GAZETTE NOTICE No. 1290

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 106 OF 1988

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers
and
Kenya Stationers Limited

Issue in dispute:

Termination of service of M. J. Khambaita.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Kenya Stationers Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

After a preliminary ruling on the matter was delivered in favour of the claimants and several adjournments, the parties were eventually heard in Nairobi on 6th and 23rd November, and 7th December, 1989. In addition, the parties called the following witnesses to give evidence on oath:

Claimants—M. J. Khambaita

AWARD

3. The Minister for Labour referred this dispute to the court on 16th December, 1988, in accordance with section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act. The Minister's reference was received by the court on 19th December, 1988, together with the statutory certificates signed by himself and the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a limited liability company duly incorporated in Kenya, and are engaged in supplying raw materials to printing and packaging industries in the country.

The court notes that, although the claimants reported the dispute now before the court, they had no recognition and collective agreements with the respondents. However, they submitted that the grievant had maintained his union membership with them prior and after his employment with the respondents.

The grievant was employed by the respondents on 1st March, 1978, as an office manager, and at a monthly salary of Sh. 4,000. He worked in this capacity and received salary increments during his period of employment with the respondents; and at the time of termination of his service on 30th September, 1986, he was earning a salary of Sh. 6,750 per month.

The respondents stated that the grievant's termination of services was not wrongful as alleged by the claimants because "he personally asked for his services to be terminated due to ill health and age." The claimants denied that the grievant requested for his retirement; and their attempts to resolve the matter with the respondents at their own level was not successful. The dispute was then reported to the Minister for Labour, whose decision was unacceptable to the claimants and the matter was finally referred to the court for final determination and disposal.

In this dispute the court notes that the grievant worked for the respondents for a period of almost nine years without any warning whatsoever. His services were terminated by the respondents on 30th September, 1986, allegedly on his own request due to poor health and old age. The grievant denied that he requested the respondents to terminate his services as alleged. On the contrary, he argued that it was in fact the respondents who offered him retirement on good pension. The grievant told the court that he felt greatly disappointed and injured because the respondents hood-winked him into discussing and accepting such an attractive proposal, only to be served with a letter of termination of his services. However, the respondents conceded that on or about 20th September, 1986, a discussion took place between the grievant and their Mr. Anoop Shah regarding the grievant's future, but denied that they made an offer of retirement to the grievant.

The grievant's temporary sick off has been a vexed problem to the court. In his evidence, the grievant told the court that he was incapacitated by temporary sickness due to some misfortunes which occurred in his family. This court is not, however, concerned with the misfortunes that led to his sickness, but, in accordance with the evidence on record, the grievant's illness was not a prolonged one which would have occasioned a very serious interruption of his capacity to work and automatically terminate the employment contract. Although Mr. Anoop Shah, who gave evidence on behalf of the respondents, denied that he saw the grievant's sick-off certificates from the doctor, he, however, admitted during the hearing that the grievant had been unwell for some time. Under the circumstances, and on the facts of the present case, the court has no doubt in coming to the conclusion that the respondents were well aware of the grievant's temporary sick off. The court is further convinced that the grievant handed over to the respondents the original sick-off certificates from his doctor; and the upshot was the arrangement to retire him.

Another very intriguing point in this matter is the conversation which took place between the grievant and Mr. Anoop Shah on or about 20th September, 1986. The grievant told the court that the respondents offered him a good pension on retirement; but on the other hand, Mr. Anoop Shah informed the court that the grievant requested for termination of his services on the grounds of poor health and old age. In fact, it boils down to the grievant's word against Mr. Anoop Shah's. Certainly one of the two witnesses was not telling the court the truth of what transpired on that date; and, because of the big doubt which they have created in the court's mind on this material point, the court has on the balance of probabilities decided to give the grievant that benefit of the doubt.

