Mrs. Njoki worked for the Respondents from 13th January, 1969, until 6th November, 1978, when her services were terminated with immediate effect and she was told that she would be paid three months' salary in lieu of notice plus any other benefits due to her less any claims the Respondents had against her. She was also told to leave the Respondents' compound not later than 12 noon on 8th November.

The Claimants took up the question of her termination first with the principal and then with the Provincial Education Officer but were not successful with the result that on 19th March, 1979, they reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour on the following two issues:

(1) Violation of negotiated collective agreement with regards to allocation of duties.

(2) Termination of Mrs. Njoki's services on 6th November, 1978.

The Ministry's findings and recommendation were conveyed to the parties on 13th February, 1980, and the Ministry found that the decision of the Respondents' board of governors terminating her services should stand but she should be paid the difference in salary between housekeeper and assistant housekeeper from 16th June 1976, up to the date of the termination if her demotion affected her earnings. The Claimants accepted part of the recommendation and rejected the other and the dispute is now before the Court. The Claimants are now claiming a sum of Sh. 56,114.45 on her behalf on the ground that she had suffered a wrongful dismissal and also that she had been underpaid because although she was employed as a housekeeper she was paid throughout her service with the Respondents the scale of an assistant housekeeper. Their claim is made up as follows:

	Sh.
"Underpayments	17,612.80
3 months pay in lieu of notice	5,430.00
210 days annual leave	12,669.99
11 months full compensation	19,919.00
8 days worked	482.66
	56,114.45"

The Court has carefully gone through the bulky memoranda submitted by the parties especially the Claimants' and has also considered the evidence of Mrs. Njoki and Mr. Kiai who is the current principal of the Respondents.

The noteworthy points that have emerged are that although there was no established post of a housekeeper in the Respondents' undertaking the letter of appointment that was issued to Mrs. Njoki told her that she was being appointed as a housekeeper. The first paragraph of this letter reads as follows:

"You are hereby appointed housekeeper in the service of the Board of Governors of the College with effect from 13th January, 1969, at a salary of Sh. 766.65 p.m. in the scale £460 x 20 to 580 and your incremental date will be 1st January, your first increment being payable on 1st January, 1970."

It is not disputed that the above salary is that of an assistant housekeeper.

From then on there is a history of Mrs. Njoki's struggle to be given the duties of a housekeeper. She felt that some of the duties like supervision of health and welfare of women students, supervision of women dormitories, supervision of college kitchen staff and supervision of preparation of college food had not been handed over to her from another employee Benson who she claimed was not the qualified person to handle that.

This state of affairs continued with the Claimants coming to her assistance and during which period at least two principals changed until October 1975. During this period the Claimants even reported a trade dispute to the Ministry of Labour on the issue of violation of negotiated collective agreement with regard to allocation of duties. Then Mrs. Njoki accepted another letter of appointment from the Respondents as assistant housekeeper with effect from 24th October, 1975. This of course she did under protest having seriously objected to what she called was her demotion and for the first time she raised the question of her not having been paid as a housekeeper. In a letter dated 10th December, 1975, to the principal she wrote the following two paragraphs in the end:

"(1) Could I be told what have I done that I may be given the second letter of appointment as assistant house-keeper?

(2) Could I be paid for the period of 7 years I have served the college as housekeeper before I sign down the second offer of appointment?"

Mrs. Njoki's struggle continued with little success and towards the end of her services with the Respondents she was principal, Mr. Kiai, who had been acting in that capacity until elected secretary of the Claimants' works committee and then started coming into direct confrontation with the present May 1977, when he became full principal. From then on he received the full blast of Mrs. Njoki's frustrations. Her confrontation with Mr. Kiai involved some complaints made against her by some students that she did not attend to their needs and Mrs. Njoki's allegations against a certain member of staff having an affair with a girl student, denial of proper vehicle by the principal to transport a sick student to hospital, the alleged jealousy which Mr. Kiai had towards her because she managed to get a direct telephone line installed in her house while Mr. Kiai had to make do with just an extension and finally her clash with Mr. Kiai during her trade union activities.

