The claimants did not call any witness.

AWARD

3. The Minister for Labour referred this dispute to the court on 22nd February, 1990, in accordance with section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act. The Minister's reference was received by the court on 26th February, 1990, together with the statutory certificates signed by himself and the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a small-size restaurant along Banda Street, Nairobi, and currently employ a labour force of 24 employees.

The grievant was employed by the respondents as a waiter on 1st July, 1977, at a monthly salary of KSh. 375. He was promoted to the position of a head waiter on 1st July, 1982, and his salary rose to Sh. 1,100 per month. The grievant held that position until the end of February 1986, when his services were terminated by the respondents on the ground of desertion.

The circumstances leading to his alleged dismissal are that on 25th February, 1986, the grievant requested for two days off-duty but he did not report back on duty until 28th February, 1986, when he gave a verbal notice to the respondents of his intention to terminate his services with them.

On 4th March, 1986, the respondents requested the grievant to give them two months' written notice, but the grievant did not comply with this request. The respondents sent a reminder to him, dated 13th March, 1986. There was also no response from the grievant. Meanwhile, Mr. K. Karmali, a director of the respondents, had written to the grievant in his absence on 26th February, 1986, that he was being demoted from head waiter to a waiter.

The grievant challenged the demotion by his letter dated 27th February, 1986, in which he stated that the respondents' action amounted to victimization for his trade union activities as a shop steward in that no warning letters had been issued to him in terms of clause 4 of the parties' collective agreement on account of poor performance of his work as a head waiter.

The claimants accepted the Minister's recommendation, but behalf of the grievant. The parties met at their own level in order to effect a settlement, but no agreement was reached. The claimants then reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour, and Mr. J. B. Mwangi of Labour Office, Nairobi, was appointed an investigator. On 27th July, 1988, the chief industrial relations officer released the Ministry's report to the parties wherein he recommended that Mr. Odera's dismissal should be reduced to normal termination and be paid accrued terminal benefits in accordance with the parties' collective agreement. In addition, he should be paid four months' salary as compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The claimants accepted the Minister's recommendation, but the respondents rejected it as unfair on the ground that the Ministry ignored the true facts and circumstances of what actually happened, and instead imposed on them "constructive dismissal."

The matter is now before the court for consideration. The claimants urged the court to find that the grievant was victimized and prayed that he should be paid all his accrued terminal benefits and a maximum compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The respondents urged the court to find that the grievant was not entitled to any compensation because he had repudiated his contract of employment by desertion and therefore prayed that the claimants' demand should be dismissed.

In the instant case, the court notes that when the grievant resumed his duties on 25th February, 1986, he requested for two days' off-duty, but the parties to this dispute are not in agreement as to the reason for his absence. The claimants told the court that the grievant fell sick on this day and he was granted two days' sick-off by the respondents. On the other hand, the respondents informed the court that the grievant required the two days' off-duty so that he might attend to his sick child. Whether the grievant himself or his child fell sick is immaterial in this case, but the most important point for consideration is the impact to the grievant of, and his reaction so, his demotion while he was away on the two days off-duty.

The respondents demoted the grievant in his absence on 26th February, 1986, from a position of a head waiter to that of a waiter because of poor performance of his duties, and for which no written letters of warning had been issued against him. This action must, therefore, have precipitated the chain of events which took place thereafter until the grievant secured another employment on 7th March, 1986, with the Strikes Restaurant. Naturally, when the grievant received the letter of his demotion on 28th February, 1986, he must have been disappointed and walked away on the respondents. Hence, the respondents' letter of 4th March, 1986, requesting him to give them written notice to bring the contract of service to an end.

With the above observations, the court finds that both parties were at fault to some extent. While the court agrees with the respondents that promotion and deployment of staff is a management prerogative, it does not accept the manner in which they demoted the grievant without proper letters of warning in accordance with clause 4 of the parties' collective agreement. The grievant was also to blame for breaching his contract by disappearing from his place of work without proper notice to the respondents. However, the contract did not cease to exist, and in the circumstances the respondents should have determined it by terminating the services of the absent grievant, but they slept over their right to do so. It also appears that this matter was not amicably settled by the parties as Mr. Kitari has alleged in his evidence, otherwise a proper record would have been availed to the court.

After anxious consideration of all the aspects of this dispute the court therefore feels that the grievant's alleged desertion and subsequent dismissal should be treated as normal termination of service and he should be paid his terminal benefits up to and including 6th March, 1986. In addition, a payment of two months' salary to him would meet the dictates of justice in this case and the court so awards. After all, the grievant has already taken reasonable steps to minimize or mitigate his loss by immediately securing another job, and for this reason he is not entitled to anything more.

