GAZETTE NOTICE No. 4396

THE TRADE MARKS ACT
(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form T.M. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him an opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Offices, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in Part A of the Register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for Part B are distinguished by the letter B pre-fixed to the official number.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 4397

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 59 OF 1966

Parties:—

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers and
Maida Limited

Issue in dispute:—

The Employers maintain that the introduction or non-introduction of Incentive Bonus Schemes is a matter of Management prerogative and that they have the ultimate and sole right, should they so wish, to reject any Union demand for the introduction of an Incentive Bonus Scheme; whereas the Union maintains that the introduction of Incentive Bonus Scheme is a negotiable item and that the Employers have no right to reject the Union's demands on this issue.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Maida Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The Parties were heard in Nairobi on 26th September 1966, and 21st October 1966, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

3. The Respondents are millers of both maize and wheat products with a factory in the Industrial Area of Nairobi and have a labour force at present of 375 workers. The first agreement between the Parties covering wages and various conditions of service was entered into on 25th July 1958.

On 11th May 1960, the Respondents along with Unga Limited and Proctor and Allan Limited joined in the formation of the Grain Milling Group of the Food Processing Employers' Association. Subsequently agreements were negotiated on recognition and wages and conditions of service between the Employers' Association and the Claimants. However, due to the wide and diverse interests of the several members of the Employers' Association it was agreed to dissolve the Association on 24th October 1963, and since that time the Respondents, Unga Limited and Proctor and Allan Limited have continued to negotiate with the Claimants on a joint basis known as the Grain Milling Group.

At present all employees are graded on a job evaluation basis and are paid the negotiated rate for the particular job on which they are engaged.

In 1955, the Respondents were concerned at the large turnover in labour combined with the reluctance of most workers to become urbanized. In order to counter this trend without consultations with the Claimants the Respondents introduced a yearly bonus payable only to those workers who had completed 12 months' unbroken service. Owing, however, to a number of factors such as:—

- (a) the disappearance of the problem of absenteeism;
- (b) the increased costs of production mainly through considerable increase in wages rates, for example in 1958 the minimum rate for unskilled workers including housing was Sh. 110 per month, while in 1963 this rate had increased to Sh. 223 per month, showing more than a 100 per cent increase in cost;
- (c) the introduction of job classification resulting in many workers being up-graded with a consequent further increase in the cost of wages, the Respondents realized they could not continue the practice of granting the annual bonus which was in no manner related to productivity.

The Respondents, therefore, when paying bonus in 1963, informed all their employees that, this would be the last of any such payment and it is alleged that, for the first time the Claimants became involved in the bonus payments when they objected to the cancellation of future bonus payments by a letter dated 24th May 1963. Two meetings were arranged to take place in July and August 1963, but the Claimants failed to arrive and the meetings could not, therefore, take place. A meeting was eventually held on 3rd September 1963, during which the Respondents made their position quite clear. After that, the Claimants' General Secretary requested the Chairman of the meeting to raise the issue with the Chairman of the Food Processing Employers' Association with a view to further discussion at J.I.C. level, but subsequently the Chairman refused to convene the J.I.C. meeting for this purpose as he considered it was neither an item suitable for a trade dispute nor for any negotiations. The matter remained as it was until April 1964, when the Claimants' shop stewards instigated a go-slow strike in the mill because of the refusal of the Respondents to pay the annual bonus. Discussions took place between the Respondents and the Claimants along with the shop stewards and a meeting took place on 9th May 1964, and the following decisions were recorded at this meeting:—

"Annual Bonus"

It was agreed that to end annual bonus payments Messrs. Maida Ltd. will pay to their employees double the amount stated in their letter dated 5th May 1964, to the shop stewards for the 1963 year and a similar payment to be made in 12 months' time for the 1964 year.

"Incentive Bonus"

It was agreed that consultations and negotiations on incentive bonus shall continue."

The next meeting between the Parties was held on 4th August 1964, when the Respondents' Managing Director explained in detail the present set up of machines layout, capacity, raw material availability, and the number of men doing the job and put up a case that it was impossible for the Respondents to introduce incentive bonus. It appears that the Claimants then re-introduced their claim to the Respondents to buy out the annual bonus scheme to which the Respondents replied by stating that, the question of the annual bonus had been finally disposed at the aforesaid meeting held on 9th May 1964. The Claimants' General Secretary would not accept this position and by letter dated 15th January 1965, reported a trade dispute to the Ministry of Labour. The Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Labour, refused to accept the issue as a trade dispute.

During the hearing of this dispute reference was made to an extract from a Board of Inquiry report regarding incentive bonus in the grain milling industry. In paragraph 46 of this report the following is recorded:—

"46. Incentive Bonus"

(a) The Board recognizes that in certain productive processes of industry, as well as in sales units, incentive bonuses are often introduced for the purpose of obtaining maximum output and efforts by those specifically engaged in such processes and sales units. Indeed it is normal for incentive bonuses to be introduced, on the basis of production line in a factory. It cannot however see any justification for extending such bonus to all employees, as the very purpose of the bonus would be destroyed and the incentive effort completely swallowed by a bonus on wages. It cannot therefore recommend any extension of the incentive bonus scheme to all employees of Unga Ltd.

