GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 2757

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 69 OF 1989

Parties:

Kenya Building, Construction, Civil Engineering and Allied Trades Workers' Union and

H. P. Gauff K. G.

Issues in Dispute:

- (a) Implementation of wages clause of the parties' collective bargaining agreement.
- (b) Implementation of housing allowance clause of the parties' collective bargaining agreement.
- (c) Implementation of overtime clause of the parties' collective bargaining agreement.
- (d) Method of calculation of payment of terminal and other benefits.

THE Kenya Building, Construction, Civil Engineering and Allied Trades Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the H. P. Gauff K. G. shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 14th March, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th October, 1988, and duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 15th September, 1989, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a firm of consulting engineers and have had a valid recognition agreement with the claimants since July 1977, and several collective agreements between them.

This dispute arose when the parties were negotiating for the renewal of their two years' collective agreement, for the period 1st July, 1985 to 30th June, 1987, which was belatedly signed on 13th March, 1986. During the negotiations the parties disagreed when the claimants demanded that the "personal monthly allowance" which was originally payable to some employees of the respondents on "ex-gratia" basis, depending on their performance, but later changed to read as above, should be treated as part of an employee's basic monthly wage/salary for purposes of computation of house allowance, overtime and payment of terminal benefits and also other deductions and taxation. They accused the respondents of failing to correctly implement the monetary clauses of the parties' collective agreement. But the respondents contended that the "personal monthly allowance" or "ex-gratia" payment was not part of the employees' basic monthly wages/salaries, but only a non-negotiable and discretionary payment. They maintained that, contrary to the claimants' contention, they have fully and scrupulously implemented all the clauses of the said agreement. The parties met at their own level with a view to resolving the dispute but no agreement was reached and the matter is now before the court for adjudication.

The issue for determination in this dispute as a whole is simple and clear: that is, whether or not "personal monthly allowance" or "personal performance allowance" should be treated as part of the employee's basic monthly salary/wage. In their submissions, the claimants conceded that, prior to the revision of the parties' collective agreement, this allowance was payable to the employees on "ex-gratia" basis but, on revision of the agreement, it was changed to read "personal monthly allowance", which formed a guaranteed part of the employee's basic monthly salary/wage. The respondents strongly denied that on revision the allowance became part of the employee's basic monthly salary/wage as alleged by the claimants. They maintained that, although the allowance was incorporated in the employee's basic monthly salary/wage for purposes of taxation and other lawful deductions, it did not constitute part of his basic monthly salary/wage, but remained an allowance.

In their submissions, the parties concurred that this allowance, that is, "personal monthly allowance" or "personal performance allowance" or ex-gratia" payment, meant one and the same thing. In Mitra's Legal and Commercial Dictionary 4th ed. at p. 317, "exgratia" is defined thus—

"as a matter of favour or grace."

This implies out of graciousness and absence of right. In the present case, it means that the respondents were under no legal obligation to pay the allowance to the employees, but in practice they often did. The purpose here was to induce the employees, through financial incentive, or reward, to produce work of the quantity above that which was specified.

Under the schedule of salary/wage increases to the parties' collective agreement, for the period under consideration, and clauses 4 and 20 thereof, it is provided as follows:

"..... monies paid in the form of other allowances shall not be regarded as monthly wage/salary."

On a very careful consideration of the parties' submissions and thorough perusal and scrutiny of the relevant provisions in the parties' collective agreement upon which the claimants have based their demands, and taking into account the nature of the industry or occupation in which the employees were engaged, the court is satisfied that the allowance which was referred to by the parties as "personal monthly allowance" or "personal performance allowance" or "ex-gratia" payments did not form part of the employee's basic monthly salary/wage, but fell under "other allowances" as prescribed in the parties' collective agreement.

For the employees, this allowance represented an extra income in addition to their basic monthly salaries/wages and, although the return from it might not be readily apparent to the employer, such benefits often have considerable value in promoting their morale.

Having come to the foregoing conclusion, the court finds no convincing reason to warrant its interference with the respondents' approach in implementing the provisions pertaining to the issues in dispute; and, accordingly, the claimants' demands stand rejected in respect of each of them.

Dated the 28th May, 1990.

Judge.

and Bidali and Co. Ltd.

Issues in Dispute:

House allowance.

Annual leave.

Sick leave.

Redundancy.

Basic minimum rates of pay.

General wage increases.

Effective date and duration.

THE Tailors and Textiles Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Bidali and Co. Ltd., shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 24th April, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form A dated 1st September, 1988, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 25th October, 1989, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents engage in the manufacture of fit-to-measure garments. Mr. Bidali, the sole proprietor of the respondents, employs a total of 19 workers who are affected by this dispute.

The parties entered into a recognition agreement on 27th March, 1984, and thereafter negotiated and concluded their first collective agreement. The agreement was effective from 1st August, 1984, for a duration of two years expiring on 31st July, 1986. The present dispute arose as a result of the parties attempt to renew the said collective agreement.

After a series of preliminary joint negotiating meetings at their own level which ended up in disagreement, the claimants reported a trade dispute over the seven issues now before the court.

The court appreciates the financial difficulties which are being faced by the respondents but after a careful consideration and evaluation has come to the conclusion that workers should be awarded a modest wage increase in line with the workers entitlement under the wages guidelines.

It would be grossly unfair to the workers for the court to make a nil award on all the issues and then freeze the parties collective agreement for a period of four years as prayed for by the respondents.

The court has carefully considered the various points put forward by the parties on the following four items and can find no convincing reasons to increase the level of these items any further from the present levels particularly in view of the financial position of the respondents. The court finds that these issues are adequately covered by the parties' collective agreement. The court accordingly rejects the claimants' demands on—

- Annual leave.
- Sick leave.
- Redundancy.
- Basic minimum wages.

House allowance:

The court after having considered carefully the parties arguments on this item awards an increase of KSh. 50 on the present house allowance of KSh. 200 to make it KSh. 250 per month.

General wage increase:

The court has carefully considered the points raised by the parties on this issue and has decided to make the following award.

The court awards that the respondents should grant their unionizable employees a general wage increase of 8.0 per cent for the first year and another 8.0 per cent for the second year.

The respondents will be entitled to off-set any wage increase that they might have granted the workers in the period between January this year to April 1990, from the awarded 8.0 per cent for the first year wage increase. The second year general wage increase will be granted without any deduction.

Effective date:

The court awards the effective date to be 1st January, 1990, with a duration period of two years from that date. Finally the court would advise the claimants to be reasonable in their demands so as not to frighten the respondents and the respondents are advised not to play a game of hide and seek with the claimants.

Dated the 30th May, 1990.
