In May 1978 the Respondents gave their employees wage increases based on the previous collective agreement—1974 to 1978. They maintained that the previous collective agreement had continued in force because part 3 of that agreement under the heading of effective date and duration stated as follows:

"This agreement shall come in force on 1st April, 1974 and shall expire on 31st March, 1978. After the expiry date the agreement shall remain in force until it is amended by mutual consent between the League and the union."

The Respondents submitted that they were reluctant to give these interim increases but the workers led by their shopsteward during the early part of May 1978 had demanded that they be paid their annual increases in accordance with the terms of the agreement which was still in force pointing out that the said agreement had afforded them increases on every 1st April of each year until the agreement was reached. They maintained that they were forced to pay the wage increase to avoid unnecessary industrial strife. They denied that they had given these increments as token increments because the workers had given satisfactory services during the previous year.

The Court notes that the Claimants have pleaded that they were at no time informed by the Respondents while the negotiations for the new collective agreement which was to be effective from 1st April, 1978 were in progress that they had intended or had given any interim increases to the workers. They insisted that the respondents had violated their collective agreement which had been registered by the Industrial Court as RCA. 86/79.

The Court is aware of the registration of this collective agreement which the Court registered after the Minister for Labour had forwarded it to the Court for registration stating that he had no objection to its registration. At that time the Court was told that the workers were getting their wage increases in accordance with the relevant Guidelines in force at the time and that these increases ranged between 8.0 per cent to 14.2 per cent per year.

Were the Court to accept the Claimants' demand that wage increases granted by the Respondents to their employees on 1st April, 1978 before the revised collective agreement was signed were only a sort of merit increases then the workers would be getting almost double increases for the first year effective from 1st April, 1978. At the most what the Respondents can be accused of is of having committed a technical breach in giving interim increases to the workers while negotiations were actually in progress but this they did under pressure from the workers and also because it was provided in the previous collective agreement that that agreement continued in force until it was amended. This would justify the Respondents' action in giving the workers increases in accordance with that agreement and then setting them off against the actual new wage increases negotiated by the Claimants. The fact that the Respondents did not inform the Claimants of their intention of doing so would not entitle the Claimants or the workers to claim that these increases were mere extra increases and were in addition to the increases actually negotiated. The Claimants are taking advantage of their not being aware of these increases in order to push forward this claim. The Court notes that this agreement has also expired with effect from 1st April, 1981.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court finds that the Respondents' interpretation was correct and the Claimants' demand is accordingly rejected. The Respondents will be well advised in future to keep the Claimants fully in the picture and if they want to embark on any such interim increases then they should do so in full consultation and agreement of the Claimants.

Given in Nairobi the 23rd March, 1982.

12. The applicant however, should sign a certificate of work done for any services rendered to him during the withdrawal of the services or at completion of the job.

(H) RECOMMENDED MAXIMUM RATES FOR THE PRIVATE AGRICULTURAL CONTRACTORS:

(See part F of Appendix 1 below).

Looking at the current charges by private contractors, one can easily understand that the farmer has all the time been at the mercy of private contractors. Two extremes are shown below:

District	Ploughing charges per hectare
	New land K.Sh.	Old land K.Sh.
Narok	400	370
Nyeri	625	500

Like passenger and goods transporters, private contractors increase their charges every time the prices of fuels lubricants and spares increase. The Government however, fixes maximum charges for the transporters and nothing would justify maximum charges not being fixed for private agricultural contractors.

Considering the extra costs incurred by the private contractors on machineries, we recommend that a maximum charge be fixed for various agricultural operations. We recommend that a charge of up to K.Sh. 50 maximum above the Government's agricultural machinery hire charges is adequate to meet the extra costs. The recommended maximum charges by the private contractors are as follows:

(i) Operation	Recommended maximum charges per hectare K.Sh.
First ploughing (new land) ..	570
First ploughing (old land) ..	450
Second ploughing (old and new land)	350
First harrowing	250
Second harrowing	200
Planting	150
Combine harvesting	350
Shelling	3 per bag
