THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 64 OF 1966

Parties:—

Kenya Motor Engineering and Allied Workers' Union and

Hughes Limited

Issues in dispute:—

(a) Interpretation of the Agreement signed on 9th December 1964, covering return to work following a strike at Eldoret.

(b) Interpretation of the provisions of pages 5 and 17 of the current Fringe Benefit Agreement in case of dismissal for reasons not listed under section 49 (4) of the Employment Act.

1. The Kenya Motor Engineering and Allied Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Hughes Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The Parties were heard in Nairobi on the 20th day of September 1966, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

3. (a) There was a stoppage of work involving employees of the Motor Trade and Allied Industries at Eldoret in December 1964 and was followed by sympathy strikes by employees in the same industry at Kitale and Meru. On 8th December 1964, a meeting between the Parties was held in the Ministry of Labour under the chairmanship of the Chief Industrial Relations Officer and on 9th December 1964, an agreement was signed calling off the strike and all employees were taken back as new employees pending investigation by an independent committee. The following is the agreement reached at this meeting:—

"At a meeting held in this office on 8th December 1964, between the representatives of the Motor Trade and Allied Industries Employers' Association and the Kenya Motor Engineering and Allied Workers' Union, it was agreed that all workers will return to work immediately as new employees until the dispute is investigated.

2. An impartial committee consisting of one F.K.E. representative, one K.F.L. representative and chaired by an official of the Ministry of Labour and Social Services will investigate the causes of the stoppage of work and also determine whether or not the stoppage was constitutional or unconstitutional.

- (a) If the committee finds that the stoppage of work was unconstitutional then all workers will continue in employment as new employees.
- (b) On the other hand, if the committee finds that the stoppage of work was constitutional then all workers will be reinstated with full past privileges.

Signed:

General Secretary, on behalf of the Kenya Motor Engineering and Allied Workers' Union.

The Motor Trade and Allied Industries Employers' Association.

Witness.

9th December 1964."

The Respondents insisted that all their employees should sign agreements to the effect that, they had been taken on as new employees and it appears that one particular employee by the name of Ibrahim Hajee refused to sign such an agreement and as a result he was not allowed to resume work. The Claimants supported Ibrahim Hajee's stand and eventually at a meeting held between the representatives of the Claimants and the Respondents under the chairmanship of the Industrial Relations Officer, Mr. J. W. Omedi, it was agreed that the case of Ibrahim Hajee be referred to the Industrial Court.

(b) The Respondents are members of the Motor Trade and Allied Industries Employers' Association which Association has signed an agreement covering fringe benefits with the Claimants.

In clauses No. 5 and 17 of this agreement, the following provision is made on annual leave and termination of service:—

"Clause 5—Annual Leave

(a) A minimum of 21 consecutive days' leave excluding public holidays, will be granted on full pay for each period of 12 months' consecutive service.

(b) An additional four days' unpaid leave in respect of travelling time may be granted.

(c) The full leave period must be taken at one time, except that the employer had the right, on compassionate grounds only and at his own discretion to allow otherwise.

(d) After nine months' consecutive service the employee shall be entitled to the full period of annual leave.

(e) Any employee who leaves his employment within the first six months of service shall not be entitled to any annual leave.

(f) Any employee who leaves his employment after having completed at least six months' service shall be entitled to accrued leave at the rate of at least  $1\frac{1}{2}$  days per month of consecutive service.

(g) Annual leave must be taken in the year in which it is due, except that, by prior arrangements with Management, up to two years' leave entitlement may be accumulated and permission for such accumulation shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(h) Leave which is not taken or which has not been accumulated by prior arrangement with Management will be forfeited.

Clause 17—Termination of Service

(a) From completion of probationary period to five years' service, one month's notice or salary in lieu of notice.

(b) From five years onwards, two months' notice or salary in lieu of notice."

One Mr. Andrew Kubasu who was a salesman employed by the Respondents had at some time received from a customer a sum of Sh. 600 for and on behalf of the Respondents in respect of part payment of a vehicle. Mr. Kubasu did not hand over this amount to the appropriate officer at the earliest opportunity. When in March 1966, he was confronted with the receipt he had given for this amount in the customer's notebook, he admitted that he had received this amount 12 months before and had never paid it to the Respondents and had, in fact, spent it on his own personal needs. Mr. Kubasu signed a statement reading as follows:—

"I agree that I received Sh. 600 from Mr. Kinyanjui on 31st March 1965, in payment of his account for KHG 904.

I agree that I did not pay it to the Company. I am willing to pay when I get my commission on 16th March 1966."

Mr. Kubasu was summarily dismissed on 7th March 1966, and was given his pay up to the date of his dismissal. The Claimants intervened in this matter and stated that Mr. Kubasu should not lose any privileges which he had earned and, therefore, claimed:—

- (a) Payment for any leave due as at the date of dismissal; and
- (b) two months' pay in lieu of notice.

The Respondents made it clear that, they had acted very properly in summarily dismissing Mr. Kubasu and would not pay him anything more. The dispute was then referred to Mr. G. K. Nyawade for conciliation at the Ministry of Labour, who made a report. The Claimants, however, did not accept this report and the Parties decided on 16th August 1966, to refer this matter to the Industrial Court as well.

