GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 8118

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT OF KENYA

CAUSE No. 51 OF 2007

KENYA NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS—(Claimant)

AND

TEACHERS SERVICE COMMISSION—(Respondent)

Issue in Dispute:

Wrongful termination of service of David Isaac Muhoro TSC/33154.

The Kenya National Union of Teachers represented by Mr. Kabiru Macharia shall hereinafter be referred to as "the Claimant" and the Teachers Service Commission represented by Mrs. Vane Akama shall hereinafter be referred to as "the Respondent".

The parties were heard in Court at Nairobi on the 3rd and 9th August, 2007. They relied on their written Memoranda, the Claimant called two (2) witnesses, and their representatives made oral submissions in support of their respective cases.

AWARD

This dispute was referred to the Court by the Minister for Labour and Human Resource Development in exercise of powers conferred by the provisions of section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act, Cap. 234, hereinafter referred to as "the Act". The letter of reference dated 9th May, 2007 together with the statutory certificates being Forms G and H issued by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour under the provisions of section 14 (9) (e) and 14 (9) (f) of the Act, were received by the Court on the 14th May, 2007. The parties appeared in Court for mention on 6th June when directions on filing of memoranda and on hearing date were given. These directions were subsequently varied in order to accommodate the parties who for various reasons were unable to comply with the initial directions.

The Claimant filed the Memorandum of Claim on 7th June, while the Respondent filed the Memorandum of Reply on the 18th July.

According to the Memorandum of Claim, Mr. David Isaac Mbatia Muhoro, hereinafter referred to as the grievant, was employed by the Respondent as a PI teacher on 1st January, 1971. He was on permanent and pensionable terms. He served until the year 1997 when he applied for and obtained a study leave without pay from 1st September, 1997 up to 31st August, 2001. The study leave was to enable him to pursue a study in theology from the St. Pauls United Theological College, Limuru, in Kenya. After commencing the course of study, the Respondent wrote to the grievant stating that the study leave had been erroneously granted and was cancelled. The grievant nevertheless proceeded with the course of study and after its completion; he applied to the Respondent to be posted but was informed that the employer would not do so since the grievant had been deemed to have terminated his employment when he failed to return to teach upon cancellation of the study leave.

The grievant considered the termination of service to be unfair, irregular and wrongful and sought the assistance of the Claimant Union. The Claimant Union reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour. The Minister accepted the report of the dispute and appointed an investigator. An investigation was carried out, and a report containing the findings and recommendation of the Minister was released to the parties. It was a finding of the investigation that the conduct of the Employer/Respondent amounted to wrongful termination and it was the recommendation that the grievant be reinstated to his employment. The findings and recommendation were acceptable to the grievant and the Claimant but were rejected by the Respondent, and hence the reference of the dispute to the Court for adjudication and determination.

The Claimant Union therefore prayed the Court to order the Employer/Respondent to reinstate the grievant without loss of seniority and benefits.

The Respondent resists the demands and prayers made on behalf of the grievant by the Union Claimant. It is contended that the Employer/Respondent was lawfully entitled to grant and cancel study leave. The Respondent had granted and subsequently cancelled the study leave pursuant to the provisions of the law and had done so fairly and properly and that it was the grievant who had refused or failed to comply with the directions and instructions of the Employer. It was therefore contended that since the termination of service of the grievant by the Employer/Respondent was lawful, the grievant was not entitled to any of the reliefs sought and that the dispute should be dismissed.

The issue for determination in this matter is whether the termination of employment of the grievant by the Employer/Respondent was proper, fair and lawful and whether the conduct of the parties or any of them amounted to an unfair labour practice. The Court has considered the written Memoranda, the appendices annexed thereto, the testimony of the witnesses and the oral submissions. The Court has also looked at the legal provisions relating to the dispute.

There is no dispute that the grievant David Isaac Mbatia Muhoro was an employee of the Respondent. He was employed on 1st January 1971 and was confirmed in his appointment. The Respondent issued a letter of Appointment dated 3rd September, 1973, which stipulated that it was an agreement between the Respondent as an employer and the grievant as an employee with effect from 1st January, 1971. The letter has been availed to the Court as Exhibit 8 of the Memorandum of Reply. It was a provision in the agreement that the employment was subject to the Pensions Act on confirmation. It was also agreed that upon confirmation the employment could be terminated by other party giving to the other notice of three (3) months or payment of one month salary in lieu of the notice. It was agreed that the employment and service was subject to the Code of Regulations compiled and published by the Employer/Respondent.

It is the case for the Claimant that the termination of employment of the grievant by the Respondent was wrongful while the employer argues otherwise. It is noteworthy that the termination of employment was occasioned by the application for and granting of the study leave. The matter of study leave is provided for by the Code of Regulations.

Section 4(1) (a) of the Teachers Service Commission Act, Cap. 212 empowers the Teachers Service Commission to recruit and employ registered teachers and also to terminate the employment of such teachers. Therefore there is no dispute that the Employer/Respondent could lawfully terminate the employment of the grievant. However such termination must be done fairly and lawfully. The contention by the claimant is that the termination was neither fair nor lawful. The Respondent counters that the termination was both.

