ZETIE NOTICE NO 1269

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO 2 OF 1975

Parties —

Kenya Motor Engineering & Allied Workers' Union
and

Firestone East Africa (1969) Ltd

Issues in dispute —

- 1 Wage increase
- 2 Effective date and duration

1 The Kenya Motor Engineering & Allied Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Firestone East Africa (1969) Ltd, shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 25th day of March, 1975 and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

3 The Notification of Dispute Form 'A' dated 27th November, 1974, was received by the Court on 10th January 1975 along with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner

The parties had appeared before the Court in Cause No 33/74, when the issue in dispute was on a particular clause in an agreement which the parties had almost concluded relating to satisfactory level of 100 per cent performance being maintained by a worker in order to guarantee a monthly minimum wage

The parties are bound by a collective agreement which they signed on 18th September, 1972, wherein it is provided that it would remain in force for 24 months from the date it was signed and shall continue to be in force until amended by mutual agreement with the exception of wages which may be negotiated on an annual basis or to cover increases for a period of 24 months at one time

The Court directed the parties to embark on fresh negotiations in order to establish a basic wage rate for all the unionizable grades in the Respondents' undertaking and at the same time the Court ruled that it could not accede to the Claimants demand that in award should be made on a proposed agreement by deleting the words 'satisfactory level of 100 per cent performance as maintained'

During the hearing of the present dispute the Court was told that the parties met on 13th September, 1974, a week after the Court award in Cause No 33/74, and the following minimum monthly rates below which no worker would be paid were agreed —

Grade	Sh
I	409
II	458
III	507
IV	585
V	673
VI	760
VII	838
VIII	916

The parties, however, could not proceed further because they failed to agree on wage increases to be granted to workers over and above the minimum rates as agreed above. Further there was no agreement on effective date either

The Claimants have demanded that all employees in Grades I to III should receive an increase of 25 per cent and Grades IV to VI 20 per cent and Grades VII to VIII 15 per cent. The Claimants alleged that the Respondents had offered wage increases ranging between 7.5 per cent from Grade VIII going up to 10 per cent for Grade I, the same percentage being offered for clerical grades and to security staff. The Claimants rejected this offer on the ground that it was quite unreasonable in view of the very high increase in the cost of living.

On effective date the Claimants demand that the wage increases should be effective from 18th September, 1973, and they should remain in force for a period of two years.

The Respondents stressed the clause in the 1972 agreement which provides that it continues to remain in force until amended by mutual agreement and drew the Court's attention to the history of wage negotiations between the parties which had resulted in Cause No 33/74 and the present dispute being referred to the Court.

The Respondents blamed the Claimants for having failed to sign an agreement with them when they had offered the increases as stated in the Claimants' memo in January, 1974.

The Respondents submitted that the agreement on the basic monthly wage arrived at on 13th September, 1974, was now out of date as there had been no agreement on the effective date and further increases and in any case a formal agreement had not been signed incorporating them.

The Respondents have offered a wage increase of Sh 50 per month for the first year and another similar increase for the second year on the rates established in the 1972 agreement based on 85 per cent efficiency.

The Respondents insisted that there could be no backdating of any wage increases in terms of the 1972 agreement.

The parties' submissions were referred to the Employment Promotion Division for analysis which shows that since the 13th September, 1974, agreement on basic rates had not been implemented the relevant date for calculation of price increases would be September, 1972, and from that date up to February, 1975, the price increases amount to 43.5 per cent. The Court notes that the Respondents contend that the price increases are 37.944 per cent.

The Court has further noted that the Respondents had temporarily laid off 88 employees because of adverse market situation and that a meeting would be held on 14th April, to consider putting them back in their jobs. Further that it would cost the Respondents Sh 17,050 per month on the basis of Sh 50 per month increase.

The Court is satisfied that the workers are entitled to increases purely on the basis of cost of living increase above the maximum permissible increase of Sh 50 per month in the latest guidelines issued to the Court. In these circumstances the question of a declining rate of compensation does not arise.