The Parties accordingly signed the notification of dispute form covering the aforesaid two issues in accordance with the Trade Disputes Act 1965.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANTS

4. (a) The Claimants submitted that, in the agreement made on 9th December 1964, it was not stated anywhere that employees would have to enter into a fresh contract with their employers signifying that they were new employees as from that date. They contended that, they had full mandate from their members to speak and act on their behalf and had signed the aforesaid agreement committing all their members to it. In these circumstances the Respondents had gone outside the scope of this agreement in requiring all their employees to sign new agreements which they had no business to do. When Mr. Ibrahim Hajee refused to sign such an agreement he was within his rights and the Respondents should have allowed him to resume work on the day he reported for duty. The Claimants stated that, there was absolutely no justification for the Respondents to ask their employees to sign new separate agreements and submitted that, this was a gross violation of the signed agreement between the Parties and, therefore, they demanded that the said employee should be paid from the time he was locked out, i.e. 12th December 1964, to the day he was allowed to go back on work. The Claimants pointed out that, Ibrahim Hajee had served the Respondents for over 20 years.

The Claimants also drew the Court's attention to the fact that, when investigation had been carried out into the stoppage of work, it was ruled that the stoppage was constitutional which meant that the employees, in accordance with the agreement quoted hereinabove, would be considered to have been reinstated without loss of any privileges. The Claimants also stated that, when the investigating committee's decision was made known, no further new agreements were required from the Respondents' employees. In these circumstances they requested the Court to confirm that their interpretation of this agreement was the correct one.

(b) The Claimants stated that, once the Respondents had settled the matter of £30 with Mr. Kubasu, then if they wanted to terminate his services, they should have given him the appropriate two months' notice or salary in lieu and also given him all the privileges like leave, etc., that he had earned up to the date of termination of his service. The Claimants alleged that the Respondents had acted unfairly in that, after obtaining an undertaking from Mr. Kubasu that he would refund this money, he was instantly dismissed with loss of all rights. The Claimants stated that, they were not satisfied with the decision given by the Ministry of Labour and had, therefore, thought it fit to bring the matter to the Industrial Court so that they could have a final ruling on this matter. The Claimants pointed out that, when they had inquired the reasons for Mr. Kubasu's dismissal, they were informed that it was on grounds of gross misconduct. The Claimants submitted that gross misconduct was constituted only under circumstances enumerated in section 49 (4) of the Employment Act, Chapter 226. The Claimants concluded their arguments by requesting the Court that as Mr. Kubasu's services had not been terminated properly, he should be awarded two months' pay in lieu of notice and all his leave entitlement that had accrued to him, which they stated was 42 days being two years' leave.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENTS

5. (a) The Respondents maintained that, the Claimants had specifically committed Mr. Ibrahim Hajee to return to work as a new employee which could only be effected by his entering into a new agreement and since he refused to sign a new agreement, the Respondents denied that he was locked out. The Respondents stated that, he had been offered new employment in accordance with the agreement which he refused. The Respondents submitted that, whether any other companies asked their employees to sign new employment agreements was not relevant, but the Respondents pointed out that, other companies also insisted on new agreements being entered into. The Respondents pointed out that, once it had been held that the strike was justified, all employees who had complied with the agreement by signing fresh contracts of service and started work as new employees, had been reinstated in pursuance to paragraph (b) of the said agreement.

The Respondents further submitted that, all they had required their employees to do was to regularize the position in accordance with the agreement entered into when employees decided to return to work. They were well within their legal rights in doing so and if an employee had refused to start work as a new employee, then he should be deemed to have done so at his own risk.

The Respondents conceded that when the strike had been found to be justified no letters of appointment had been issued confirming that employees had been reinstated, but stated that only a notice had been put on the notice board in the workshop where all employees could read it. The Respondents also argued that although the Claimants had the right to speak on behalf of their members, individual contracts between the Respondents and their various employees had still to be made in order to regularize the position. In these circumstances they submitted that, Mr. Ibrahim Hajee had not been wrongfully dismissed.

(b) The Respondents pointed out that, the question of section 49 (4) of the Employment Act had been raised by the Claimants when they insisted that Mr. Kubasu's dismissal was not justified. The Respondents submitted that, both the Parties had accepted that Mr. Kubasu's services had been terminated for good reasons. The issues to be decided by the Court on this matter were whether or not (i) an employee dismissed summarily for lawful cause was entitled only to wages which had already accrued and due and was not entitled to (a) any wages in lieu of notice, (b) any wages in lieu of leave not already taken and (ii) section 49 (4) of the Employment Act, Chapter 226, contained an exhaustive list of the circumstances in which an employee could be lawfully and summarily dismissed.

The Respondents drew the Court's attention to the fact that, this employee's case had been fully investigated and his summary dismissal for just cause had been confirmed by the conciliator and appeal to the Minister had been rejected.

The Respondents submitted that, in cases of summary dismissal no notice whatsoever was required to be given to any employee and it was immaterial whether or not there was a specific provision in the agreement between the Parties to this particular effect. The Respondents had paid to Mr. Kubasu all the wages accrued to him up to the time of his lawful summary dismissal, therefore, there was no question of awarding him two months' wages in lieu of notice.