AWARD

3. The notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 24th November, 1989, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 26th February, 1990, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant was first employed by the respondents in April 1977, as a dishwasher at a salary of KSh. 323.50 plus KSh. 80 housing allowance per month. He was subsequently promoted to the position of a waiter and in December 1987, he was again promoted to the post of a supervisor. He was dismissed on 23rd January, 1988, after having served the respondents for nearly 10½ years.

The incident which led to the grievant's dismissal happened on 25th December, 1987, between 1.55 p.m. and 2.30 p.m. at the respondents' Pool Terrace Restaurant. It is alleged that on the material day, he issued a customer with two top copy bills stamped paid Nos. 276087 and 276095 both of which indicated a change of Sh. 160 and Sh. 60 out of Sh. 600 and 500 paid respectively. The top copy bills had wrong timings having been paid before 1.00 p.m. while the auditor had visited the hotel at 1.55 p.m. The grievant was then accused of having pocketed Sh. 440 belonging to the respondents.

The claimants took up the matter on behalf of the grievant on 23rd January, 1988. As a result, the claimants were informed that the grievant's case would be reviewed and a decision communicated to them accordingly. The claimants' plea was accepted and on 16th March, 1988, the grievant was offered fresh employment as a dish-washer, a post he is holding up to this day.

However, Mr. Onyango was dissatisfied with the respondents' decision of re-employing him afresh and appealed to the general manager but his appeal was dismissed. Thereafter the matter was referred to the Joint Industrial Council (J.I.C.) for investigation and recommendation. The J.I.C. findings were that J.I.C. had a lot of reservations on Mr. Butts report because of the manner in which he handled the incident especially on 25th December, 1987. The J.I.C. further found out that instant dismissal was rather too harsh taking into account the grievant's 10 years service of exemplary employment record.

It was recommended that Mr. Onyango be demoted to a lower grade but his service be deemed continuous.

The Joint Industrial Council decision was turned down by the respondents and subsequently on 23rd November, 1988, the matter was reported to the Minister for Labour. The trade dispute having gone through the usual machinery, the Ministry's finding was that the auditor's report had a lot of short-comings and could not have been used as a basis of dismissing the grievant bearing in mind that he had 10 years service with a clean employment record. The grievant was found to have suffered a wrongful dismissal and it was recommended that the dismissal be reduced to normal termination of service, his new appointment notwithstanding and without prejudice.

The respondents again did not accept the Ministry's recommendation and the matter is now before the court for consideration.

In this dispute, the auditor's experience on 25th December, 1987, and his subsequent report to the respondents' management indicates a racket being practised at the Pool Terrace by some employees.

The auditor's report in this case implicates the grievant in that both the bills which he gave to the auditor with the change had been marked stamped "paid" at a time before the auditor and his family arrived at the Pool Terrace for lunch.

The court accepts the auditor's evidence although the court is surprised that the auditor did not deem it fit to take with him the bill on the strength of which he paid money to the grievant and on which he based his subsequent report.

As against this the respondent confirm that the grievant had 10 years of service with them and had a good employment record he had also helped them in the past in detecting certain frauds.

The court must also take into consideration that the respondents have re-employed the grievant but as a dish-washer as a new employee this was because of his good record in the past.

The court has given careful consideration to this dispute and all the evidence advanced during the hearing and has come to the conclusion that the respondent were justified in demoting the grievant but the court feels that they should give him credit for at least five years from his past service. The court accordingly awards that the grievant demotion stands but he will have five years service with him instead of starting as a new employee.

Athi River Town Council (Mavoko Town Council)

Issue in dispute:

Dismissal of Sebastian M. Matu—Accountant III.

THE Kenya Local Government Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Athi River Town Council shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 4th and 18th July, 1990, respectively and relied on their written and verbal submissions. In addition, the respondents called Mr. B. W. Mukula of Ministry of Local Government to testify on oath.

The claimants did not call any witness.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 26th January, 1990, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 8th March 1990, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

Mr. Sebastian M. Matu was employed by the respondents on 1st February, 1977, as a clerical officer, in scale G9 earning K£ 378 x 30—438 x 36—654 p.a. On 1st April, 1978, he was promoted to the position of senior clerical officer in scale G8 and his salary was increased to K£474 p.a. from K£438 p.a. His next promotion came on 1st November, 1979, when he became an accounts assistant in scale G6 and was paid a salary of £954 p.a. as an accounts assistant he was incharge of revenue collection of the respondents.

On 14th November, 1983, Mr. Matu was suspended from duty and subsequently dismissed on 25th May, 1984, but the summary dismissal was backdated to 14th November, 1983. He was dismissed after having served the respondents for six years and about ten months.

