INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 25 OF 1989

Parties:

Kenya Engineering Workers Union
and Motherstar Engineering Co. Ltd.

Issue in dispute:

Redundancy pay for 18 employees.

THE Kenya Engineering Works Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Motherstar Engineering Co. Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 6th February, 1990 and they relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 8th July, 1988, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 9th February, 1989, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The root cause of this dispute is a re-organization programme that was carried out by the respondents way back in 1975. As a result most of the jobs were affected and a substantial number of employees declared redundant.

This dispute revolves around the alleged refusal by the respondents to pay 18 employees their redundancy benefits.

This dispute although started in 1975 was reported to the Minister for Labour as a trade dispute on 29th August, 1985. The dispute was investigated by the Ministry of Labour and on 10th September, 1987, the findings and recommendations were released to the parties.

The Ministry's findings were that the 18 grievants were still in employment and had not been declared redundant. It was recommended that payment of redundancy pay was under such circumstances not due. This decision was turned down by the claimants and now the matter is before the court for further consideration.

The court fails to see how the 18 grievants who continued in employment of the respondents after 31st December, 1975, can be considered to have been declared redundant—only 44 employees were declared redundant and they were all paid their benefits.

It is obvious that the 18 grievants are just trying their luck in bringing this dispute which is nothing short of abuse of the process of the court.

This action is totally misconceived and the court is surprised that the claimants thought it fit to bring it up right to the industrial court level.

The court has no hesitation in throwing out this claim and the claimants demand is accordingly rejected.

Dated the 15th February, 1990.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 758

INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 40 OF 1989

Parties:

Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers.

and

Hilton International, Nairobi.

Issue in dispute:

Dismissal of Peter Githinji Mwangi.

THE Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Hilton International, Nairobi, shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi, on 13th September and 1st November, 1989, and relied on their written and verbal submissions. The respondents also called their personnel training manager, Elkana Wандери, to give evidence on oath.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 14th March, 1989, and duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 2nd June, 1989, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant was employed by the respondents as a painter on 1st November, 1984, at a salary of Sh. 900 and house allowance of Sh. 320 per month; and, at the time of his dismissal on 5th May, 1987, he was receiving a monthly salary of Sh. 1,240 and house allowance of Sh. 420.

The respondents alleged that the circumstances which led to the grievant's summary dismissal were that on 24th April, 1987, the grievant was assigned a painting job at the pool area of the hotel; but, after doing some very insignificant work, he abandoned it and went to sit or relax for a long time at the staff lockers downstairs between 9.30 a.m. and 3.00 p.m. They alleged further that, contrary to the claimants' written submission, the grievant did not go to the toilet wherein he mended two buttons which had fallen off his overall. In the circumstances, the maintenance engineer, Mr. Omondi, and the supervisor, Mr. Aoko, could not therefore find him at his place of work; and, for this reason, the grievant's services were terminated. The matter was subsequently referred to the J. I. C. sub-committee.

The claimants accepted the recommendation of the sub-committee that the grievant should be reinstated. However, the respondents rejected the recommendation as unfair and biased because it capitalized on the maintenance engineer's lapse of memory about the actual time he went to the pool area, and also for alleging that the grievant was not given an opportunity to be heard when in fact he was accorded such opportunity.

The matter was further reported to the Minister for Labour who appointed an investigator with a view to effecting a settlement of the dispute. On 3rd January, 1989, the chief industrial relations officer forwarded the following findings and recommendation to the parties:

"FINDINGS

It was established that Peter Githinji Mwangi was employed by Messrs. Hilton International as a painter in their maintenance department on 1st November, 1984, at a monthly salary of KSh. 900 plus KSh. 320 house allowance. His services were terminated on 4th May, 1987, after serving the company for 2½ years while earning a monthly salary of KSh. 1,240 plus KSh. 420 house allowance.

It was also established that Mr. Mwangi had been warned severally by his supervisors and department heads over his rude and unco-operative behaviour and the negligent performance of his duties. On 24th April, 1987, Mr. Mwangi was assigned a job to paint the pool area and later when the maintenance engineer went to check on him, he found him resting in the locker rooms. Mr. Mwangi on his part maintained that he was mending a button which had fallen off his overall, though this is not plausible because there is a house-keeping department whose work is, among others, to do repairs and mending of all torn garments in the hotel.

Though Mr. Mwangi was not a good worker and the management was not happy with him, their action of dismissing him ten days after the incident, keeping him in the dark and not giving him a chance to defend himself, was totally unprocedural and contrary to their collective bargaining agreement. The dismissal was therefore wrongful.