On the question of Mr. Kubasu's leave entitlement, the Respondents drew the Court's attention to the agreement between the Parties whereby it was provided in clause 5 (g) that annual leave must be taken in the year in which it was due except that, by prior arrangement with the Management up to two years' leave entitlement may be accumulated and permission for such accumulation shall not be unreasonably withheld. The Respondents pointed out that, as far as their records were concerned, no such prior arrangement had been made by Mr. Kubasu with the Management and, therefore, in accordance with clause 5 (h) Mr. Kubasu forfeited his leave. Regarding this employee's leave entitlement for the year during which he was dismissed, the Respondents argued that, their obligations were to allow employees to go on leave and to pay them for such absence. But in this case Mr. Kubasu had, by his own actions, deprived the Respondents of an opportunity of sending him on leave. The Respondents argued that, therefore, Mr. Kubasu was not entitled to any payment in lieu of leave that had accrued to him.

The Respondents submitted that, section 49 (4) of the Employment Act, although not applicable to the case of this particular employee, did not contain an exhaustive list of what constituted gross misconduct. They argued that the law did not attempt to lay down all the actions which constituted gross misconduct or which could under certain circumstances come under this heading; therefore, the circumstances leading to the dismissal of Mr. Kubasu were properly within the definition of gross misconduct. Mr. Kubasu had committed serious breach and neglect of his duties in not handing over the money at the first opportunity to the appropriate officer entitled to receive it. The Respondents quoted passages from Halsbury volume 25, note 518, and from the "Law of Master and Servant" by Diamond, pages 185 to 188, and requested the Court to find in their favour on this issue.

AWARD

6. Issue (a).—The Court, after having given a careful consideration to all the submissions made by both sides, finds that once a Union has entered into an agreement on behalf of its members, then such members are committed to that extent. There is no need for further amendments to be made in the individual contracts of the various employees. Any amendments, if necessary, are implied terms of the individual contracts. In this case the agreement was very clear that all employees resumed work as new employees but on the condition that if the stoppage was found to be constitutional, then they would be reinstated in service without the loss of any past privileges. If the Respondents had not issued the new letters of appointment after 9th December 1964, the position would still have been the same as agreed by the Claimants on 9th December 1964. The Respondents have put forward the plea that if they had allowed their employees to resume work without signing of the new letters of appointment, and the decision of the investigating committee had gone against them, then they would have found themselves in a most difficult position. The Court is not prepared to accept this argument because the agreement of 9th December 1964, is quite clear and unambiguous and the Court fails to see what difficulties would have arisen.

In these circumstances, if an employee stated that as his Union had committed him to certain conditions, he was not prepared to enter into another superfluous agreement, he was entitled to do so. Moreover, the Respondents have conceded that once the decision of the investigating committee was known, they did not require their employees, who had signed the agreements of being new employees, to enter into any further agreements to regularize the position. The obvious inference is that in accordance with the agreement of 9th December 1964, once the stoppage has been found to be constitutional, then the employees are deemed to have been reinstated without loss of past privileges.

The Court, therefore, finds that the Respondents acted unreasonably in refusing Mr. Ibrahim Hajee to resume work without signing the "new employee" agreement and accordingly the Court endorses the Claimants' interpretation on this issue.

Issue (b).—On this issue the agreed facts show that the employee concerned Mr. Kubasu had committed a very grave and serious offence in that he used the Respondents' money and then after one year when this was found out he offered to refund it. In fact it is surprising that a criminal charge was not preferred against him. If the employers cannot take summary actions against their employees in these circumstances, then it would lead to an impossible situation. Strictly speaking Employment Act is not applicable in the case of this particular employee except that it can be used as a guide to ascertain what can constitute gross misconduct. The wording of section 49 (4) is quite clear in that it states that gross misconduct shall include an aggravated instance of any one of the following acts by an employee:

- (a) If, without leave or other lawful cause, he absents himself from his employer's premises or other place proper and appointed for the performance of his work;
- (b) if, during working hours, he unsuits himself for the proper performance of his work by becoming or being intoxicated;
- (c) if he neglects to perform any work which it was his duty to have performed, or if he carelessly or improperly performs any work which from its nature it was his duty, under his contract, to have performed carefully and properly;
- (d) if he uses any abusive or insulting language or is guilty of insulting behaviour to his employer or to any person placed in authority over him by his employer;
- (e) if he refuses to obey any command of his employer or of any person lawfully placed by his employer in authority over him, which command it was his duty to obey.

It is obvious that the list is not exhaustive. Many other acts come to mind immediately.

As far as the Claimants' contention that in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, no employee's services may be terminated in a manner other than the agreed is concerned, the position is that a master may dismiss a servant without notice, who is guilty of misconduct inconsistent with the fulfilment of the express or implied conditions of service. Dismissal on the grounds of misconduct is an implied condition of service. The Court, therefore, rules that Mr. Kubasu was rightly dismissed without any notice.

On the question of leave entitlement, an employer's obligation is to allow his employee to be absent from work for the number of days agreed and for which period the employer pays the employee his wages. The employer is not required to pay cash in lieu of leave unless the employee sues the employer for wrongful dismissal and succeeds. In this case the employee was lawfully dismissed summarily and he has, therefore, deprived the Respondents of the facility of allowing him to be absent from duty with pay. He is, therefore, not entitled to any leave pay for the year during which he was dismissed.

