THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO 7 OF 1969

Parties —

Domestic and Hotel Workers Union
andH H The Aga Khan Hospital and Pandya Memorial Clinic Mombasa

Issue in Dispute —

Interpretation of the Service Gratuity Clause of Agreement of 1963

1 The Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and H H The Aga Khan Hospital and Pandya Memorial Clinic, Mombasa, shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 4th day of March and the 3rd day of April 1969 and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

In 1963 the parties entered into an agreement covering wages and terms and conditions of service of the Respondents' employees and provided as follows on the matter of service gratuity —

An employee whose service is terminated by the employer for cause other than gross misconduct shall be entitled to a service gratuity payable on the following scale —

5 per cent of the employee's annual wage for each year of unbroken service after five years

The gratuity shall be calculated on the employee's wage at the time of termination of service

There shall be no entitlement to a gratuity for a period of five years or less unbroken service

In the same agreement in clause 15 under the heading Interpretation and Definition the following clause was incorporated —

'Reference will be made to the Joint Negotiating Committee for interpretation or definition of any clause of this agreement. In the case of failure to agree on interpretation, the case to be referred to the Senior Labour Officer whose decision will be final'

This agreement remained in force until 1st September 1965. When it was revised in January 1966, a draft was prepared and in it had been included under clause 12 the following provision on the matter of service gratuity —

As the Gratuity Scheme ended on 31st December 1965, employees who have worked continuously for five years or more up to that date shall benefit from gratuity payment of 5 per cent of the last salary, which will be calculated as at 31st December 1965, for every completed year of service. The sum due will be deposited in individual savings bank accounts and the savings books shall remain in the employers' custody. The savings book will be handed to the employee when his/her services are terminated (NB—In the case of the Pandya Memorial Clinic this clause applies to all employees covered by this agreement. In the Aga Khan Hospital the clause excludes assistant nurses and assistant midwives (shown under Appendix 'C') of this agreement, as they have not been covered by the Gratuity Scheme)

A photostat copy of this agreement was produced in which certain deletions appear to have been made. Each of these deletions is marked with the 'Labour Officer Mombasa' stamp and have been initialed by one person only. The Claimants maintained that these deletions were unauthorized and as far as they were concerned, paragraph 12 referred to hereinabove remained in force.

The Respondents on the other hand took serious exception to this attitude adopted by the Claimants, some two years after the agreement had been negotiated and concluded, and referred the Court to a letter which had been written by Mr Oduor to the parties in which he had clearly referred to these deletions, which had been marked with his stamp, as having been made by the parties' consent. The Respondents produced the copy of an agreement which they maintained was the final copy in which the deletions that had been made had been removed.

This clash over the 1966 agreement erupted quite incidentally during the resumed hearing but the motive is quite obvious because in the clause under service gratuity which had been eliminated, an attempt had been made for employees' full service to be taken into account for the payment of this benefit. In this context the matter therefore, becomes rather important and one which the Court feels should be fully investigated.

The Court, however, is satisfied that the parties themselves freely and voluntarily in the 1963 and 1966 agreements had retained a provision in their agreement to the effect that in the event of any difficulty on the question of interpretation and definition of any clause or word in their agreements, reference would be made to a Joint Negotiating Committee. In the case of failure to agree, the case would be referred to the Senior Labour Officer whose decision will be final.

In accordance with this clause the parties referred the matter to the Senior Labour Officer, Coast Province, who appointed a Labour Officer Mr Bukachi, to look into the matter and give his ruling. Mr Bukachi gave his ruling in favour of the Respondents and stated in his letter dated 10th May 1967 to the Claimants as follows —

'A further letter has also been received into this office from the Federation of Kenya Employers, Coast Branch, Ref CB/HOSP/111/67 of 8th May 1967, purporting to be seeking our assistance in the dispute. Certainly this has been dealt with at length in my letters in the series dated 8th October 1966 and 12th October 1966, both letters addressed to the Acting Organizing Secretary, Domestic and Hotel Workers Union Mombasa and copied in each case to the parties concerned in the dispute.

As would be noted in those correspondences the agreement is very specific and clear cut with no shade of ambiguity in it that in calculating payment of service gratuity only the subsequent completed years of service after the first five years of the service are counted—which goes without saying that any years up to the first five years of service of an employee in the employment of the hospital is not gratuity earning at all and must be omitted in calculating gratuity payment.

This does not require an expert'

The Court is not at all happy that where any two parties agree between themselves to refer any difference between them to a particular third party that that third party should delegate his power to another person. The Court finds that in the present dispute the parties had agreed to seek the decision of the Senior Labour Officer and to accept his decision as final. Therefore, it was imperative that the Senior Labour Officer himself should have investigated the matter and given his decision and not require one of his Labour Officers to do the work for him. In these circumstances the Court is not prepared to find that the Senior Labour Officer has in fact given his decision on this matter.

The Court has no doubt that the parties were fully aware of what they meant by clause 15 and the Court rejects the Claimants' contention that the matter, if either party is not satisfied by the Senior Labour Officer's decision, can be proceeded further. The parties themselves agreed to accept the Senior Labour Officer's decision as final and the Court sees no reason to vary it.

In these circumstances, the Court awards that the interpretation which is being sought for in the Court should be referred to the Senior Labour Officer, Coast Province, whose decision will be final in the matter. The Court would also like the Senior Labour Officer to go into the allegations which had been made by the Claimants regarding alleged unauthorized deletions in the 1966 agreement and to establish whether or not those deletions had been made with the consent and approval of the Claimants. This is in accordance with the agreement which the parties themselves entered into freely and voluntarily. To depart from it would be to create a dangerous precedent and the Court is not prepared to do that.

The parties will be at liberty to produce all the facts and evidence before the Senior Labour Officer before he gives his decision.