RECOMMENDATION

After careful consideration of the parties' submissions and the foregoing findings and taking into account the strained relationship between Mr. Mwangi and his employers, reinstatement cannot be recommended. However, it is recommended that Mr. Mwangi's dismissal be reduced to normal termination and he be paid all terminal benefits as provided by the parties' collective bargaining agreement. In addition he be paid two (2) months pay as compensation for wrongful dismissal."

The respondents accepted the above recommendation and communicated their acceptance to the claimants by a letter dated 11th January, 1989, to which they attached a revised termination notice in which the respondents added two extra months pay, that is four months compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The claimants rejected both the Ministry's findings and recommendation and the additional offer made by the respondents on the ground that the investigator did not take into account the sub-committee's findings and recommendation pertaining to the grievant's reinstatement.

The court has thoroughly analysed the parties' written and verbal submissions and the sub-committee's and the Ministry of Labour's findings and recommendation, and weighed the evidence adduced by Mr. Wандери for the respondents, and notes that the grievant's services were terminated for derelict of duty.

The court notes that the respondents issued their first letter of warning to the grievant on 10th October, 1986. On the following day, that is 11th October, 1986, the grievant promptly appealed through the workers' committee against the respondents' warning as stipulated hereinabove. The respondent did not communicate in writing to the grievant the results of his appeal, if any; and, in the circumstances, the warning is deemed to have been withdrawn.

There was a second warning issued by the respondents to the grievant on 26th January, 1987. The claimants strenuously argued that the grievant did not receive this warning because there was no evidence on record to show that he signed for its receipt as stipulated under clause 2 of the parties agreement.

The court notes further that there was an earlier letter of warning dated 6th May, 1986, which was issued to the grievant by the respondents' maintenance engineer, Mr. Omondi, but the parties did not lay any emphasis on it in their submissions; and accordingly, the court is of the view that this warning letter has no impact on this matter.

It is evident from the foregoing that the grievant was not served with any or proper warning letters in accordance with the warning procedure as laid down in the collective agreement between the parties; and under the circumstances, the court has no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that the respondents had violated the provisions of the collective agreement prior to the grievants' summary dismissal.

The court has seriously considered the evidence tendered by the personnel and training manager, Mr. Wандери, on behalf of the respondents; but, with due respect to him, finds that his evidence is of little value to the court because he had no personal contact with the grievant and the events taking place on the material date. However, it is not disputed that, at some stage on the material day, the grievant went to the toilet and the staff lockers. It is also not disputed that the grievant was found in the staff lockers by Mr. Omondi, mending buttons which had fallen off his overall. But the court is not convinced that the grievant spent almost the whole morning and part of the afternoon on 24th April, 1987, in the staff lockers and/or toilet, relaxing and chatting with his colleagues as it is alleged by the respondents.

In this dispute, the court feels that there was no other person who knew and understood the grievant better than the supervisor, Mr. Aoko. He was closest to and understood him; and, in the absence of his evidence to the court on the grievant's work performance, the court cannot, with certainty, find that the grievant neglected and abandoned his work for the alleged length of time. There is a big doubt in the court's mind on this point, and has decided, on the balance of probabilities, to give the grievant the benefit of the doubt.

All in all, the court has carefully considered all the submissions made by the parties, and weighed the evidence adduced on behalf of the respondents, and finds that the recommendation forwarded by the chief industrial relations officer of the Ministry of Labour to the parties, and the respondents' additional offer of two months pay is inadequate and will not meet the ends of justice in this case.

Accordingly, the court awards that, in addition to all his terminal benefits under the parties' collective agreement, the grievant should be paid six (6) months salary by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that he has suffered.

The court has seriously considered the question of the grievant's reinstatement; but, in view of the strained relations between him and the respondents, it has decided not to award his reinstatement.

Dated the 31st January, 1990.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 759INDUSTRIAL COURT*CAUSE No. 54 OF 1989*Parties:

Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers (Kudheiha)
and

Mary Immaculate Sisters, Bahati.

Issue in dispute:

Redundancy of Luke King'ori, Eunice Njeri and Teresia Wanjiru.

The Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers (Kudheiha) shall herein-after be referred to as the claimants and Mary Immaculate Sisters, Bahati, shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 18th October, 1989, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A", dated 17th January, 1989, and duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 13th July, 1989, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour.

The respondents are a Christian body associated to the Catholic Secretariat, who are members of the churches group of Federation of Kenya Employers. They engage in various social and charitable activities, for example, education and rehabilitation centres.

The grievants were engaged on diverse dates and terminated for disobedience as follows:

Name	Date of employment	Date of termination
1. Luke N. King'ori	November 1982	29th March, 1983.
2. Eunice Njeri	January 1980	29th March, 1983.
3. Teresia Wanjiru Njuguna	September 1981	29th March, 1983.