In the court's opinion, the grievant did not correctly understand and appreciate the respondents' position during their discussion because, if he did, he would not have agreed to the termination of his services under the terms which the respondents offered him in their letter of termination. The respondents were under an obligation, at the time of the discussion, to clearly disclose to the grievant the terms under which his contract of employment was to be terminated; but because of their non-disclosure, there was a mistake which operated so as to negative or nullify the grievant's consent.

This court has repeatedly said that a man has a right to work, which the court will protect; and the court has also every right to satisfy itself that an order terminating the services of an employee is not passed merely to camouflage an order for dismissal for misconduct. Thus an attempt by an employer, either with or without notice, to "dress up" a dismissal as resignation or termination of contract by mutual agreement will be ineffective if it is in fact employer initiated. It is not just enough for an employer to say that he has complied with his legal obligation as far as the termination of employment is concerned. An employer should have a justifiable cause or reason because loss of employment in a young country like Kenya is a very serious matter as far as an employee and his family are concerned.

The claimants have also pressed for the grievant's leave entitlement for the years 1985 and 1986. But the respondents strongly contested the demand by arguing that the grievant took all his leave for the two years. In support of this contention, they produced a certified photo-copy of a memo dated 15th February, 1985, and 26th February, 1986, in which the grievant was advised to take his leave for the two years. Although there is no conclusive evidence on record to show that the grievant actually proceeded on his leave as requested, the court is convinced that the grievant took one month's leave for the year 1985, but cannot positively find that he proceeded on his annual leave for 1986.

The grievant is sixty-three years of age who had faithfully and satisfactorily worked for the respondents for almost nine years. He has impressed the court as a simple and honest man, and at that age, it is not easy for a man to find an employment however healthy and able he may be. His position is entirely different from that of, for example a young man who can seek employment in a wide field.

For the foregoing reasons, and also taking into account the Ministry's recommendation and the respondents' offer of terminal benefits to the grievant as contained in their letter of termination, dated 30th September, 1986, the court has come to the conclusion that the respondents have wrongfully terminated the grievant's services, and, in the circumstances, awards that his termination of services be reduced to normal retirement and he should be paid his retirement benefits as follows:

- (a) One month's salary in lieu of notice.
- (b) One month's salary in lieu of accrued leave for the year 1986.
- (c) Ten days severance pay for each completed year of service, that is three months' salary.

The court also awards that the respondents should pay the grievant eight months salary by way of compensation for the wrongful termination of his services he has suffered.

The foregoing total amount shall be subject to the usual statutory deductions and any outstanding loan to the respondents and the court directs that the amount due and payable to the grievant should be paid forthwith.

Finally, the court would like to point out that it is the practice among many employers that, in addition to giving an employee his benefits, some generous consideration arising out of sheer sympathy would also be given, for example, ex-gratia payments, in this dispute, the yearly bonuses and ex-gratia payments were entirely at the discretion of the respondents whether or not to give them. There was no automatic entitlement to them by the grievant. Thus in view of the fact that the respondents felt that the grievant was not entitled to them, the court is unable to assist him as it would be creating an undesirable precedent to make an award on charity. Accordingly, the court is constrained to make a nil award in respect of these considerations.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 58 OF 1989

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers
and

Kabare Farmers Co-operative Society Limited

Issue in dispute:

Termination of services of Ben Ngochi Mbui.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Kabare Farmers Co-operative Society Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 8th November, 1989, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 9th January, 1989, and duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 27th July, 1989, along with the statutory certificates signed by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour.

The respondents are a farmers co-operative society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, Cap. 490, laws of Kenya, and affiliated to the Kirinyaga District Co-operative Union Ltd.

The parties signed a recognition agreement some years back and have since had several collective agreements between them.

The grievant was initially employed by the respondents in 1967 as an artisan on casual basis, at a salary of Sh. 80. He was subsequently employed on permanent terms and benefited from salary adjustments during his period of employment with the respondents; and, at the time of his termination of services on 1st March, 1986, he was earning a salary of Sh. 1,002 per month.

