THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 13 OF 1970

Parties:—

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers and Coastal Industries Ltd.

Issues in dispute:—

1. Recognition agreement.
2. Improved terms and conditions of service.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Coastal Industries Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Mombasa on the 15th day of June 1970, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. Sometime in February 1968, the Claimants recruited the workers employed by the Respondents into their union. Necessary formalities regarding the deduction of union dues in accordance with the Trade Disputes Act 1965 were complied with. In August 1968, the Claimants formally approached the Respondents for recognition and at the same time put forward their proposals for increases in wages and improvements in other terms and conditions of employment in respect of the Respondents' employees. It is pertinent to note that the Claimants' demand on wages was that all employees should receive a wage increase of 25 per cent on their present monthly earnings. During the hearing the Claimants alleged that the Respondents thereupon threatened to dismiss their workers unless they resigned from the union. This was denied by the Respondents.

The Respondents maintained that since they were paying their employees in accordance with the Wholesale and Retail Distributive Trades Wages Regulations Order they did not see the necessity of entering into any agreement with the Claimants. The Claimants then reported the dispute to the Ministry of Labour on the issue of recognition. From the correspondence that was produced during the hearing the Court is satisfied that the Ministry of Labour officials did their utmost to persuade the Respondents to accept the principle of union recognition but the Respondents did not give in. These efforts continued first at Mombasa and then through the Chief Industrial Relations Officer, Nairobi, and despite several meetings and exchange of numerous letters the parties could not resolve the dispute and signed the notification of dispute form to the Industrial Court on 25th March 1970.

The Claimants are a properly constituted and registered trade union in accordance with the Trade Unions Act (Cap. 233, Laws of Kenya). Their scope of representation covers the Respondents' employees who have voluntarily joined them. Under the present industrial relations system which is to be found in Kenya, based on the Industrial Relations Charter and the Trade Disputes Act 1965 the unions are accorded due recognition and importance in the economic activities of the country, through their influence on the industrial relations and collective bargaining agreements in any undertaking or industry.

There is at present, however, no specific legal provision which requires an employer to recognize a union but good and sensible employers, who recognize the importance of unions, invariably formalize and regulate their relationship with the union, which is demarcated to represent their workers. This is important because the other alternative is the test of strength between the two parties in that, a union would withhold an employer's labour in order to force him to give in to their demands.

In the present dispute this would be the position but since it is accepted in Kenya that industrial strife has got to be prevented, or if prevention is not completely possible to minimize it as far as possible, an elaborate procedure has been laid under the Trade Disputes Act for the settlement of these disputes.

These proceedings relate to a small employer who has a very small labour force but the principle involved is of great importance, i.e. that of union recognition by an employer.

The Respondents' submissions all along have been that due to the uncertainty in the availability of the cottonseed, they are not in a position to pay wages higher than the statutory rates which are applicable to them and that if they recognized the Claimants they would inevitably have to pay higher wages and improve the level of the other fringe benefits over what they are paying at present. This would result in their having to close their plant. The Court finds that the Respondents' fears are to some extent understandable because the Claimants when seeking recognition forwarded demands for increasing the current wages by 25 per cent and sought a considerable improvement in fringe benefits. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Respondents are frightened of recognizing them. The Claimants should take a serious note of this because if unduly high demands are forwarded to an employer it is bound to create such a reaction on his part. This helps no one; therefore the union should be extremely careful when approaching an employer, particularly for the first time.

The Court has very carefully considered all the aspects of this dispute and the submissions which have been made in support thereof but can find no reason whatsoever why the Respondents should not grant official recognition to the Claimants. It is a spurious argument on their part that if they recognize a union they would be committed to paying uneconomic wages to their workers. In fact most of the arguments which they produced during the hearing in trying to resist union recognition are strong submissions for resisting a demand for increasing wages and fringe benefits. There is nothing to prevent an employer from putting forward his point of view regarding the economics of his industry, first to the union during negotiations at their own level, and then during conciliation, and finally before the Industrial Court.

It is very much in the interest of the Respondents and indeed of all employers that once a union has recruited a sufficient number of their work force to make their presence felt that they should take immediate steps to take the union into their confidence and establish a workable relationship with them. This should be done through drawing up a proper recognition agreement, a model of which appears as an appendix to the Industrial Relations Charter. The Court accordingly directs that the Respondents should recognize the Claimants and should immediately embark on negotiations with them in order to conclude an appropriate recognition agreement, in which no doubt a procedure for processing collective claims made by the Claimants on behalf of the workers will be laid down.

As the second issue in dispute has not been properly discussed by the parties it would not be proper for the Court to attempt to make an award on it. After the parties have signed the recognition agreement then the second issue should be processed through the machinery which would be provided in the recognition agreement, and in the event of nonsettlement the matter can be pursued further under the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act 1965.

Given in Nairobi this 14th day of July 1970.

President.

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form T.M. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.
