GAZETTE NOTICE No. 887

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
(Second Division)

CAUSE No. 11 of 1964

Parties:—

Kenya Planters Co-operative Union Ltd.
and

Kenya Distributive and Commercial Workers' Union

Issues in dispute:—

Termination of service of an employee on 16th April 1964, namely Mr. Wanjara Karuga.

1. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 2nd October 1964, and the testimony of four witnesses was taken.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

2. On Sunday, 12th April 1964, Kenya Planters Co-operative Union Ltd., hereinafter called the Respondent, ordered a gang of employees to work and Mr. Karuga who is represented by the Kenya Distributive and Commercial Workers' Union, hereinafter referred to as the Union, was amongst those who made up a gang of about 50 workmen.

Mr. Karuga arrived at the place of work at a quarter to seven and in accordance with the practice punched his attendance card at 6.46 a.m. He was seen to arrive and witnesses state that they saw him at work during the day and in fact this point is not in dispute.

At 4 p.m. work ended and the gang went to clock-out. Mr. Karuga states that he could not find his card and so failed to punch it along with the others. A clerk, Erastus Muchege states that he saw Mr. Karuga leave with the other workmen and noticed that he did not punch his card. On the following morning Mr. Karuga states that he asked the time clerk for his card and was told that it had been taken to the Administrative Officer. Mr. Karuga was later seen by the Administrative Officer and charged with falsely punching his card, this offence he denied at first but according to the testimony of the Administrative Officer later admitted stating that he had domestic problems and was financially embarrassed. On 16th April 1964, Mr. Karuga was summarily dismissed by the Respondent. He was paid up to 15th April in respect of wages, overtime and housing allowance, he was further paid acting allowance, leave pay for one year and single travelling allowance.

The Union took up the case of Mr. Karuga's dismissal and a meeting took place on 25th April 1964, a record of this meeting is given as Appendix "B" to the Union's memorandum, at this meeting Mr. Karuga stated that he suspected someone else had clocked his card. This was not the same explanation he had given during his interview with the Administrative Officer. The Union asked for a further meeting so that they could have time to consider the case. A further meeting took place on 21st April but no settlement was reached. However on 22nd April the Union wrote a letter to the Respondent in which in the fourth paragraph it is suggested that Mr. Karuga be:—

- (a) reinstated with loss of two weeks' pay, or
- (b) given a gratuity payment as an alternative.

On 24th April the Respondent answered this letter rejecting the Union's proposal as Mr. Karuga had committed the offence of wilful abuse of the time clock and had not qualified for a gratuity as he had not reached the age of 55 years at the time of his dismissal. Subsequently another meeting took place on 6th May but this also failed to produce a settlement of the dispute, so, on 15th May the Union asked the Joint Disputes Commission of the National Joint Consultative Council to be convened to settle this case, subsequently, however, the case came to the Industrial Court.

AWARD

3. The time card of Mr. Karuga has been examined and it clearly shows that he punched the card on entering work at 6.46 a.m., the next time the card was punched by the clock was at 7.15. The question arises, was the card punched at 7.15 a.m. or p.m., if Mr. Karuga's allegation that someone else punched the card is to be believed then it might be at either time, but there is no evidence to show that any one other than Mr. Karuga could benefit from this act, so the allegation must be discarded. The evidence of the Administrative Officer shows that Mr. Karuga admitted the offence before him, although he subsequently retracted his admission. Evidence was given that Mr. Karuga had committed a similar offence on previous occasions so the evidence given that he had admitted the offence and pleaded domestic worry and financial embarrassment in this instance must be accepted.

There is no doubt whatsoever that the offence was committed with intent to obtain money by overtime work and to defraud the employer. The Court rules, therefore, that the action of the Respondent in dismissing Mr. Karuga is upheld. The Court rules further that the Respondent has discharged full liability for wages and other earnings by paying to Mr. Karuga the amount detailed in the Respondent's letter of 16th April 1964.

Given in Nairobi this 3rd day of March 1965.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 888

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 4 OF 1965

*Parties:—*Kenya Shoe and Leather Workers' Union
and

Messrs. Zimmermann Limited Taxidermists

Issues in dispute:—

Interpretation of service gratuity.

Interpretation of severance allowance for redundancy.

1. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 10th February 1965, and the testimony of one witness was taken for the Kenya Shoe and Leather Workers' Union, hereinafter called the Union, and Zimmermann Limited, hereinafter called the Respondent, relied on verbal submission.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

2. In November 1961, Paul Zimmermann having closed his business, the Respondent came into existence and from 16th November 1961, engaged all the staff of Paul Zimmermann who had discharged them on 15th November 1961. Thereafter terms and conditions were negotiated by the parties and the assistance of the Ministry of Labour was sought to settle the questions of annual leave, severance allowance in cases of redundancy and service gratuity. At a meeting held in the Ministry of Labour on 29th May 1964, between the representatives of the Union and the Respondent the following settlement was recorded on the three issues:—

(a) Annual leave.—All employees as represented by the Union shall be given 18 working days' leave of absence with full basic pay in every period of 12 months' unbroken service. In this respect unbroken service shall include periods of absence with the written authority of the employer.