This dispute arose as a result of a letter which was written by the respondents to the grievant on 7th February, 1986, whereby he was retired under clause 15 of the parties' collective agreement with effect from 1st March, 1986.

In reply to the said letter of retirement, the grievant wrote to the respondents on 12th February, 1986, wherein he pointed out, inter alia, that he should have been given three months notice prior to his retirement. He also sought clarification of the effective date of his retirement, and requested for re-employment or one year extension to enable him clear his liabilities. The grievant did not, however, question the validity of his retirement. As regards the effective date of his retirement, the respondents wrote further to the grievant on 5th March, 1986, that his "retirement date would take place with effect from 1st March, 1986, but not 1st March, 1985, since there was a typing error."

The grievant referred the matter to the claimants whose effort to reach an amicable settlement with the respondents was fruitless. The matter was then reported to the Ministry of Labour as a trade dispute; and, after the usual investigation, the ministry recommended that the grievant "should be paid three (3) months salary as compensation for wrongful termination in addition to normal retirement benefits to which he is entitled as per the parties' C.B.A."

The recommendation was acceptable to the claimants, but the respondents rejected it as baseless and erroneous on the ground that the ministry's investigator failed to take into account that the claimants based their claim on an incorrect collective agreement of the Kirinyaga District Co-operative Union Limited whereas the parties had a valid collective agreement between them. In this dispute the court notes that the grievant had worked for the respondents for a period of twenty years; and on 7th February, 1986, he was served with a notice of retirement with effect from 1st March, 1986, for having attained the mandatory retirement age of sixty (60) years old. However, the grievant, who is alleged to be a war veteran because he fought during the second world war, contested the notice of retirement by arguing that, at the material time of his termination of service, he was below the retirement age of fifty five (55) years.

This case has really turned on the date of birth of the grievant. The claimants have attempted to make out a case that the date of birth which is indicated on the grievant's identity card was that of his elder brother. When the court asked the claimants if the grievant's elder brother will be called as a witness, they stated that they would call him if the court needed his evidence.

The court finds it very unsatisfactory that in a dispute of this nature the parties, particularly the claimants, did not call any witnesses. At least the grievant's elder brother should have been called by the claimants as a witness. For this reason, the court would like to clearly point out to the parties that it is no good telling the court that if the court wants any witness then they can call him to appear before it. It is up to the parties themselves to decide who they wish to call as witnesses to prove their respective allegations as it would not be proper for the court to guide and direct the parties on the kind and number of witnesses that they should call. The court has power to call any witness on its own volition, but this right is normally exercised very sparingly.

The purpose of clause 15 of the parties' collective agreement was intended to debar an employee from resorting to assessment of his age where there is some conclusive documentary proof of it, for example the National Social Security Fund records or identity card. To interpret the clause otherwise would offend against its meaning. If, as the claimants have urged the court to sustain, the grievant's date of birth on his identity card was incorrect, it would have been necessary and incumbent upon him in any event to correct this error before his termination of service.

The court has also considered the adequacy or otherwise of the notice of termination of the grievant's service, and notes that the respondents did not serve the grievant with one month's clear notice in accordance with the terms of the parties' collective agreement.

Having made these observations and after serious consideration of the parties' submissions and all aspects of this dispute, the court finds that there are no circumstances which would make it in any way necessary for the court to find in favour of the claimants; and, accordingly the court upholds the respondents' action in retiring the grievant, and awards and directs that he be paid all his consequential retirement benefits. In addition, the grievant should be paid one month's salary in lieu of notice.

The claimants' demand for reinstatement and payment of wages to the grievant for the period he has been out of work to date are not justified and they must fail.

Dated the 13th February, 1990.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT CAUSE NO. 76 OF 1989

Parties:
Kenya Shoe and Leather Workers Union
and Orbitsports Limited

Issue in dispute:
Retirement of Chacha Mohape Kisaka.