After a careful consideration of all the submissions the Court awards a Sh 50 per month wage increase to all employees for the first year and a similar increase for the second year based on the following minimum monthly rates for the various grades which the parties had agreed on 13th September, 1974.

Grade	Sh
I	409
II	458
III	507
IV	585
V	673
VI	760
VII	838
VIII	916

The Court further rules that the method of wage payment based on hourly rates should continue as had been agreed between the parties previously.

The Court further awards that the effective date should be 1st October 1974, and that it should remain in force for a period of two years from that date.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

Parties —

Kenya Motor Engineering & Allied Workers Union
and

Firestone East Africa (1969) Ltd

Issue in dispute —

Termination of service of Mr Martin K Wanjala

1 The Kenya Motor Engineering & Allied Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Firestone East Africa (1969) Ltd shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 18th day of March, 1975 and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

3 The Notification of Dispute Form A" dated 20th December 1974, was received by the Court on 14th January, 1975 along with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner

The parties in this dispute are bound by a collective agreement in which a warning procedure as stated below is stipulated —

1 An employee, who is guilty of an offence other than gross misconduct or other lawful cause of dismissal may be given a written warning which shall be entered in the employee's employment record card and shall remain valid for a period of twelve months from the date of issue

2 If, within the twelve months period the employee commits a similar or any other offence which does not warrant dismissal, he will be further warned in writing in his employment record card and the two warnings shall remain valid for a period of twelve months from the date of the second warning

3 If, within this twelve months period the employee commits a further offence which does not warrant dismissal, he will be issued with a final letter of warning which will make him liable to summary dismissal for any other offence which he may commit thereafter

4 A final letter of warning will remain valid for a period of one year from the date of issue

5 A copy of the final warning shall be sent to the General Secretary of the union "

Mr Martin K Wanjala started his employment with the Respondents as a security guard on 22nd May, 1971 and later he was transferred to the production department at his own request as a Calender Helper on 8th June, 1972. It is admitted by the Respondents that he performed his duties as a security guard satisfactorily

However, after making an enthusiastic beginning in the production department and after achieving his basic wage rate on 8th September, 1972, it is alleged that he began to show carelessness in performance in his duties. On 21st September, 1972, he was served with a letter of reprimand due to carelessness

On 12th February, 1973, Mr Wanjala went on leave and when he returned from leave he was "disqualified" from further work as from 5th March, 1973. It is admitted that "disqualification" is another way of saying that his services were terminated with notice and any benefits which might have been due to him

The Claimants took up the matter on his behalf and the matter was discussed at length first at the Local Negotiating Committee stage and then at the Joint Industrial Council level on 2nd August, 1973. The Claimants were pressing for his reinstatement and the matter ended in a deadlock

The Ministry of Labour was involved in the dispute and a conciliator was appointed and as a result of conciliation efforts the Chief Industrial Relations Officer forwarded the following findings and recommendations to the parties which he suggested might form the basis for the settlement of the reported trade dispute —

The Management admitted that Mr Wanjala in the first instance performed his duties satisfactorily as a security guard and, in point of fact, his good record enabled him to secure the new job in the production department. He started off well but for unknown reasons, his standard of work continued to deteriorate despite assistance and warnings from his supervisors

Mr Wanjala appears to have been given every assistance by his supervisors without success and the Management had no alternative but to take the action they took which was a normal action by the employer in such a case "

The Claimants naturally rejected the above findings and recommendations and the dispute is now before the Court

The Claimants' main submissions are that the Respondents had failed to prove that Mr Wanjala was responsible for the alleged poor performance of the whole crew. In any case if there was any action to be taken as a result of any poor performance then it should have been directed at the whole crew and not Mr Wanjala alone

The Claimants stressed that the Respondents had violated the provisions of the collective agreement relating to the warning procedure in that three written warning letters had not been served on Mr Wanjala as it was not disputed that he had not committed any gross misconduct