The first grievant was employed on a casual basis and rates, but the second and third grievants were engaged on regular employment as cooks for the respondents in their hostel at Bahati in Nairobi at a salary of KSh. 500 each. The grievants were provided with accommodation by the respondents and, under the circumstances, they were not entitled to house allowance.

The parties met at their own informal level for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the dispute, but they were unable to achieve a mutually acceptable compromise. The dispute was subsequently reported to the Minister for Labour, whose findings and recommendation are as hereunder:

"FINDINGS:

The fact that the management declined to disclose the circumstances leading to the termination of services of Eunice Njeri and Teresia Wanjiru has persuaded me to deduce that the union's claim on redundancy has not been contested by the management. Furthermore, the Employment Act provides that reasons for and circumstances leading to termination of employment must be notified in writing. This the management did not do for undisclosed reasons. From the parties submissions it is evident that the redundancy procedure outlined in the parties' collective agreement and in the law was not complied with.

In view of the above observations, it is conclusive that the above two employees suffered wrongful redundancy for which they should be compensated.

Investigations revealed that Luke King'ori was a casual employee and the question of redundancy did not arise.

RECOMMENDATION:

... it is recommended that Eunice Njeri and Teresia W. Njuguna should be paid two months salary each as compensation for wrongful redundancy.

In addition to terminal benefits to which they are entitled as per the parties collective agreement."

The Ministry's findings and recommendation were acceptable to the claimants but the respondents rejected them and the matter is now before the court for consideration.

The question for decision in this dispute is whether the grievants were actually declared redundant by the respondents, and if so, whether they are entitled to the awards prayed for by the claimants. The Trade Dispute Act, Cap. 234, defines, under section 2 thereof, "redundancy" as:

"the loss of employment, occupation, job or career by involuntary means through no fault of an employee involving termination of employment at the initiative of the employer where the service of an employee are superfluous, and the practices commonly known as abolition of office, job or occupation and loss of employment due to the Kenyanization of a business, but it does not include any such loss of employment by domestic servant."

It simply means an involuntary and permanent loss of employment caused by an excess of manpower. The situation can be brought about by many factors, such as a change in the method of working, reorganization and technological changes due to economic conditions. Although redundancy moves are generally made by the employer, it is a method of determining the employment contract.

The court has carefully considered the submissions made by the parties, and also perused the documents, especially the muster roll produced by the respondents, and is convinced that the respondents have proved positively that the grievants were terminated for disobedience and out of dissatisfaction with their services, and not because their jobs were no longer available. In the circumstances, and although all the three grievants were employed as regular employees and had continuous employment with the respondents, the question of redundancy does not therefore arise.

However, the court, while sympathising with respondents' spiritual virtues and norms, is reluctant to accept the manner in which the grievants' services were terminated. To warrant instant firing, the respondents must show that the grievants were guilty of such serious misconduct as to amount to a repudiation of their contracts of service. In other words, the grievants did something which struck at the very root of their contracts of service, that is, they destroyed it and by terminating them the respondents merely accepted the situation which they created.

The respondents' submission fell short of this standard and, under the circumstances, the court has come to the conclusion that the grievants' contracts of service should have been terminated by giving due notice or paying them in lieu of such notice.

In this case, the grievants had worked for the respondents for less than five (5) years each and they ought to have been given one month's notice before the termination of their services in accordance with clause 15 of the parties' collective agreement upon which the claimants have based their claim.

Having said so, the court awards that, in addition to their outstanding terminal dues, if any, the grievants should be paid an equivalent of one month's salary each in lieu of notice. The grievants are, however, not entitled to any annual leave because the records produced by the respondents to the court clearly show that they took their respective leave during their period of employment.

That is all that they can get.

Dated the 26th January, 1990.

APPLICATION TO INTRODUCE NEW METHODS OF CHARGE BY-LAWS TO ALL AREAS SUPPLIED BY THE LICENSEE

By-laws, 1990" which, if and when approved, will revoke the existing Methods of Charge (K.P.L.C.) By-laws, 1988.

The object of and reasons for the application are to achieve an overall increase in revenue which is necessary to enable the power industry to meet part of the development costs estimated at Sh. 3,360 million over the next five (5) years for new electricity generation and transmission projects. The effect of the Minister's approval of our application will be a general price increase of electricity at varying rates to all categories of consumers except domestic customers consuming less than 50 units per month. All other consumers will experience price increases ranging between 4 and 33 cents per unit. Details of the proposed tariff structure are contained in the proposed "Methods of Charge (K.P.L.C.), By-laws, 1990". These have been deposited at the offices of the licensee and are open to public inspection during normal office hours without payment.