THE Kenya Shoe and Leather Workers Union shall herein-after be referred to as the claimants and the OrbitSports Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 8th February, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th July, 1989, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 17th October, 1989, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

Mr. Chacha was employed by the respondents on 12th May, 1978, as a ball stitcher earning Sh. 250 plus Sh. 70 house allowance per month. He was retired on 31st July, 1988, after serving the respondents for 10½ years. At the time he was retired Mr. Chacha was earning Sh. 1,164 plus house allowance of Sh. 280 per month.

The circumstances that led to the grievant being retired on medical grounds started on 29th November, 1982. It is alleged that Mr. Chacha was engaged in a physical fight with four other employees. As a result Mr. Chacha was injured to the extent that his left arm was fractured at the elbow joint which turned out to be a permanent deformity.

The dispute was reported to the Minister for Labour on 24th August, 1988. The dispute was investigated by the Ministry and on 2nd June, 1989, the findings and recommendations were released to the parties.

The Ministry's findings were that Mr. Chacha did not deserve to be retired on medical grounds and that his retirement on medical grounds was wrongful. It was recommended that Mr. Chacha be paid all his terminal dues as per the collective agreement. In addition he should be paid six months' pay by way of compensation for the loss of employment.

The decision was turned down by the respondents and the matter is now before the court for further consideration.

The court can find no evidence to show that Dr. Bodo had recommended the grievant's retirement on medical grounds—what the doctor said was that the grievant could not work as well as he used to do before injury. His letter certainly did not rule out light duties for the grievant. In fact, the grievant performed light duties of polishing finished balls for nearly six years.

It is obvious that the respondents were not happy at this state of affairs where an employee who suffered an injury as a result of a fight with other employees had to be kept in employment and placed on light duties. The respondents' attempt to transfer the grievant to the job of a gardener was frustrated by the grievant who refused to accept it and remained polishing balls for well over six months after this and the respondents took no action against him for this refusal and for continuing polishing balls against the respondents' wishes.

The court can appreciate that the respondents considered the grievant to be more of a liability but then they made an error in retiring him on medical grounds when the doctor had not certified to that effect.

Considering all aspects of this dispute the court finds that the grievant has suffered a wrongful retirement but a reinstatement under the circumstances of this dispute is not warranted.

The claimants have asked for severance pay of 20 days pay for each completed year of service as per the current collective agreement effective 1st June, 1988, for 24 months and 12 months salary by way of compensation. This claim, however, cannot be entertained because the grievant's purported retirement on medical grounds was not valid but he has in fact suffered a wrongful dismissal.

The court has therefore decided to award that the respondents should pay the grievant eight months salary and house allowance (8 x 1,444/-) amounting to Sh. 11,552 by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal he has suffered. This amount will be in addition to Sh. 3,412 already paid to him.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS TO THE KENYA GAZETTE

THE following notes are for the guidance of persons submitting "copy" for inclusion in the Kenya Gazette, Supplement, etc.:

- (1) The Kenya Gazette contains notices of a general nature which do not affect legislation. They are, therefore, submitted to the Government Printer directly.
- (2) Legislative Supplement contains Rules and Regulations which are issued by the central Government. Because of this they must be submitted to the Government Printer through the office of the Attorney-General.
- (3) Bill Supplement contains Bills which are for introduction in the National Assembly.
- (4) Act Supplement contains Acts passed by the National Assembly.

All "copy" submitted for publication should be prepared on one side of an A4 sheet no matter how small the notice or Act, each page being numbered, and should be typewritten with double spacing. Copy should be clear, legible and contain a minimum of alterations.

Particular attention should be paid to the following points:

- (i) Signature must be clarified by means of rubber-stamping or typing the name of the signer in capital letters.
- ii) Dates must be correct and filled in where necessary.
- (iii) Care should be taken to ensure that all headings to notices and references to legislation are up to date and conform with the Revised Edition of the Laws of Kenya.