(b) Severance allowance in cases of redundancy.—Any employee declared redundant by the employer shall be entitled to 15 days' pay in respect of each year of unbroken service, in this respect unbroken service shall have the same meaning as in (a) above, except that an employee's service shall commence for the purposes of this section from the first day after the completion of a year's service.

(c) Service gratuity.—For the purposes of this section an employee's service shall be considered to commence on 16th November 1961, except that any employee engaged after that date shall be considered to have begun his employment on the day of his engagement and all employees who have unbroken service as defined in (a) and (b) above, shall be entitled to a gratuity on the following basis:—

From completion of three years to completion of five years' service, for each year of service, 12 days' pay.

From completion of five years to completion of ten years, for each year of service, 18 days' pay.

After completion of ten years' service and provided that thereafter service shall be unbroken, for each year of service, 30 days' pay.

The Respondent due to lack of finance decided to declare 50 employees redundant and paid severance allowance as laid down above but refused to pay service gratuity. The Union demanded service gratuity as well and deadlock having been reached the matter is before the Industrial Court.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE UNION

3. The Union maintains that the two items of severance pay and service gratuity are distinct and should be paid separately as the employees who have been declared redundant are faced with financial hardship for an unknown period. Further, as it was not certain when an employee would get another job, his family would also suffer in that the children's education would have to be discontinued. It was for these eventualities that severance pay should be paid so that an employee continues to have finance for a reasonable period during which he could look for another job. Service gratuity on the other hand was a gift to an employee for serving an employer faithfully.

The Union further urges that payment of severance allowance is in accordance with the Industrial Relations Charter.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

4. The Respondent states that a gratuity is paid when an employee leaves of his own accord and severance allowance is paid when an employer terminates the employee's service for some reason other than on disciplinary grounds such as when he is declared redundant. The Respondent points out that severance pay is for 15 days for every completed year of service, whereas gratuity is based on 12 days' pay for each completed year of service. The three days more granted under severance pay were the additional benefit to an employee when he was declared redundant. The Respondent further states that it was never the intention to pay an employee both gratuity and severance pay when he was declared redundant and it would be contrary to prevailing practice in this country.

The Union's interpretation, if accepted, would involve the Respondent in an additional expenditure of approximately £1,500.

AWARD

5. It is quite clear that the employees are not entitled to both severance allowance and service gratuity as both these items are meant to cater for the same contingencies as have been put forward by the Union in their submissions. The employee is entitled to only one of these benefits and he should get the one which is more advantageous to him.

The Tanzania Legislation on this point reinforces the above interpretation:—

Section 6 (2) of the Severance Allowance Act reads as follows:—

(2) Where an employer has established an approved provident fund or scheme for the benefit of his employees and an employee or any dependant of an employee dying in the service of the employer is granted any benefit from such fund or scheme on the cessation of his employment—

(a) if the benefit granted out of the fund or scheme, after deducting any contributions made thereto by the employee, equals or exceeds the amount of the severance allowance calculated in accordance with section 5, the employer shall be exempt from liability to pay any severance allowance to or in respect of such employee; or

(b) if the benefit granted out of the fund or scheme, after deducting any contributions made thereto by the employee, is less than the amount of the severance allowance calculated in accordance with section 5, the amount of the severance allowance so calculated shall be reduced by the amount of the residue of the benefit after making such deductions as aforesaid.

Section 7 reads as follows:—

7. Where an employer is liable to pay a severance allowance to or in respect of an employee on the cessation of any employment which commenced before the date on which this Act is enacted, and—

(a) a gratuity, bonus or terminal allowance is paid to the employee on the cessation of his employment in accordance with the terms of the employment agreed between the parties before the date of such enactment; or

(b) the employer has, during the course of, or at the cessation of, the employment and prior to the date on which this Act is enacted, made any payment or given any valuable consideration to or on account of his employee, being a payment or consideration for or on account of a benefit for the use of the employee after the cessation of his employment, and being a payment or gift which was either gratuitous or was made in accordance with the terms of the employment, then, if such gratuity, bonus, allowance, payment or the value of such consideration, as the case may be, after deducting any contribution made by the employee, equals or exceeds the amount of the severance allowance calculated in accordance with section 5, the employer shall be exempt from liability to pay any severance allowance to or in respect of such employee, or if it is less, the amount of the severance allowance shall be reduced by the amount of the residue of such gratuity, bonus, allowance, payment or value of such consideration, after making such deductions aforesaid.

The above sections leave no doubt that the employee should get the higher of the two benefits but not both.

The Industrial Relations Charter provides that the redundant employee will be entitled to the appropriate period of notice or pay in lieu. The principle of severance pay is agreed but the form and amount of such pay shall be the subject of joint negotiation.

The Court would like to advise the parties that it should be established in unequivocal terms that the employee shall be entitled to only one benefit whichever is the more favourable to him. In the present case this point was not covered and has led to this dispute.

The Court notes that the severance allowance has already been paid and as the employees benefit more under this head the Court rules that the employees are not entitled to service gratuity.

Given in Nairobi this 26th day of February 1965.

SAEED R. COCKAR,
President.