(b) The Board does, however, recommend that where the introduction of an incentive bonus scheme is under consideration then consultation between the Employer and the Union should take place."

On 25th February 1966, the Claimants took up the question of incentive bonus along with four other items with the Respondents. The Respondents, however, replied stating that this question of incentive bonus had already been adequately dealt with and drew the Claimants' attention to a letter from the Permanent Secretary dated 26th January 1965, when the Ministry of Labour had refused to accept this issue as a trade dispute. Further letters were exchanged between the Parties in March 1966, and on 7th April 1966, the Claimants reported once again a trade dispute to the Permanent Secretary on four issues one of which was incentive bonus. On 22nd April 1966, the dispute was accepted by the Ministry of Labour and a conciliator was appointed. The conciliator issued a report dated 6th July 1966, in which he stated that:—

"It would appear reasonable if the Parties would discuss incentive bonuses at the next Joint Industrial Council meeting since it had been mutually agreed in May 1964, that consultations on incentive bonus shall continue."

However, on 25th July 1966, a letter was written by the Permanent Secretary stating that, due to an oversight certain factors were not included as a result of which misunderstanding might arise. It was requested that the conciliator's report dated 6th July 1966, should be ignored and the following substituted:—

"Incentive Bonus"

That the letter of the Permanent Secretary, ref. IR: 1-7-65 of 26th January 1965, be used to settle the issue."

On 26th July 1966, the Claimants' General Secretary informed the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Labour, of the Claimants' intention to initiate strike action and the strike actually commenced on 10th August 1966. The Deputy Secretary of the Ministry of Labour called both Parties together and meetings took place on 11th, 12th and 13th August 1966, as a result of which a return to work agreement was signed on the afternoon of 13th August 1966, when it was agreed to refer the issue to the Industrial Court. The Parties signed the notification of dispute form on 15th August 1966.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANTS

4. The Claimants submitted that, as any form of bonus was taken as part of an employee's emoluments, it was, therefore, negotiable and the Unions were entitled to ask for it. The Claimants stated that, they were extremely unhappy at the ruling given by the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Labour, vide his letter of 26th January 1965, as the Permanent Secretary did not appear to have taken all the relevant factors into consideration before giving his opinion. The Claimants pointed out that, previously the annual bonus had been negotiated and it had been paid to the workers and when the annual bonus had been discontinued as a result of a meeting on 9th May 1964, the Respondents had agreed that consultations and negotiations on incentive bonus shall continue. In view of this the Claimants submitted that, the Respondents had accepted that this item was negotiable between the Parties. The Claimants were very critical of the Ministry of Labour's letters following Mr. Nyawade's conciliation on this issue whereby at first, it was stated that it would be reasonable for the Parties to discuss incentive bonuses at the next J.I.C. meeting and subsequently this view had been cancelled and the Parties' attention drawn to the letter of the Permanent Secretary dated 26th July 1965.

The Claimants stated that, since May 1964, they had been chasing the Respondents on this issue and whatever meetings had taken place concerning this matter, had been at the insistence of the Claimants. The Claimants requested the Court to take into view the fact that the employees of Unga Limited engaged in production work were being paid incentive bonus. Moreover, recently bonus had been approved and paid by an employer in Mombasa.

The Claimants submitted that, the Federation of Kenya Employers were attempting to shift from the democratic system of settlement of trade disputes involving such issues as bonus. The Claimants also drew the Court's attention to a matter handled by the F.K.E./K.F.L. Disputes Commission in August 1963, on bonus whereby the Federation of Kenya Employers had accepted bonus as negotiable. The Claimants submitted that, they could not see how any agreement could be concluded between Parties unless it was preceded by negotiations between them.

The Claimants referred the Court to a booklet issued by the Trade Unions Congress under the title "Productivity Bargaining" in support of their contention. The Claimants argued that, there was no doubt that any bonus plan should be negotiated and agreed with the Union and it was open to either party to commence negotiations. The Claimants also referred the Court to a book on Industry Pensions by Charles L. Dearing where on page 43 a decision of the National Labour Relations Board of the United States of America rules that the Wagner Act imposed a duty on employers to bargain with their employees' representatives concerning pension. This decision was based on the dual premise that the term "wages" as defined by the Act includes any emoluments of value such as pensions or insurance benefits and that the detailed provisions of the retirement pension plans come under the meaning of "conditions of employment" and, therefore, constitute an appropriate subject for collective bargaining. The Claimants argued that, it was obvious that all retirement and pension plans were open to negotiations at the behest of the Unions. The Claimants also drew the Court's attention to pages 44 and 45 of this book and stated that this placed this issue within the items negotiable with the Union. The Claimants also cited certain passages from the book by Michael Avery on "Time Study Incentives and Budgetry Control".