The circumstances that led to the grievant's summary dismissal took place between 3rd April, 1982 and 24th October, 1983. It is alleged that during this period the grievant caused two extra receipt books serial No. 26001-26100 being duplicates to be printed and delivered. A further allegation is that the duplicate receipt books were extensively used between 25th September, 1982 and 24th October, 1983, respectively. Consequently, more than KSh. 264,598.25 in terms of revenue was lost.

The claimants told the court that, they took up the matter with the respondents and no settlement was reached. The claimants then reported a trade dispute, and having gone through the usual machinery the Ministry's finding was that the respondents were entitled to lose confidence in the grievant. It was recommended that the dismissal be reduced to normal termination of service. In addition, he was to be paid six months salary for the period he was under suspension up to the date the dismissal letter was issued to him, that is on 14th November, 1983, up to 25th May, 1984.

This recommendation was turned down by the claimants and the matter is now before the court for consideration. The claimants in view of their submissions prayed the court to award as follows:

1. That Mr. Sebastian Matu be reinstated to his substantive appointment of accountant III in the service of the respondents without loss of service and benefits.
2. That Mr. Sebastian Matu be paid for the period the council kept him outside his employment illegally.
3. That all his rights relating to service privileges, should be restored to him accordingly, and that any adverse report placed on his personal file records should be removed.

The respondents requested the court to find that the action taken against Mr. Matu was justified and the court should uphold the same and reject all the claimants' demands.

The court notes that the grievant was previously working in another Government department which he left under a cloud of suspicion.

The court would like to point out that the institution of criminal cases is primarily the responsibility of the State whereas employer/employee relationship is a contractual matter subject to the industrial relations practices that have evolved in the country over the last 26 years through the industrial relations charter and the industrial court awards.

The following two paragraphs from the judgement of the Senior Resident Magistrate, Machakos, show what sort of transactions were taking place (second accused in the grievant in this case):

"The second accused would also demand cash equivalent to the amount of the cheque from the collection the first accused had. The first accused would give such cash and retain the cheque in exchange.

She says that cheques used to be received (collected) by the second accused from companies and that the practice of taking to her such a cheque with a single receipt started on 11th October, 1982, when a receipt No. 26002 for Sh. 12,688.75 from the East African Portland Cement Co. was given to her payable to Athi River Urban Council (Town Council) and marked Account Payee Only. The cheque was for the payment of water conservancy, meter rent and sewerage. When she refused to take another cheque presented in the same way from the same company on 30th October, 1982, she was served with a warning letter by the second accused who accused her of insubordination. She went to complain to the town clerk/treasurer requesting to be moved from the revenue office. But the town clerk/treasurer, whom the second accused had said knew about the cheques and the single receipt, asked her to go back to the revenue office and do what the second accused wanted her to do while he (town clerk/treasurer) looked into her complaint.

The first accused complied and took the second cheque, wrote the single receipt and gave cash equivalent to the amount of the cheque to the second accused.

The first accused thereafter talks of some other cheques before she came to 13th January, 1983, on which she claims the second accused gave her another cheque from the East African Portland Cement Company and a blank receipt No. 26059 and gave her his usual instructions. The cheque was for Sh. 21,865.90. She complied. These documents form the basis of counts three and four.

For counts five and six the first accused says that on 3rd March, 1983, the second accused again took to her a cheque from East African Portland Cement with a single blank receipt No. 26100 and gave her the usual instructions. The cheque was for Sh. 10,937.55. She complied.

For counts seven and eight the first accused says that the second accused took to her a cheque No. 455465 dated 5th April, 1983, for Sh. 17,625.90 issued by the Kenya Treads

Industry and payable to the Athi River Urban Council. It was together with a receipt No. 26098. The second accused gave the usual instruction and the first accused complied. The cheque has been in this count as MFI 8 but not produced.

It should add that there should have been an audited report of the accounts covering the period of the alleged loss of the money of the council."

It is true that both the accused were acquitted but the fact remains that it is astonishing that a person like the grievant who was in charge of revenue collection should indulge in such dubious practices. Incidentally the audit report which was not produced in the criminal court was produced in this court and the auditor Mr. Makula was called to give evidence.

The court feels that there were enough grounds for the respondents to terminate the services of the grievant and the result of the criminal case should have no bearing on the outcome of this dispute.

The court therefore rules that the respondents were entitled to hand out a normal termination to the grievant but it should be with effect from 25th May, 1984. Further the grievant should also be paid full salary up to 25th May, 1984 and the court awards accordingly.

The claimants prayer for the grievant's reinstatement is rejected.

Dated the 24th August, 1990.
