GAZETTE NOTICE No. 2664

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 20 OF 1970

Parties:—

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers and
Kenya Breweries Limited

Issue in dispute:—

Claim for terminal benefits.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Kenya Breweries Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 13th day of August 1970 and relied on their written and verbal submissions. The Claimants, in addition, called one witness, Mr. K. Ndombi.

AWARD

3. The two employees involved in this dispute, Mr. K. Mwanje and Mr. M. Nzioka, were in the employment of the Respondents at the Mombasa Brewery as "Machine Operators (Brewery)" for a considerable time. Mr. Mwanje had been in employment since 4th June 1951 and Mr. Nzioka since 21st November 1956. During all this period their employment had been in connexion with Engine Room at the Mombasa Brewery.

On 7th October 1969 both these men were on shift duty from 4 p.m. until midnight but both of them left their place of work at 7 p.m. There is no dispute on this point and the Claimants admit that these men were at fault in leaving their place of work some five hours before they were due to go.

The dispute however arises from the fact that after the management came to know of their absence from work without prior permission they dismissed them summarily as they felt that they were right in dealing with this matter in accordance with the disciplinary code which they had agreed with the Claimants. In this code various offences and penalties in respect thereof are specified and they relied on the offence when an employee "neglects or fails to carry out duties so as to endanger company property or persons" which carries with it the penalty of dismissal.

The Claimants' shopsteward at the Mombasa Brewery intervened initially on their behalf and made representations to the Respondents to exercise leniency on the grounds that the two men had been in their employment for a considerable time with apparently good records. The shopsteward requested that as an alternative the two men men be transferred from the Engine Room to other employment in the Brewery. The Respondents gave most serious thought to his representations and after consideration they offered the two employees an opportunity of working in the workshops with demotion from scale C to scale A and they promised that if they behaved themselves they would be promoted to scale B.

It seems that this offer was accepted by the shopsteward and the two workers and they were told to report to their new positions in workshops at 1 p.m. on 8th October but on the same day at 2.30 p.m. there was a change of mind and these workers refused to accept any demotion. The Respondents accordingly informed them that they were no longer their employees. Subsequently meetings were held between the chief shopsteward and the management but no progress was made and consequently the Claimants reported the dispute to the Ministry of Labour. An investigator was appointed whose findings and recommendations were as follows:—

"After a careful study of the above submissions by both parties I find that the Union did not dispute the fact that the two workmen were absent without permission but argued that no written warnings on similar offence had been issued to the claimants in the past.

Rev: L.V. 25/1976.

Mr. Kai Mwanje had served the management for 14 years and Mr. M. Nzioka had a total of 18 years' continuous service with the same management. In the absence of any adverse reports against these two claimants, save for their absence in or about the month of June 1969, I recommend that their dismissal be reduced to normal termination of service with terminal benefits including pay in lieu of notice.

It should however, be noted that this recommendation is based on the submissions by both the Union and the management on this particular trade dispute and should not in any way be taken as precedence for any future cases of trade dispute.

Finally, I appeal to both parties to accept this recommendation as a basis for settlement of this reported trade dispute."

The Respondents informed the Permanent Secretary that they did not accept the above recommendations and reiterated that the employees were dismissed for gross misconduct as set out in their memorandum of agreement with the Claimants. The parties then decided, after the Claimants had given a strike notice, to refer the matter to the Industrial Court for adjudication.

During the hearing it came to light that with effect from June 1969 the Respondents introduced at the Mombasa Brewery a three-shift system and two separate rosters are prepared for compressor and boiler shifts. There was a divergence of views on whether or not the boiler and compressor workers were to be considered as part of one shift. The Respondents maintained that although the two workers on boiler shift had during that particular shift, i.e. from 7 p.m. to midnight, no work to do, they were required to be on duty because Engine Room was considered as one unit and because the workers are fully aware of the danger of accidents occurring in the Engine Room. They maintained that strict instructions had been given and enforced that there should always be three people on every shift in Engine Room at all times thus ensuring that if through some failure of equipment an accident occurred then sufficient persons would be available to take the necessary steps to reduce the damage caused by the accident. In addition, if anyone breathes an overdose of ammonia it could be very dangerous in as much as severe burning would be caused to the lungs followed inevitably by death.

As it so often happens during the night, these two employees left their duty some five hours before they were due to leave an accident occurred in the Engine Room and the one employee, Mr. K. Ndombi, who had remained on duty at the compressor was seriously burned on his arms and shoulders due to leakage of ammonia gas. Fortunately Mr. Ndombi had sufficient presence of mind in spite of his serious burns to close a valve thus averting a very serious situation which could have led to an explosion and a highly dangerous fire.