The Court has, however, some doubts regarding the leave entitlement of Mr. Kubasu in the previous year and, therefore, rules that if it can be established between the Parties that he did not proceed on leave due to exigencies of service, he is entitled to leave pay for that year. As the Parties did not go into sufficient detail on this point, the Court rules that this particular point should be disposed of between the Parties, if necessary, with the assistance of the Chief Industrial Relations Officer, Ministry of Labour.

Given in Nairobi this 19th day of October 1966.

This wage agreement came into effect on 1st November 1965 and was for an unspecified term.

The Claimants submitted their demands to the Respondents on 22nd January 1966. As "wages" was included amongst the 17 demands, the Respondents maintained that, in the absence of any clause on duration in the wage agreement, it must be assumed that the agreement would have a duration of at least one year and consequently they were not prepared to discuss wages again within 3 months of the agreement becoming effective. The Respondents also disclosed their unwillingness to discuss a revision of fringe benefits unless and until the duration of the wage agreement had been determined. Eventually the Parties agreed on 29th April 1966 that the wage agreement would be of 12 months' duration. It was also agreed that any agreement on fringe benefits (which would include any Industrial Court award on the same subject) would be effective as from 1st January 1966. The Respondents had proposed during discussions with the Chief Industrial Relations Officer that the fringe benefits agreement and the wages agreement should terminate on the same date, i.e. 31st October 1966. The Claimants, however, did not accept this and insisted that the fringe benefits agreement would run for 12 months only.

Negotiations on fringe benefits then commenced and six meetings took place between 3rd and 24th May 1966 and out of 16 items in dispute including wages, agreement was reached on 9 and deadlock was recorded on 5 and partial agreement was reached on 2 items. On 24th May 1966 the Parties agreed to refer the following 7 issues to the Industrial Court:—

1. Hours of Work.
2. Housing.
3. Annual Leave.
4. Safari Allowance.
5. Termination of Service.
6. Redundancy Pay.
7. Leave Allowance.

This dispute was registered as Cause No. 29 of 1966 and the Parties appeared before the Court on 27th June 1966. During the brief appearance in Court on that day, the President of the Court pointed out to the Parties that it would be a waste of time and Government funds for the hearing to proceed at that stage in view of the fact that any decision taken by the Court in the case would be effective only until 31st December 1966 after which the Claimants would again ask for another revision of fringe benefits. The Court also felt that the wages issue should also be gone into together with the revision of fringe benefits so that the Court would be aware of the overall cost of any increases to the Respondents.

The Parties then agreed to the following:—

- (a) That Cause No. 29 of 1966 should be considered as withdrawn and they would commence negotiations on wages with the object of reaching agreement prior to the date on which the present wage agreement was due to expire, i.e. 31st October 1966.
- (b) That in the event of an agreement having been reached on wages or in the event of deadlock, then the matter should be referred back to the Industrial Court for adjudication on all the issues left unresolved. The Parties agreed that the effective date in respect of fringe benefits would be 1st January 1966, but that both the agreements, that is, fringe benefits and wages would terminate at the same date, at the earliest on 31st October 1967, or on such date as the Parties may agree.

In pursuance of the above arrangement the Parties discussed the question of wages, but unfortunately only one meeting took place as the Respondents insisted on the Claimants reducing their demands to a realistic level and the Claimants' insistence on first getting a counter offer from the Respondents before reducing their demands. The meeting ended in deadlock and although the Respondents wrote to the Claimants stating that they were still prepared to negotiate on the question of wages, the Claimants rejected this and insisted on the matter being taken to the Industrial Court immediately. In these circumstances the Parties signed the notification of dispute form on 12th August 1966 which included the issue of wages along with the previous 7 issues.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANTS

4. (a) Wages:—

The Claimants submitted that they had forwarded the following wage demands to the Respondents on 22nd January 1966:—

Manual and Artisan Grades

					Sh. per month
Grade I	..	..	..	..	400
Grade II	..	..	..	..	430

Grade IV	..	..	..	..	675
Grade V	..	..	..	..	835
Grade VI	..	..	..	..	1,075

The Claimants stated that, the Respondents had refused to discuss wage demands as the present agreement on wages was due to expire at the end of October 1966. However, after Cause No. 29 of 1966 had come up for hearing before the Court on 22nd June 1966, these demands had formed the basis of negotiations at a Joint Industrial Council meeting held between the Parties on the 28th of July 1966. The Claimants alleged that at this meeting the Respondents reiterated that these demands were unrealistic and that they were not prepared to negotiate on them unless and until the Claimants had modified them. Despite earnest pleas by the Claimants to the Respondents to make counter proposals, the Respondents had stood firm and had not moved from their original stand. The Claimants stated that, the Respondents had gone to the extent of refusing to sign the Industrial Court Form "A", after deadlock had been reached, until the Claimants had threatened to take very drastic action.

The Claimants submitted that, most of the profits the Respondents made went out of the country and the money that was badly needed for development, was lost. The only amount that remained in the country in this industry was in the form of money earned by workers through wages and the duties imposed by the Government on motor vehicles and spare parts. The Claimants stressed that the motor industry had been enjoying a business boom since independence and a great number of motor vehicles were being sold every day. The Claimants quoted the figures of the new motor vehicles registered during the month of April 1964 which were 670 and the new registrations during the month of April 1965 which were 975. In April this year, the new vehicles registered were 1,120. The Claimants stated that, this proved that there was a rise of 67 per cent in the import of vehicles from 1962 to 1965. The Claimants gave further details of the rise in the import of motor vehicles especially lorries and trucks and stated that, buses imported in the country during 1964 were valued at £37,791 as against those imported during 1965 which were valued at £241,788. The Claimants pointed out that, these vehicles did not include spare parts, tractors, motor-cycles, etc. They argued that these facts amply proved that the Respondents were doing extremely good business.