The Court must say that Mrs. Njoki appeared to be an aggressive person and it is regrettable that her aggression was directed in the wrong channels because if she had applied this vigour to her job she might have achieved considerable success. Instead, she chose to confront her superiors with lengthy letters on her never ending grievances which she felt she had against the Respondents up to a point of proving a nuisance.

Mr. Kiai whose evidence impressed the Court stated that as a result of certain allegations which Mrs. Njoki had made against the acting principal that he was having an affair with a female student a committee of investigation had to be established to inquire into this serious allegation. The committee of investigation exonerated the acting principal and found the allegation baseless. On the question of Mr. Kiai being jealous of Mrs. Njoki on the question of a telephone, Mr. Kiai said that a direct telephone line was installed in his house years before Mrs. Njoki got hers.

The Court has carefully considered a couple of incidents when the principal had to disperse a trade union meeting because he had not been informed of it and the behaviour of certain members of staff including Mrs. Njoki relating to that incident and the Court is satisfied that there is no question of Mrs. Njoki having been victimized for her trade union activities.

In view of the fact that there was no post of a housekeeper at the Respondents' undertaking and that Mrs. Njoki did not claim the housekeeper's salary until she was asked to sign the second letter of appointment designating her as an assistant housekeeper the Court finds that she was wrongly designated as a housekeeper in her original letter of appointment in 1969. There is therefore no question of there being a claim of any underpayment to Mrs. Njoki. It is as simple as that. If there is no established post in a government institution then ordinarily a person cannot be appointed to that post. In this particular appointment of Mrs. Njoki there are no special circumstances to warrant that the Respondents had to employ a person in a post which was not listed in the established posts. It was not that important.

The Court has examined the minutes of the board of governors meeting held on November 1978, under the chairmanship of R. O. Ondeng and contrary to Mrs. Njoki's statement that she was called in for five minutes only it is clearly stated in the minutes as follows:

"Minutes 23/78: For 50 minutes the chairman took her through the case against her point for point constantly having to remain her to 'come to the point'. After numerous questions from individual governors Mrs. Njoki's whole defence amounted to no more than a categorical denial of all the accusations levelled against her and an assertion of 'hatred and discrimination' against her by the present college administration especially the principal."

It is quite clear that there was no denial of any rules of natural justice to Mrs. Njoki. She was given every opportunity of answering charges against her.

The Court has given a serious thought to this dispute and in view of the long history-almost ten years old during which period Mrs. Njoki was in dispute with the Respondents on one matter or the other and the fact that she had made some unfounded serious allegations against senior members of staff and having been given 50 minutes to speak in self-defence the Court finds that in this case it cannot interfere in the management's decision to terminate her services. The Respondents have offered her payment of eight days' salary, payment of three months' salary in lieu of notice and payment of 21 days' leave. In fact they had prepared a cheque for Sh. 4,849.35 for her which she has refused to collect.

The Court has come to the conclusion that all the claims made by Mrs. Njoki should be rejected except that she should be given payment for 21 days' leave for 1977 also in addition to what the Respondents have already offered her. Mrs. Njoki has claimed leave pay for 210 days, i.e. for ten years but in view of the fact that there is no conclusive evidence by either party on this particular point the Court feels that she should get leave for two years only, i.e. 1977 and 1978.

The Court directs that Mrs. Njoki should go and collect Sh. 4,849.35 which the Respondents have offered and a further payment for 21 days' leave for the year 1977.

- (1) The Kenya Gazette contains notices of a general nature which do not affect legislation. They are therefore submitted to the Government Printer directly.
- (2) Legislative Supplement contains Rules and Regulations which are issued by the Central Government. Because of this they must be submitted to the Government Printer through the office of the Attorney-General.
- (3) Bill Supplement contains Bills which are for introduction into the National Assembly.
- (4) Act Supplement contains Acts passed by the National Assembly.

All "copy" submitted for publication should be prepared on one side of a foolscap sheet no matter how small the notice or Act, each page being numbered, and should be typewritten with double spacing. Copy should be clear, legible and contain a minimum of alterations.

Particular attention should be paid to the following points:

- (i) Signatures must be clarified by means of rubber-stamping or typing the name of the signer in capital letters.
- (ii) Dates must be correct and filed in where necessary.
- (iii) Care should be taken to ensure that all headings to notices and references to legislation are up to date and conform with the Revised Edition of the Laws of Kenya.