Section 59 (3) of the code of Regulation for Teachers empowers the Employer/Respondent to grant employees study leave without pay. It provides that a teacher who is on permanent and pensionable terms may under special circumstances be granted the study leave. It is the position of the Claimant that the grievant who was on permanent and pensionable terms was granted the study leave without pay. This contention is corroborated by testimony of the grievant, of his witness and by a letter dated 29th July, 1997 written by the Respondent to the grievant. It has been availed to the Court as Appendix I of the Memorandum of Claim. It informed him that his application dated 13th June 1997 for study leave had been granted from 1st September 1997 to 31st August, 2001. The grievant testified to that effect and corroborated the same. According to him he proceeded to enroll for his course of study at St. Paul's United Theological College. Later he received a letter from the Employer/Respondent dated 24th September, 1997 telling him that his "application for leave is not approved." The same letter informed him that he will be treated as having terminated his employment from the date he stopped working. This letter has been availed to the Court as Appendix II of the Memorandum of Claim. It is this letter which the Employer/Respondent is relying on as the basis of the termination of employment. A simple comparison of the provision of the agreement between the Respondent and the grievant relating to termination as appears in the Letter of Appointment contained in Exhibit 8 of the Reply Memorandum, and this letter shows that the provisions relating to termination of employment were not observed by the Employer/Respondent. This is due to the fact that neither the grievant as employee nor the Respondent as employer gave the other notice of three (3) months to terminate or paid the other salary of the month in lieu of notice. It is also noteworthy that the letter did not contain direction or instruction from the employer to the grievant as employee to return to the teaching duties. It cannot therefore be validly contended that the grievant as employee teacher refused or neglected or failed to comply or obey the direction or instruction of the Commission employer as provided for in section 26 of the Code of Regulation for Teachers and as argued by the Respondent. It can only be noted that his letter which is headed 'Resignation' is an error by the Respondent. The letter at the bottom concedes that the Respondent acknowledged that the whole issue of the study leave had been handled by the Commission erroneously and that the error was regretted.

It is noted by the Court that the error has occasioned the grievant plenty of inconvenience in having lost his employment. This erroneous letter had been headed "Resignation" and it is clear as submitted by the Claimant that resignation could only have been initiated by the grievant and it was not. There can be no other way of considering the tenor and effect of this letter except that it was mischievously conceived and issued and it wrongfully ended up terminating the employment of an officer who had properly been granted a study leave to pursue a course of study which the Respondent/Employer had considered to be relevant to the curriculum before issuing the letter dated 29th July, 1997 and availed as Appendix I of the Memorandum of Claim.

This dispute was investigated by the Ministry of Labour. The Minister released a report containing findings and recommendation following the investigation. The report has been availed to the Court as Appendix VIII of the Memorandum of Claim. It was a finding of the investigation that:

"The question to consider is whether or not the Commission acted in a fair and impartial manner in canceling the study leave.

The cancellation letter was contradictory—The letter did not recall Mr. Muhoro from College but rather informed him of the termination. This letter was therefore not written in good faith hence the wrongful termination investigations established that Mr. Muhoro was not given a chance to defend himself in accordance with the law of natural justice as well as the Teachers Code of Regulations. The TSC acted in a high handed manner which amounts to an unfair labour practice."

It was the recommendation of the Minister that "Mr Muhoro be reinstated to the teaching profession without loss of benefits or seniority with effect from 1st September, 2001 in accordance with the letter Ref TSC/33151/73 dated 29th July, 1997."

The mode of settling disputes through investigation is provided for by the provisions of section 7 of the Trade Disputes Act, Cap 234. Section 7 (2) provides that the person appointed as investigator shall be a person who appears to the Minister to be independent and qualified. The Court therefore should treat the findings and recommendation of the investigation as cogent and weighty unless it can be shown that the same are neither independent nor the result of a qualified person or unreasonable or logical. The Claimant found the findings and recommendation as acceptable but the Respondent did not impeach the integrity and validity of the findings. The Respondents however contended that the grievant could not be reinstated back to his teaching job because he had attained the statutory age of retirement.

The Court has carefully considered the report of the investigations. It has been noted that the investigation was professionally and thoroughly conducted. Both the Claimant Union and the Management of the Respondent participated. The Court accepts both the findings and recommendation as logical and reasonable.

Upon careful consideration of the written Memoranda, the appendices annexed thereto, the testimony of the witnesses called by the Claimant, the applicable law and oral submissions made by the representatives of the parties, the Court finds that the Claimant Union has established the case that the termination of the grievant by the Respondent was wrongful and that it amounted to a bad labour practice. It also amounted to an unfair dismissal of an employee resulting in loss of employment.

Accordingly the Court orders the Respondent to reinstate the grievant employee to employment with effect from 1st September 2001 and thereafter retire him normally and in accordance with the law and practice of the teaching service. The Respondent is also thereby ordered to pay the grievant his normal retirement benefits to be computed and notified to the employer by the Claimant Union within 30 days. In the event that the Employer/Respondent disputes the computation of the benefits, the Claimant Union is to petition the Nairobi Provincial Labour Officer to call the parties and compute the terminal benefits and the Respondent to pay the same within 30 days of notification.

Upon notification of the computation of the benefits and filing a copy thereof with the Court, the computation shall become part and parcel of this award.

Dated the 24th August, 2007.

Judge.