The Claimants further submitted that, since independence, the African workers were striving to raise their standard of living and whereas those persons employed in the Civil Service enjoyed very good salaries and terms and conditions of service, their counterparts in the Respondents' employment were far behind. This was leading to constant frustration. The Claimants urged that the workers should earn enough to be able to afford the necessities of life, such as, buying a radio set, newspapers and be in a position to attend cinema and other social activities after a hard day's work. These human necessities had been denied to the workers by greedy employers for a long time. In addition to the foregoing, the Claimants stated that, school fees, G.P.T. and the cost of living had gone up considerably. The cost of living index in Nairobi had risen from 103 points in December 1960 to 115 points in December 1965. Further the rents had risen between 25 per cent to 75 per cent. The Claimants also argued that under Kenya's Revised Development Plan, £20,000,000 is to be spent on improving and extending road communication. This would lead to more business for the motor trade. The Claimants asked that if the Ford Motor Group and Marshalls could pay to their lowest worker in Britain and France wages between £12 and £20 per week, why could the same companies not pay a minimum wage of £20 per month to their employees in Kenya. The Claimants stated that, any increase in duties and other costs were automatically passed on to the customers by the Respondents and, therefore, they would lose nothing.

The Claimants stated that, they were aware that redundancies had been declared recently in several member companies of the Respondents as a result of wage rises last year, but pointed out that, the Respondents were threatening them with further redundancies if any wage demand was accepted and that the Respondents had prepared the ground for this by having declared redundancies earlier on so that the Industrial Court could be misled. The Claimants concluded by saying that in their view they had successfully established the case for wage increases in all categories as demanded by them and requested the Court to make its award accordingly.

(b) Hours of Work.—The Claimants stated that, at present all employees other than petrol pump attendants and day and night watchmen, worked 44 hours per week. The petrol pump attendants and day watchmen worked 48 hours per week. Unprotected night watchmen worked between 45 and 50 hours and night watchmen protected worked 60 to 70 hours per week. The Claimants' demand on this issue was that all employees should work the same number of hours per week and that they had proposed that this be 40 hours.

The Claimants complained that the Respondents again had completely rejected any discussions on this demand. The Claimants argued that, the 3 categories of watchmen were being exploited to such an extent that it looked like slavery. The Claimants pointed out that, the Respondents should engage enough workers so that the watchmen could work in shifts as it was inhuman to expect a person to work between 45 to 70 hours per week. Moreover, these watchmen were not paid any overtime. The Claimants stated that, they had pressed for a 40-hour week because, due to low wages, the employees in this country could not afford to travel in buses, as many of them, due to accommodation difficulties, lived far from their places of employment. In these circumstances the workers needed time to cover the distances involved before they could report on duty. The Claimants stated that, in the Dock Industry, the E.A. Industries Limited and the Oil Industry a shift system was in operation and everybody worked equal hours per week. The Claimants reminded the Court that the Government was committed to improve the working conditions of all the workers in this country and the Court would be doing its duty if it awarded a 40-hour working week.

(c) Housing.—It was the Claimants' submission that it was no longer realistic to include a housing element in the minimum wage as house rents had jumped up considerably. They quoted a report in a local newspaper which stated that, rents had risen by anything from 25 per cent to 75 per cent. The Claimants said that, in Nairobi rents varied from Sh. 39 per month at Bahati, Mbotela, etc., to Sh. 351 per month at Woodley and Jeevanjee Estates. The Claimants asked the Court to consider the position of a man with school age children staying in a single room. If the Court was satisfied that it was morally wrong for such a man and wife to live with their grown up children in one room, then the Court should accept the fact that this family should live in a bigger house. The Claimants argued that, if Sh. 39 were deducted from a minimum wage of Sh. 250, there was hardly any money left for an employee to meet his basic necessities. The Claimants also asked the Court to keep in mind that everybody could not have a municipal or city council house.

The Claimants thought it fit to mention that the motor companies involved in the dispute were international companies and most of the profits they made went to the shareholders outside the country. The Claimants pointed out that, the Oil Industry paid Sh. 65 per month by way of housing allowance to its employees in the operative grades and Sh. 60 per month to clerical staff. The Claimants submitted that on the present remuneration the employees could not afford to live with their families in one place and this was causing a lot of domestic and social trouble amongst the family units.

Finally, the Claimants argued that, if some of the Respondents' members could provide houses for their members, there was no reason why the others could not invest money in housing estates for housing their workers. If the Court were to award a housing allowance, then these employers would immediately start building their own housing estates.

