THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO 17 OF 1968

Parties —

Kenya Motor Engineering and Allied Workers' Union (Claimants)
and

Motor Trade and Allied Industries Employers' Association
(Respondents)

RULING ON AN APPLICATION BY THE RESPONDENTS UNDER SECTION 10 (5) OF THE TRADE DISPUTES ACT 1965

Retirement benefits

This is an application which has been made by the Respondents in the above cause in accordance with section 10 (5) of the Trade Disputes Act 1965 for a further determination of the ruling of the Court made on the 17th day of March 1969, in an interpretation application made by the Claimants in respect of clause 10 of the award in the said cause dated 16th July 1968

The Respondents stated that they had applied for a further determination of the Court's ruling as in their view the award was contrary to the written law of Kenya. In the written memorandum in support of their appeal for further determination, they submitted that—

1 by virtue of the Immigration Act 1967 (No 25 of 1967) the contracts of employment between the members of the Applicant and the members of the Union who fail to obtain work permits when required are frustrated,

2 that the interpretation of the award is therefore inconsistent with the provisions of the written law of Kenya regarding frustrated contracts as laid down in the Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act 1943 (6 and 7 Geo 6, c 40) of the United Kingdom as applied in Kenya by the Law of Contract Act (Laws of Kenya Revised, Cap 23)

Mr Zool Njiru, the advocate for the Claimants, took a preliminary objection to this application on the grounds that the matter was res judicata and as such the Court had no jurisdiction to hear the matter further. He contended that as the arguments which the Respondents wished to put forward related to the same issue which was disputed between the same parties and in respect of which the Industrial Court had given a final decision, this application was misconceived and bad in law

He submitted that the Court in its ruling on 17th March 1969, on an interpretation application by the Claimants had made it clear that although the parties were aware when they had argued this issue before the Court during proceedings in Cause No 17 of 1968 that non citizens were likely to lose their jobs in the near future, no submissions on this point had been made. In fact the point which the applicants were now trying to raise on the frustration of contract had already been taken into consideration by the Court

Finally he submitted that the Respondents were trying to argue this matter once again on different grounds and were asking the Court to overrule its own decision and to give a different ruling from the previous one. If this were allowed there would be no end to litigation as the parties would keep on applying to Court for further determination whenever they thought of a new point. If the present application were allowed to be heard then it would amount to an appeal to the Court against its own decision

Sir William Lindsay on behalf of the Respondents submitted that there was nothing in section 10 of the Trade Disputes Act 1965 or in any other section of the same Act which restricted either party's right to come to Court as many times as it liked. He made it clear that they were not seeking an interpretation but were applying to the Court to decide whether the award was inconsistent with any written law of the country or not

Sir William maintained that the Court had had no opportunity to examine the legal point which they wished to raise now and as the parties had no express right of appeal under the Trade Disputes Act, their remedy lay with the Industrial Court. The Respondents were under a duty to exhaust all their remedies with the Industrial Court. If the Respondents took the matter to the High Court, they would immediately be told to go to the Industrial Court. For these reasons the Court should hear this application

In Cause No 17 of 1968 the parties had referred 16 issues to the Industrial Court for adjudication which included the issue of retirement benefits. During the hearing of the dispute, the Claimants and the Respondents had made their respective submissions on this issue

The Claimants had argued that when the Court had made an award granting gratuity on retirement the National Social Security Fund was not in operation, therefore, the Court should not have taken into consideration this Act when it made the award. The Claimants demanded that since the Court award was not in operation as since the commencement of the NSSF Act a gratuity earned by a worker had been frozen, the amount standing to the credit of a worker should be paid out to him. They suggested that either the gratuity should be wound up or the money lying to their credit should be transferred to the NSSF, but in no case should a worker lose his gratuity which he had earned. The Claimants stated that unfortunately many employees with three to four years' service had lost their gratuities when their services had been terminated and gave details of these employees who had suffered

The Claimants argued that this benefit was not a private provident fund and that the award made by the Court had ceased to exist. Finally the Claimants submitted that the Court should award that a gratuity earned by a worker should not be forfeited by him under any circumstances

The Respondents drew the attention of the Court to the Press statement issued by the Minister for Labour and published on 23rd March 1968, which read "the Government has decided that the private provident funds should be paid out in accordance with the existing regulations governing these funds". The Respondents stated that they fully realized that in the present instance they were dealing with a retirement benefit scheme initiated by the Industrial Court and not with the private provident fund but the principle was exactly the same and the Respondents submitted that the wishes of the Minister should be implemented by the rejection of the Claimants' demand

