The Government of Kenya (GOK) through National Irrigation Board (NIB) intends to expand the Ahero and West Kano irrigation scheme to bring more land under irrigated agriculture for purposes of enhancing food security and income generation in both Kadibo and Miwani divisions of Kisumu East and Muhoroni Districts.

The main project activities will include:

- Construction of an intake works upstream of the existing Ahero Pumping Station at Nyasuna/Ogilo Bridge on Nyando River;
- Construction of a main canal and distribution canals to deliver water to both existing Ahero and West Kano irrigation schemes and the extension areas which will include embankment to control floods;

- (c) Development of laterals canal to deliver water on to the farms;
- (d) Development of a drainage network to remove excess flow from farms which should include embankment to reduce flooding of farms and homesteads, and;
- (e) Development of a network of farm access roads to serve the irrigated areas.

The project anticipates the following impacts and mitigation measures:

Possible Impacts	Mitigation Measures
Involuntary Resettlement	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prepare Resettlement Action Plan (RAP) including appropriate compensation and an alternative resettlement location; • Involve the affected persons on all stages of the RAP and its implementation; • Due to the flexibility of the canal and road alignment, the alignment of the canals and roads are suggested to be fine-tuned to minimise the resettlers in the future Review Detailed Design.
Water Usage or Water Rights and Rights of Common	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide convenient alternative access to water during construction and operation; • During operation, initiate water flows monitoring for Nyando River on the long term as a water balance management; • Institute a liaison committee to provide a communication channel between the community and NIB/Government on water resource management

Soil Erosion	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Minimise clearing vegetations during construction; • De-silted soils from the canal will be applied in filling up eroded section of the river banks downstream of Nyando River. • Construction to be confined during the dry season; • Encourage vegetation along the main canal to intercept additional silt (if any) during construction and operation; • Encourage vegetation around the riparian zones and link canals to control soil loss; • Encourage appropriate and guided use of the silt by the farmers in reconditioning their farms;
Air Pollution	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide Personal Protective Equipment and clothing (PPE & C) to workers; • Ensure regular check-up and prompt maintenance of machinery and equipment;

Possible Impacts