(d) Annual Leave.—The Claimants stated that, all clauses regarding leave had been agreed between the Parties except the number of days to be granted annually. At present the employees were entitled to 21 days' annual leave, but due to the fact that the employees were engaged in strenuous work which entailed lifting heavy motor parts, the employees needed a longer resting period. Moreover, the employees had to maintain a second house back in the countryside because of the extremely low wages paid to them. The Claimants drew the Court's attention to the Oil Industry, the Dock Industry, the Tobacco Company, the Banks and the International Aeradio and stated that, in these industries 30 days' leave was being granted and as the motor industry was also at the same level, there was no reason why the leave entitlement should not be increased to 30 days per year. The Claimants argued that, until such time as the workers earned sufficient high wages, to be in a position to maintain a proper house in the towns where their families could live with them, demands for 30 days' leave would continue to be made. Moreover, a considerable amount of time was lost in travelling to and fro between the workers' homes and their place of work.

(e) Safari Allowance.—The Claimants submitted that, since the cost of living index had gone up considerably since the last Court award, the safari allowances should also go up. The Claimants stated that, these days comparatively cheap hotels in smaller towns outside Nairobi and Mombasa would cost one Sh. 12 and Sh. 17 for accommodation only, lunch and dinner would cost another Sh. 15. In these circumstances they demanded the following new safari allowance rates:—

- (i) For journeys between 6-12 hours—Sh. 20.
- (ii) For journeys 12 hours without night stop—Sh. 50.
- (iii) For journeys 12 hours with night stop—Sh. 80.

(f) Termination of Service.—The Claimants submitted that, it was their responsibility to try to better the conditions and terms of employment of their members and in pursuance of this responsibility, they had proposed that the present arrangement on the termination of service should be amended so that—

- (i) an employee who had served up to 2 years should be served with 1 month's notice or salary in lieu on termination of service;
- (ii) from over 2 years up to 5 years—2 months' notice or salary in lieu on termination of service;
- (iii) over 5 years—3 months' notice or salary in lieu on termination of service.

The Claimants submitted that, these were reasonable demands and, therefore, they should be granted. The Claimants further urged that, due to the unemployment situation in the country, it should not be easy for employers to terminate the services of their employees. Furthermore after 5 years' service an employee considered himself to be a permanent part of that firm and if an employer could sack him with only 1 month's notice, this would be cruel and inhuman.

(g) Redundancy.—The Claimants accepted that some employers declared redundancies genuinely, but there were others who just got rid of their employees whom they did not like under the guise of redundancy. The Claimants pointed out that, they had made an interim agreement with the Respondents under which it had been agreed that the Respondents would give 15 days' notice to the Claimants of the intention to declare redundancy, but in spite of this agreement, some members of the Respondents had been declaring redundancies without warning to the Claimants. They stated that, such instances had taken place in companies like Hughes Limited, D. T. Dobie (E.A.) Limited, Motor Mart and Exchange Limited and Cooper Motor Corporation. The Claimants, therefore, asked the Court that before any redundancy was declared, the employer concerned should give to the Claimants two months' notice of intention to declare redundancy. This period would give the Claimants enough time to take the matter up with the Respondents with a view to finding a satisfactory solution. The Claimants also sought an amendment to the existing agreement so that any employer wanting to declare redundancy, should furnish to the Claimants facts supported by figures. Finally, the Claimants stated that, they had demanded the following new rates when an employee was declared redundant:—

- (i) Employees with 1 to 3 years' service—1 month's salary for each year of service.
- (ii) Employees with 4 to 5 years' service—2 months' salary for each year of service.
- (iii) Six years and above—3 months' salary for each year of service.

Any period of service exceeding 6 months should be counted as a complete year for the purpose of calculating redundancy pay.

(h) Leave Allowance.—The Claimants stated that, due to the poor remuneration which was paid to their members, they could not go on leave. They were thus deprived of the opportunity of travelling and seeing new places in the country. Realising the financial difficulties of the workers in the country, many employers were paying leave allowance to their workers in addition to wages. The Claimants cited various industries which paid leave allowance to their employees. The Claimants specifically pointed out that, the Kisumu Group of the Motor Trade and Allied Industries and the Kericho Group of the same industry, had agreed to pay a leave allowance to their employees. The Claimants said that, if smaller firms in the motor industry could pay this allowance they could not see any objection on the part of the Respondents' members accepting this allowance. The Claimants argued that the workers were entitled to have a reasonable share in the profits of an enterprise. This could be granted to them in the form of a bonus, housing, leave allowance, etc. The Claimants submitted that, the Respondents were aware, after having signed a separate agreement on fringe benefits, that they would have to face demands like the present one in future. The Claimants stated that when they had voluntarily signed the wages agreement last year, they had hoped that there would be a considerable improvement in the fringe benefits. They also pointed out that, when the wages agreement was being discussed, the Respondents had stated that they first wanted to know how they stood on this question before they could make any offers on the fringe benefits which also involved money. Now the Respondents were trying to back out completely from the assurance they had given at that time.

The Claimants demanded that the employees in receipt of salary up to Sh. 605 per month should get Sh. 100 leave allowance per year and employees earning more than Sh. 605, should get Sh. 150. The Claimants again cited the Oil Industry, the Tobacco Industry, the Banks and the Pharmaceutical Industry in support of their demand and stated that, many firms which were extremely small as compared to the motor industry, were also paying this allowance to their employees.

