THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No 28 OF 1969

Parties —

Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union

and

Hotel Ambassadeur

Issue in dispute —

Non compliance of 5 per cent increase to all employees with over two years' service by the management of the Hotel Ambassadeur

1 The Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Hotel Ambassadeur shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 29th day of September 1969, and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

3 Prior to March 1965, wages and conditions of employment of the Respondents' employees were regulated by the relevant Regulation of Wages (Hotel and Catering Trades) Orders. Apparently this was in agreement with the Claimants who however, on 14th March 1965, put forward demands for revising the terms and conditions of the Respondents' employees with a view to increasing them above the statutory rates. Several meetings took place between the parties and letters were exchanged between them but no agreement could be reached and the workers continued to be remunerated at the statutory rates

On 9th August 1966, in reply to a letter from the Claimants' General Secretary, the Respondents' Managing Director informed him that the management had had a meeting with the Shop Committee about the increment in question and they had accepted the fact that the hotel could not afford a 15 per cent increment for all those with over two years' service although the management had given careful consideration to the matter. However, in an endeavour to help the workers of the hotel the management had now agreed and the Shop Committee had accepted an increment of 5 per cent for all workers over two years even though they may already be drawing a higher wage scale than the minimum—this 5 per cent increase would be from 1st August 1966

The Claimants' reaction to this letter was unfavourable and they complained that the Respondents should not have taken advantage of their shopstewards in arriving at an agreement on a matter which was under active discussion by their union. The Claimants stated that they would not recognize the arrangement which the Respondents had arrived at with the Shop Committee

The relevant Wages Council Order was revised and the new Order came into operation on 1st September 1967, and no evidence was produced during the hearing to show that the Claimants had insisted on a 5 per cent increase being granted to workers with two years' service over and above the new statutory rates. In fact there appears to have been no complaint from the Claimants over this matter. Subsequently the parties registered a dispute with the Industrial Court vide Cause No 6/1968 (Hotel Ambassadeur and New Avenue Hotel and Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union) on the following issues —

Wages Cashier, telephonist, receptionist, ledger clerk, junior clerk, house-keeper, head barman, head-steward and accountant to be on minimum of Sh 650 p.m

Dhobi, porter/lift attendant, waiter/room servant, wine waiter, glass washer, watchman, head porter, pantry or kitchen servant—to have an overall increment of Sh 15

Assistant cook, ordinary cook, sweeper (sanitary), steward, barman, and artisan (ungraded) each to get an overall increment of Sh 20

The Court has carefully gone through the written submissions of the Claimants in that case and can find no reference to the aforesaid 5 per cent increase. This dispute was eventually not proceeded with because the Claimants and the E.A. Hotel-keepers' Association entered into a country-wide agreement (hereinafter referred to as Hotelkeepers Agreement) on 6th February 1969, with an effective life of five years. The second clause of this agreement states —

"No employee already in service shall receive terms and conditions of service subsequent to the signing of this agreement less favourable than the terms and conditions of his/her service at that date"

In the last clause of the same agreement, it states —

"This agreement shall supersede all previous agreements between the parties hereto and shall be effective from the 1st day of December 1968, and shall remain in force for a period of five years"

The Claimants have argued that the proviso in the above agreement clearly showed that the Respondents' workers with two years' service were entitled to a 5 per cent increase over and above their negotiated rates and have accused the Respondents of non-compliance of this increase. The Claimants have however made no attempt to explain why they had kept quiet over this matter when the Wages Council Order was revised and the new Order came into effect from 1st September 1967 because the new rates were above the old rates plus the 5 per cent increase for those with two years' service. They also failed to explain why they had made no mention of this in their written submissions in Industrial Court Cause No 6/1968. The Claimants are in fact asking the Court to rule that the 5 per cent increase was to be effective for all time on all future rates for those with two years' service and over. The Court cannot accept this.

The letter dated 9th August 1966, on which the Claimants have relied in this dispute makes no mention of an expiry date. The workers who were affected by the arrangement mentioned in this letter received a 5 per cent increase on the statutory minimum rates applicable at that time. Subsequently when the statutory rates were revised in 1967, no one appears to have taken any action over this matter although the 5 per cent increase had ceased to apply.

The second clause of the Hotelkeepers Agreement on which the Claimants have relied ensures that no worker who was in receipt of a higher remuneration would suffer a reduction in his wages as a result of this agreement. The Respondents' employees have not suffered a reduction in their wages. The Claimants appear to be reviving a matter which has been overtaken by events. The Court has come to the conclusion that the 5 per cent increase was effective only during the Regulation of Wages (Hotel and Catering Trades) Order 1965, and if the Claimants had felt strongly about this then they should have asked for this increase to be continued when the 1967 Order came into effect from 1st September 1967. There is no evidence in any document produced to the Court to show that the 5 per cent increase was to be applied on all future Wages Council Orders for the hotel industry.

It is clearly stated in the Hotelkeepers Agreement that that agreement shall supersede all previous agreements between the parties hereto. The Claimants' attitude in this dispute has been most inconsistent as in the first place they repudiated the arrangement of 5 per cent increase which the Respondents had made with the Shop Committee. Secondly, they made no attempt to raise this matter with the Respondents when the 1967 Wages Council Order came into effect in September. Thirdly, no mention of this fact was made in their written submissions to the Industrial Court in Cause No 6/1968 and finally the Hotelkeepers Agreement clearly states that that agreement supersedes all previous agreements.

The Court can find no grounds whatsoever for finding that the Respondents are not complying with the 5 per cent increase to all employees with over two years' service because that arrangement came to an end when the Wages Council Order of 1965 was revoked. In these circumstances the Court must reject the Claimants' demand and find that there is no failure on the part of the Respondents to comply with their agreement with the Claimants which agreement is the one which the F.A. Hotelkeepers' Association, of which the Respondents are members, have entered into with the Claimants.