The Respondents stated that when the Court had made its award arrangements for the National Social Security Fund were well advanced and they further pointed out that the Court had clearly stated that they would be entitled to this benefit on retirement. Consequently the Respondents submitted that since the employees had not reached the retirement age, the benefit had not yet been earned, therefore, the question of the gratuity having been frozen and the amounts should be paid out did not arise. They further stated that there was no legislation which would enable this benefit to be transferred to NSSF. The Respondents stated that the employees who had been dismissed from their service had been dismissed for good reasons

After hearing the aforesaid submissions, the Court made the following award —

The Court awards that the present clause should be amended so that those employees who lose their job other than for disciplinary reasons or who die (their estates) should not forfeit this benefit”

Subsequently the Claimants applied for the interpretation of the Court's award on three issues which included retirement benefits. During the interpretation application, the following arguments were advanced by the parties —

The Claimants maintained that all employees who became unemployable after failing to obtain work permits were eligible to earn retirement benefits awarded by the Court. The Court had made it clear in its award that only those workers who would lose their jobs for disciplinary reasons would forfeit retirement benefits and that the words “disciplinary reasons” were exhaustive.

The Respondents drew the Court's attention to its award in Cause No. 17 of 1964 where it had been clearly stated that this benefit would not be payable to a worker who resigned. They maintained that an individual who resigns cannot be said to have lost his job. They feared that if the Court interpreted its award in a manner which would enable a worker to benefit on resignation then there was a real danger that most of the 4,000 unionisable employees would resign in order to collect their dues as the Claimants had been after this money for quite some time now. As far as non-citizens were concerned, the Respondents maintained that such employees were themselves responsible for their present predicament as they had ample time in which to apply for Kenya citizenship. As the word “lose” entailed an element of misfortune the workers who resigned and who became unemployable could not benefit under this item. Finally they pointed out that the Ministry of Labour had rejected to accept a dispute on the issue of “severance pay for employees who have become unemployed as a result of the introduction of the work permit” in March 1968.

The Court in its ruling stated as follows —

“It is quite obvious that the Court never intended that those workers who resigned should benefit under this item. Accordingly the Court rules that the workers who resign will not get this benefit.

“The position of those non-citizens who would be losing or who have lost their jobs as a result of Government policy of Kenyanization is different. These people would be losing their jobs for reasons other than disciplinary and as the Court's award stands at present they are clearly eligible to their retirement benefits. The Court would like to point out that although the parties were aware, when they argued this issue before the Court during proceedings in Cause No. 17 of 1968, that such a contingency was likely to arise in the near future, they made no submissions on this point. Finally the letter which was referred to by the Respondents stating that Ministry of Labour had rejected to accept a dispute on the issue of ‘severance pay for employees who have become unemployed as a result of the introduction of the work permit’ in March 1968 is hardly relevant to this matter.”

It is obvious from the aforesaid arguments which were put forward by the parties and the Court's award and its subsequent ruling that the question of the entitlement of retirement benefits of non-citizens was very much in the minds of the parties and of the Court. The Respondents are now seeking a rehearing on the same matter and wish to put forward certain legal points. In fact they are asking the Court to sit on appeal on its own judgment. This is untenable and it would be quite improper for the Court to allow this application to be argued before it. The Court had an issue before it for adjudication and after listening to the parties' arguments it made its award which was subsequently subject of an interpretation application. A ruling on that application was made on 17th March 1969, and as far as the Court is concerned, the matter has been finally decided. Further the question of frustration of contract although not specifically mentioned was indirectly raised during the arguments. If the parties were to be allowed to move the Court for further determination on fresh points in relation to an issue which has been argued before the Court and a ruling in respect of which has been made, it would lead to an impossible situation.

One other point which may be of significance is that both the members representing the employers and the workers who assisted the President during the hearing of the dispute and in subsequent interpretation are no longer members of the Court, one having left the country and the membership of the other not having been renewed by the Minister for Labour.

After a careful consideration of all the submissions of the parties and in the aforesaid circumstances the Court must reject the Respondents' application.

Dated this 2nd day of September 1969

SAEED R. COCKAR
President

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 2859

THE TRADE MARKS ACT (Cap. 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form TM No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) of all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Offices, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in Part A of the Register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for Part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.