(i) Duration of Agreement.—The Claimants stated that, they would have no objection to a 2-year period being specified as the duration of the agreement resulting through the Court award, provided that the Court granted an appropriate increase in wages for the various grades. They pointed out that, it had already been agreed between the Parties that the fringe benefits would be with effect from 1st January 1966 and as it was the desire of both Parties that both the agreements covering fringe benefits and wages should co-terminate, the Claimants would like the Court to keep in mind the fact that the agreement on fringe benefits would thus be running for two years or probably more. They requested the Court to be sympathetic towards them on this point.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENTS

5. (a) Wages.—The Respondents submitted that, the Claimants were wrong in taking it for granted that there should be a wage revision in favour of the workers every year and pointed out that, there was no agreement supporting this arrangement. The Respondents also challenged the whole series of misstatements on the subject of profits which it was alleged the motor industry was making. The Respondents emphatically denied that most of the profits went to shareholders outside the country. They pointed out that, there are in Kenya four large Public Limited Liability Companies whose shares are quoted on the Nairobi Stock Exchange and between these four they handled a very large proportion of motor-car and commercial vehicles sales. The equity in these four companies was held as follows:—

- (i) In two cases the overseas shareholding was about 60 per cent and the local shareholding was about 40 per cent.
- (ii) In the other two cases, the proportions were roughly reversed—30 per cent or less overseas and 70 per cent or more locally.

The Respondents stated that—

- (a) out of every £100-worth of business done (i.e. turnover) the Respondents showed a nett profit of £7;
- (b) out of that £7, £3 went to the Government in the form of Corporation Tax;
- (c) expansion costs accounted for £1;
- (d) £1.5 was set aside as Reserves or used for reinvestment (in East Africa) and for financing of new stocks, etc;
- (e) £1.5 was paid out as dividend to the Shareholders.

The Respondents produced before the Court figures extracted from the 1965 annual accounts of a member company which showed that the Claimants' statements were fanciful and far from the truth. This company had paid customs duties and income tax amounting to £615,550, salaries and wages paid to employees amounted to £499,552 and nett dividends paid to shareholders £78,000. The Respondents pointed out that, it was the declared intention of the Government to encourage development, and development needed overseas capital to be invested in this country. The purchase of shares by overseas residents or the overseas companies in such enterprises in Kenya were but two of the ways in which the Development Plan could be assisted.

The Respondents submitted that, the number of new vehicles imported or registered or sold by any motor importing company, had no bearing whatsoever on the wages paid to or fringe benefits, enjoyed by vast majority of employees. The Respondents point out that, the idea which all companies hoped for but never achieved in Kenya, was that the spares and service departments should cover both their own direct costs and overheads and also the main overheads of the business thus enabling the company to make its profit on the sale of vehicles, as motor companies did elsewhere in the world. But in Kenya it was the profit made on new vehicles which subsidised the service side and helped to pay the wages of the mechanics, etc. The Respondents requested the Court to bear in mind that substantial increases in wages and salaries were granted as recent as 1st November 1965, therefore, any changes in the cost of living, etc., prior to that date should be considered irrelevant and valueless. The Respondents contested strenuously all the figures produced in connexion with vehicles registrations and stated that, all these figures were misleading in one way or another and the Court should, therefore, ignore them.

The Respondents pointed out that, they did not receive any demands or discuss with the Claimants in respect of service line operators, salemen, assemblers, watchmen and drivers until the receipt by them of the Claimants' final submissions. The Respondents requested the Court to consider carefully what took place at a very short meeting held on the 28th of July 1966 to discuss wages. They stated that, the Claimants had ended the meeting by declaring deadlock, but the Respondents did not accept this and had notified the Claimants to change their attitude so that negotiations could proceed on more realistic basis. In the absence of any modification the Respondents considered the Claimants' demands as unrealistic and as unworthy of consideration.

The Respondents stressed the fact that, if they could be assured of stable conditions so far as wages and terms and conditions of service were concerned for a reasonable period, their members were prepared to support a small increase in wages provided it was tied to a wage freeze for two years. This was submitted in spite of the fact that the Respondents saw no reason for any increase at the present time (except for certain increase as may be comparable with the very slight rise in the cost of living during the last 12 months), but the Respondents acknowledged that a small increase sometimes had to be granted without any justification which could be measured in terms of hard cash. The Respondents only hoped that productivity would increase accordingly.

The Respondents put forward the following reasons why wages should not be increased at the present time:—

- (a) It was evident that the wages paid by them were already higher than were necessary.
- (b) The Respondents' members had to compete with other firms who were not their members and who could get away by paying lower wages than the Respondents' members.
- (c) There were in Nairobi four firms who were importers of motor vehicles and did a considerable amount of business and yet they were not members of the Respondents.
- (d) There were innumerable back-street garages both in Nairobi and in the provincial towns, none of which was prepared to join the Respondents and pay higher rates than those laid down in the Wages Council Order nor for that matter were they prepared to give fringe benefits as high as the Respondents.

The Respondents requested the Court to reject any attempts which had been made by the Claimants to introduce any regrading of employees in the present dispute as it was not one of the issues. The Respondents strongly rejected the demands made by the Claimants in respect of wages for watchmen and drivers.

(b) Hours of Work.—The Respondents stated that all employees with the exception of security staff and shift workers on petrol pump service, worked a 44-hour week. This was the award of the Court in Cause No. 17 of 1964 together with an interpretation thereon dated 1st July 1965. The Respondents submitted that, in the context of the stage of development which this country had reached, there could be no justification for the reduction in hours of work.