The Claimants maintained that the Conciliator had misdirected himself on this particular point of warning procedure and they had therefore rejected his findings. In any case they maintained that Mr Wanjala should be given the benefit of doubt regarding the alleged slowness of the whole crew

The Respondents submitted that after Mr Wanjala had been served with a letter of warning on 21st September 1972, he showed no improvement and the records indicated that he demonstrated laziness and slowness in his work. Both the supervisor and the Divisional Manager had talked to him in an effort to let him improve but in vain although at that stage the Respondents could not conclusively prove that Mr Wanjala was responsible for the poor performance of the whole crew

The Respondents stated that Mr Wanjala's inefficiency came to light when he went on leave and when another worker replaced him which resulted in a dramatic increase in the efficiency level of the crew. They gave the following figures —

	Per Cent
November	59.3
December	60.9
1973—
January	65.1
February	80.7

The Respondents explained that Mr Wanjala was informed that if a vacancy occurred in the security department they would be glad to offer him his old job once again

During the hearing the Respondents submitted that their Mr J O Muteri had offered a job to Mr Wanjala as a security guard during conciliation but they admitted that they did not convey this offer either to the Conciliator or to the Claimants. They felt it was entirely up to Mr Wanjala to carry the offer to the Claimants who were acting on his behalf

Finally the Respondents submitted that if Mr Wanjala's services had been terminated as a result of a fourth offence after three written warnings then he would have suffered a summary dismissal and he would not have received any benefits or notice pay which might be due to him

The Court has given careful consideration to this dispute and has come to the conclusion that in the circumstances as put forward during the hearing and in the parties' written submissions, the Respondents should have given Mr Wanjala a second letter of warning on his return from leave as they alleged that during his absence the efficiency level of the crew had shot up dramatically as stated hereinabove in the award

Up to the time Mr Wanjala went on leave it was doubtful, although the Respondents suspected that Mr Wanjala was responsible for the slowness of the whole crew, that in fact he was the main culprit. The Respondents having established that Mr Wanjala was the man responsible for the poor performance of the crew, when he was on leave, should have drawn his attention to this state of affairs when he came back from leave. This would have been consistent with the principles of natural justice which in this case is certainly not in the Respondents' words 'a grossly overworked trade union cliché'

The Court would like to point out that the warning procedure in the collective agreement which the unions in the country have won during negotiations and through the Industrial Court awards in the collective agreements is meant to cater for this type of case where an employee is alleged to be careless or approaches his work with an attitude of "couldn't care less". The employee in these circumstances certainly is not guilty of gross misconduct and it is the employer's duty to point out to the worker concerned his faults in his work performance and if after the stipulated warnings he still does not improve then they can summarily dismiss him

The Court finds that the Respondents erred in not dealing with Mr Wanjala in accordance with the provisions of the warning system in that they gave Mr Wanjala only one letter of warning on 21st September, 1972, and then they terminated his services by giving him the appropriate notice pay and his other benefits

The Court places great importance on the fact that a job as a security guard was offered to Mr Wanjala during conciliation and the Court feels that the Respondents once again did not display a proper attitude in that knowing fully well that the Claimants were acting on behalf of Mr Wanjala and the dispute was a subject matter of conciliation they did not involve either the Claimants or the Conciliator in this offer. Had they done so the Court is confident that this dispute would have been settled there and then

Once again the Court is confronted with a situation where it has to make an award concerning a workman whose services were terminated some two years ago

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court finds that Mr Wanjala's services were wrongfully terminated and he has suffered a wrongful dismissal. The Court would have had no hesitation in reinstating Mr Wanjala either to his job in the production department or more definitely as a security guard if the dispute had come before the Court much earlier. But the circumstances as they are in which the Court cannot attribute the delay of these two years on either party the Court has come to the conclusion that the best remedy for Mr Wanjala would be to award him compensation for the loss of his job. The Court awards that Mr Wanjala should be paid nine months' salary by way of compensation for having suffered wrongful dismissal.
