement which was signed in Kisumu on 25th March, 1976. The issues in dispute before the Court are the outstanding items in the said collective agreement.

The Claimants informed the Court that although the issue of job description was stated in the Notification of Dispute Form "A" they did not wish to make any submission thereon as that particular matter could be dealt with outside the Court.

The Claimants first approached the Respondents on 29th August, 1974, when they forwarded them a draft of their proposals for a collective agreement and despite repeated reminders and approaches by the Claimants no progress was made mainly due to the Respondents' stand that since they were complying with the relevant statutory orders there was no need for them to recognize the Claimants and to enter into a collective agreement with them.

An interesting point cropped up during the hearing when the Respondents alleged that out of their ten employees currently in employment only one was a union member and two others had resigned from union membership on 13th October, 1975—the others did not join the union at any time. The Claimants criticized the Respondents for having pressurized their members to resign and asked the Court to completely ignore the Respondents' submission on this point.

The Court has studied the Respondents' submission that in this dispute the membership of one employee of the Claimants' union would result in an award being imposed on all the employees and this would be most undemocratic. That may very well be so but the things as they are leave no other alternative especially since the Respondents have recognized the Claimants and an award of the Court even if it is made for one member of a trade union would apply to all the unionizable employees. In this regard the trade unions in the country are at a disadvantage in that many workers get full benefits of the efforts and representations made by the trade unions in the country without being their members and subscribing to their funds. The Court has no alternative but to make an award in this dispute.

The Claimants' demand is for a monthly minimum wage of Sh. 450 and an additional 20 per cent overall increase due to the fast rising cost of living in the country. They want the effective date to be 1st January, 1976, for a duration of one year only.

The Claimants pointed out to the Court that they have had no access to the audited accounts of the Respondents' firm and were therefore not in a position to accept their plea that they were a small family business and could not afford to meet the Claimants' demand.

The Respondents vigorously pleaded that in view of the nature of their business which was an undertaking engaged in straightforward motor repair business if the Claimants' demands were to be awarded they would be driven out of business. In fact they had seriously thought of winding up the business in December 1976 largely as a result of constantly poor returns and the strain it is imposing on their sole proprietor.

They submitted that all the ten employees were ungraded mechanics and prior to January 1976 they were earning Sh. 358 p.m. and in January 1976 they gave a unilateral wage increase of Sh. 17 to each employee bringing their salaries to Sh. 375 p.m. The Respondents offered a monthly wage of Sh. 400 to each employee with effect from 1st July, 1976, and a further offer of Sh. 50 w.e.f. 1st July, 1977.

The parties' submission were referred to the Employment Promotion Division for an analysis vis-a-vis the Guidelines which have been issued to the Court by the Minister for Finance.

After careful consideration of all the submissions and keeping in view the Guidelines, the Court awards that the workers should be awarded a wage increase of 10 per cent on their wages as at the end of February 1976. The two workers Messrs. D. H. Aziz and H. Ebrahim shall get a 5 per cent wage increase only as they are earning Sh. 1,600 and Sh. 1,000 per month respectively.

The Court further awards that the effective date shall be 1st March, 1976, with a duration period of two years provided that after the end of the first twelve months the workers shall get a further wage increase of 15 per cent with the exception of Messrs. Aziz and Ebrahim who will get an increase of 7½ per cent only.

This edition illustrates the pace of progress and industrial advancement which Kenya has made since independence in 1963.

Besides underlining the record of industrial progress in recent years, the Index aims at bringing to the notice of buyers within Africa and overseas the diversity of products available in Kenya and the scope for mutually profitable business opportunities that exist. The Index, therefore, is a standard book of reference on what Kenya can produce and make and should, therefore, be useful to businessmen and students for the valuable information that it contains.
