GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 1990

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 88 OF 1985

Parties:

Kenya Chemical Workers' Union
and
Kiwi Home Products (E.A.) Limited

Issue in dispute:

Wrongful dismissal/termination of Miss Sabina Moraa and Charles Aloo.

THE Kenya Chemical Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Kiwi Home Products (E.A.) Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 13th March, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 3rd October, 1984, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 20th August, 1985 together with the statutory certificates signed by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour. It is alleged that the two grievants in this dispute were instantly dismissed for stealing goods which are manufactured by the respondents in their undertaking and that these dismissals were in line with the parties agreement.

The claimants told the court that the first grievant, Miss Sabina Moraa, served the respondents for 16½ years with a clean record. The claimants went further and told the court that on 8th November, 1982 Sabina Moraa was found by a security guard at the gate in possession of two tins of body perfume which is manufactured by the respondents but which she denied having stolen saying that the tins were planted on her by another worker who did not agree with her.

Regarding Charles Aloo, the claimants told the court that he had worked for the respondents for 7 years with a clean record and that on 19th November, 1982 he was found in possession of one tin of perfume by the security guard which he also denied having stolen and stated that the tin was planted on him by the guard.

The claimants stated that they took up these dismissals on behalf of their members with the respondents and requested reinstatement of both the workers but the respondents refused their demand. The claimants reported the matter to the labour officer, industrial area, who convened a meeting between the parties. At this meeting the parties agreed that the dismissals be reduced to normal termination and the respondents to pay them all terminal benefits. The claimants having agreed then changed their minds and reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour demanding reinstatement of their members. The minister recommended that the dismissals be reduced to normal termination but the respondents chose to reject it so the dispute is now before the court.

The respondents stated that on 27th October, 1982 they hired a security guard to search employees leaving the factory due to increased thefts of their products. Before the hiring of the security guard, the respondents had issued a circular to all employees (giving each employee a copy) to the effect that they were hiring a security guard to carry out searches. The respondents stated that on 8th November, 1982 at 5 p.m. Sabina Moraa was found in possession of two tins of body perfume by the security guard and she was dismissed on 10th November, 1982.

Charles Aloo was caught red handed by the security guard on 19th November, 1982 carrying a tin of perfume and he was dismissed on the 22nd.

The respondents told the court that the claimants pleaded for their members to be treated with sympathy as they had served for considerable periods but the respondents could not stand offences of dishonesty like in the present case.

The respondents requested the court to uphold their action and dismiss the claimants' demand.

In considering this dispute the court finds that the grievants in this dispute had committed gross misconduct which removed whatever faith the employer had in them. The court does not agree with the claimants' demand of reinstating the grievants due to their long service as this court is known not to condone dishonest acts by workers. But the court finds it proved that the respondents had agreed to reduce these dismissals to normal terminations and even wrote a letter to the minister to that effect. In view of this, the court awards that these dismissals be reduced to normal terminations and the grievants be paid their terminal benefits as laid down in the collective agreement.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 1991

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 97 OF 1985

Parties:

Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union
and
Life Clothing Factory

Issue in dispute:

Dismissal of Kitaka Keli.

THE Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Life Clothing Factory shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 19th March, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 27th March, 1984, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 20th August, 1985 together with the statutory certificates signed by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour.

The grievant in this dispute, Kitaka Keli, was employed by the respondents from 1st August, 1969 as mass production machinist. He remained in employment until 28th February, 1976 when he disappeared from his duty without authority and reappeared at his place of work in late October 1977. During his illegal absence from duty the respondents considered him a deserter and consequently struck his name off the payroll. This state of affairs was accordingly notified to the claimants and the Nairobi Labour Officer. On reporting, Kitaka Keli asked for re-employment. The request was turned down by the respondents. But, his colleagues in employment pleaded with the respondents to sympathize with him and offer him one more chance. Their plea was eventually granted and Mr. Keli was re-employed on new terms and conditions of service effective from 18th October, 1977 at a basic monthly pay of KSh. 879 exclusive of house allowance.

During the hearing the respondents submitted that during the last two years of Mr. Keli's employment he persistently absented himself from duty without lawful cause, in particular, after receipt of his mid-month and end of the month wages. For these absences, he received both written and verbal warnings but he totally failed to reform. On a number of occasions he was warned against reporting on duty smelling of stale liquor and at times drunk. He failed to heed these warnings either.

In 1983 Mr. Keli's situation worsened when he again disappeared from work from 3rd February to 15th April 1983 when he showed up and claimed that he had been mentally sick in the hospital for all the days he was away.

Although he produced a letter from the medical officer in charge of psychiatric services prescribing drugs that he had to take every month as an out-patient, these documents, obviously did not satisfy the respondents as they did not prove that he was admitted in hospital during this period. The respondents felt that Mr. Keli or his relatives were in a position to report to them reasons for his absence. However, the shopsteward again pleaded with the respondents and he was again allowed to resume his duty on 16th April, 1983.

As if this was not enough, Mr. Keli absented himself again from duty from 5th to 14th December, 1983. Again the usual explanation was that he went home and became sick during this period. He followed this another absence from the 15th until 19th December, 1983 when he returned to his place of work accompanied by his branch secretary, Mr. Magaya, who tried to advance plausible reasons for Mr. Keli's absence to the respondents and undertook to get documentary proof from the officer in charge of Kalama Dispensary, Machakos, on Mr. Keli's nature of illness and treatment during his days of absence. While waiting for this information Mr. Keli worked until 30th December, 1983 but, again, was never seen until 5th January when the claimants addressed a letter to the respondents alleging that he had been wrongfully dismissed. The respondents submitted that they had never dismissed Mr. Keli as they had never heard of him since and assumed that he had deserted his employment once again.

However, the respondents in their endeavour to sort this matter out once and for all asked the labour officer to convene a meeting which was held in his office on the 3rd February, 1984. During a lengthy discussion with the claimants over Mr. Keli's absence no agreement was reached and thereafter the respondents decided to dismiss him on 21st February, 1984.

The claimants then reported a trade dispute and the finding and recommendation of the Ministry of Labour was that Mr. Keli be paid all his terminal benefits plus 6 months salary as compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The recommendation was rejected by the respondents and the matter is now before the court for adjudication.