(c) Housing.—The Respondents drew the Court's attention to the fact that ever since February 1963, it had been accepted by the Parties that the basic minimum wage included an element of housing allowance. During the negotiations of minimum wage rates in 1965, the Claimants had raised the question of a housing allowance, but had subsequently dropped the issue completely. In view of this the Respondents submitted that, it was quite clear that the principle of a wage rate which included an element for housing had been accepted by both Parties and that to introduce a separate housing allowance would be a retrograde step.

The Respondents pointed out that, it was recognized by the Government that the provision of housing was a responsibility of the Government and not that of the employer and, therefore, the Government's statutory housing allowance (which was the amount correctly deducted by Hughes Limited and Cooper Motor Corporation) was only intended to be a contribution towards the expense of housing in respect of those workers who were unfortunate enough to be on the general minimum wage which at present stood at Sh. 115 per month. Finally, the Respondents submitted that, the consolidation of housing allowance and the wage was in accordance with the modern practice both here and elsewhere and, therefore, the Claimants having agreed to it, could not change their mind at this stage in an unscrupulous attempt to obtain a double wage increase.

(d) Annual Leave.—The Respondents pointed out that, in Cause No. 17 of 1964 the Court had awarded 21 consecutive days' leave and submitted that, this constituted a very reasonable leave period.

(e) Safari Allowance.—The Respondents submitted that, the Claimants had produced no reasonable arguments to justify their demands under this issue. The existing rates provided for employees to be reimbursed for meals taken at a regular interval and a further amount was paid in respect of accommodation when an employee had to spend a night away from his home. The Respondents submitted that, the existing rates of allowance for unionizable employees were adequate. The Respondents produced actual charges incurred by a Senior Supervisory Salesman (non-employed by a member of the Respondents) whilst on safari between 30th November 1965 and 12th December 1965, and submitted that, the Court should reduce the existing safari allowance in respect of journeys in excess of 12 hours including an overnight stop from Sh. 30 per night to Sh. 20 per night.

(f) Termination of Service.—The Respondents stated that, the present arrangement was as a result of the Court award in Cause No. 17 of 1964 and they were unable to see any justification for the Claimants' current demands. The Respondents stated that, the present notice periods were more generous than those which were to be found in many other trades or industries.

(g) Redundancy.—The Respondents pointed out that, in Cause No. 17 of 1964 the Industrial Court had awarded 15 days' basic pay for every year of service under this issue. On 22nd January 1966, the Claimants had made demands for—

- (a) two months' notice of intention to declare redundancy;
- (b) various minor matters of procedure;
- (c) one month's pay per year of service.

The Parties had met and had negotiated an agreement which was signed on 24th May 1966 under which it was provided for:—

- (a) 15 days' notice of intention to declare redundancy.

- (b) Matters of procedure all agreed.

- (c) Deadlock on the amount of pay—"No agreement was reached on the question of redundancy pay. The Union demanded 1 month per year of service whilst the award of the Industrial Court provided for 15 days".

The Respondents denied that this agreement was an interim agreement and submitted that, the Claimants had changed their demands so often on this issue that it appeared that they had no idea at all of what they wanted. Accordingly the Court was requested by the Respondents to uphold its previous decision in Cause No. 17 of 1964 as circumstances had not changed in any way since the award was made in March 1965.

(h) Leave Allowance.—The Respondents submitted that, in Cause No. 17 of 1964 they had made the following submission under this issue:—

"The Association has never accepted the principle of the payment of travelling allowances when proceeding on leave and no member company of the Association pays any such allowance to its employees. The payment of a leave allowance seems to have originated from the payment of his fare at the end of a contract to an employee who was returning to his home district from which he had originally been recruited. There is a considerable difference between the payment of a fare to a man to enable him to return to the place where he was recruited and the payment of an allowance to all employees when proceeding on leave."

The Association submits that the vast majority of employees are now recruited from the area or town in which they work. How and where they spend their leave is their affair and it is up to them to make provision for their expenses whilst they are on leave."

The Court had made a nil award on this item and the Respondents submitted that, the position had not changed in any way ever since that time.

(i) Duration of Agreement.—The Respondents requested the Court to fix the duration period of its award on wages agreement and on matters covered by the fringe benefits agreement for a period of two years as from 1st November 1966. The Respondents were aware that the fringe benefits agreement was effective from 1st January 1966, but they submitted that, the employees would suffer no hardship if this agreement were also to terminate with the wages award.

AWARD

6. The Court has very carefully considered the submissions made by the Parties and the evidence tendered in support thereof, and has decided not to make any award on the issues of hours of work, housing, annual leave, safari allowance, termination of service, redundancy and leave allowance because the Court is satisfied that where on any of these issues benefits are being granted they are at a reasonable level. The other fringe benefits, on which the Claimants are seeking to get an award for the first time, have been taken into consideration by the Court in assessing the wage increase.

The Court awards a wage increase of Sh. 35 per month to all employees including those in respect of whom there was some doubt as to whether or not the Claimants had made any demands.

As it has been agreed between the Parties that the agreement on fringe benefits is effective from 1st January 1966, and the wage award is to be with effect from 1st November 1966, the Court awards that both the fringe benefits agreement and the Court award shall terminate on 30th April 1968.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 4035

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form T.M. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make, if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Offices, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in Part A of the Register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for Part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.