The Court is satisfied on the evidence produced that in the Engine Room there are two sections, one being the compressor and the other boiler. A rough sketch plan produced by the Respondents showed the exact position of the boiler and the compressor both of which are in one room which is called the Engine Room but the boiler section is some seven feet lower than the compressor section and in between the two there is a brine tank.

The Claimants strongly maintained that there was no doubt at all that the compressor and the boiler work were not inter-related and that a boiler worker could not work on a compressor and vice versa, despite the fact that they were all in the category of "machine operator". This was brought out in evidence by Mr. Ndombi who quite clearly stated that even if these two workers who were on boiler shift had been on duty there was very little that they could have done to help him when he was fighting the leak of the gas because he maintained that they would not have known how to operate the various switches and instruments. He also was quite emphatic in saying that on Saturday afternoons after 1 p.m. and on Sundays there is no one on duty in the boiler room. He also admitted that although he worked on the compressor he did not know the boiler work.

The Court notes that this witness was the person involved in the accident when the two employees concerned in the dispute left the duty five hours before time, and even after making an allowance for the fact that this witness might have been motivated in giving this evidence by a desire to help his colleagues who belong to the same union, the Court has come to the conclusion that on the whole his evidence is reliable. This being so, the Respondents' argument that three workers are required to be in the Engine Room attending one shift to help each other, fails. Moreover, the Court has taken into consideration the fact that if the presence of all three workers was all that important in the Engine Room then there should have been strict instructions in clear and unequivocal terms in writing to that effect.

One very significant point emerged during the hearing in that on 5th November 1969 the Respondents' Manager of Personnel Services wrote a letter to the Claimants' Branch Secretary which included the following two paragraphs:—

"Since second week of June this year we introduced a 3 shift and prepared the roster and informed the people concerned that we would never have one person alone in the Engine House. We have, however, discovered that the chargehands in the Engine House have without authority been allowing their men to leave at 2.30 p.m. on Saturdays and 1 p.m. on Sundays. They have, therefore been abusing the trust and the confidence that we have entrusted to them since June.

They have defrauded the company, i.e. they have been receiving pay for work not performed. We are entitled to punish them all for this but we are not going to witch-hunt. At any rate, and as a result of this investigation we find that Messrs. Mwanje and Nzioka have been absconding from their place of work on more than one occasion and it so happened that they were discovered on the night in question and they have suffered for that."

It is obvious that this was not the first time when boiler workers on this particular shift had left duty much earlier than the required time. The Court finds that the management to some extent is also responsible for allowing this sort of situation to develop. Keeping in consideration the chain of command, the Respondents cannot escape their responsibility in having kept a blind eye to this sort of irregularity. It is therefore not fair that only two workers should be picked out and be made the subject of harsh disciplinary action.

One other factor which has considerably influenced the Court in arriving at its decision is the fact that the Respondents, admittedly at the request of the shopsteward, were prepared to allow these two workers to continue in employment on demotion. This implies that they would not forfeit their terminal benefits which they had earned up to that date and which they would earn subsequently. If the two employees had accepted the Respondents' offer and their services were subsequently terminated they would have received all their terminal benefits.

The Court has carefully examined the various offences which are listed in the disciplinary code and finds that the offence which these two workers committed can properly fall in any of the following three—

"absence from place of work without permission;

neglects to complete his duties;

neglects to complete his duties causing loss to the Company."

It should be noted that the penalty for all these offences for the first breach is a written warning.

The Court is satisfied particularly on the evidence of Mr. Ndombi, who incidentally was the only witness called during the hearing, that this offence does not fall under one claimed by the Respondents.

The Court finds that the question of reinstatement of these two workers is not an issue in dispute because although the Claimants originally reported a dispute on that issue, subsequently after the investigator's findings and recommendations they dropped the claim for reinstatement and in its place they sought full terminal benefits for these two workers. The Court was told that gratuity alone for these two workers would amount to over £500 and in addition there would be their individual entitlements under the provident fund.

The Court has carefully weighed the importance of maintaining strict discipline at work places where expensive machinery is installed and where the safety of workers depends on other workers, with the circumstances giving rise to this dispute and has come to the conclusion that the summary dismissal is indeed a very harsh and severe punishment. The Court finds that the Respondents were perfectly justified in terminating the services of these two workers but that such termination should not be summary. The Court, therefore, awards that the services of these two workers having been terminated, they should be paid all their terminal benefits.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 2671

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form T.M. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Office, Nairobi.