The Claimants further submitted that, the annual bonus payment which had been discontinued since May 1964 meeting had not been bought out by the Respondents and, therefore, the Claimants had suffered a loss to that extent in their total emoluments. The Claimants submitted that the Recognition Agreement with the Respondents had been obtained after a great difficulty and under most unfavourable circumstances and requested the Court, therefore, not to be guided by it on the matters that were negotiable between the Parties.

The Recognition Agreement in clause 2 (a) provides as follows :—

"2. (a) The Group affords full recognition to the Union as a properly constituted and representative body and the sole labour organization representing the interests of workers who are in the employment of member companies of the Group concerning rates of pay and overtime, hours of work, method of wage payment, paid leave, duration of employment, collection of Union dues, retirement benefits, medical benefits and principles of redundancy. This shall not include supervisory staff as defined from time to time by the F.K.E. and the K.F.L."

Finally the Claimants drew the Court's attention to the Board of Inquiry report on 15th January 1963, where it is stated that "where the introduction of an incentive bonus scheme is under consideration, consultations between employer and the Union should take place". The Claimants argued that, although all joint negotiations and consultations had been carried out they had not been carried out in the right spirit and the Respondents had not made a genuine effort to consider the feasibility of introducing the incentive bonus. For the aforesaid reasons the Claimants requested the Court to rule that the introduction of incentive bonus scheme was a negotiable item and that the employers had no right to reject the Union's demands on this issue.

MAIN SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENTS

5. The Respondents submitted that, they had discontinued the yearly bonus since after the meeting on 9th May 1964, during which complete agreement had been reached on the cancellation of the annual bonus as from the year 1964 and that the Claimants realizing that annual bonus could not continue had then raised with the Respondents the possibility of introducing an incentive bonus scheme. The Respondents, in order to assist a return to normal working within their undertaking, agreed that consultations and negotiations should continue on this particular issue.

The Respondents requested the Court to carefully note the phrasing of the agreement which placed the Respondents under no obligation to introduce an incentive bonus scheme. The Respondents agreed to continue consultations and negotiations, but the Claimants had interpreted this to mean that the Respondents were bound to introduce an incentive bonus scheme. The Respondents stated that, they had already carried out an extensive investigation as to whether increased productivity could be achieved by the introduction of an incentive bonus scheme, and had made extensive inquiries through the Federation of Kenya Employers and elsewhere as to whether such a scheme would be beneficial to their business. The Respondents stressed that all they had promised was that, they would in due course have such consultations and negotiation with the Claimants as would enable them to make the wisest possible decision on an important matter which could affect the economic circumstances of the undertaking. Following very careful consideration and after having received advice and guidance from the international sources through the Federation of Kenya Employers, the Respondents had decided it was not possible or desirable to introduce an incentive bonus scheme. At the subsequent meeting with the Claimants this had been made clear to them and the Respondents, therefore, maintained that they had carried out their obligation to have consultations with the Claimants and had informed them of the reasons behind the decision.

The Respondents requested the Court to take into account the fact that, although during 1965 there were numerous letters between the Claimants and the Respondents, none of them referred to the bonus issue. In addition, during the same period there were numerous official meetings on a number of other issues including the successful negotiations on new wage rates and the Respondents were, therefore, entitled to consider that the Claimants had accepted the letter from the Permanent Secretary dated 26th January 1965.

The Respondents produced to the Court as an additional Appendix "G" to their memorandum a summary of considerations which had been gathered together from international sources which together with their own practical experience assisted them in coming to a final decision on this issue. They had produced this to satisfy the Court that they had made full and extensive inquiries before reaching the decision.

The Respondents referred the Court to a review of Research and Opinion written by Mr. R. Marriott, M.Sc., who is the Assistant Director of the Industrial Psychology Research Unit of the British Medical Research Council. The Respondents pointed out that, throughout this book there was no reference to negotiations between employers and trade unions, but the author repeatedly referred to the necessity for consultations and for taking the Union into confidence of the employer when considering establishing an incentive payments system. The Court was referred in particular to Chapter 8 from page 196 onwards and to the Appendix on page 259 which gave the opinions of many experts on the basic requirements of incentive payments systems. This Appendix had been prepared from the statements of six modern British and American authors, also from other conclusions prepared by workers' and employers' experts at a meeting of the International Labour Organization. The Respondents also referred the Court to a book published by the International Labour Office, Geneva, under the title "Payment by Results" and also to a pamphlet number 118 issued by Industrial Welfare Society in their contention that incentive bonus was not a negotiable issue with the Union and that, incentive bonus schemes, their introduction or non-introduction, was a matter of Management prerogative and that, they had the ultimate and sole right should they so wish, to reject any Union demand for introduction of an incentive bonus scheme.

The Court was requested by the Respondents to award that, the Respondents did, in fact, carry out their undertaking and that they had kept the Claimants fully informed of their reasons for not being able to introduce an incentive bonus scheme and that as outlined in the letter from the Permanent Secretary dated 26th January 1965, the matter of the introduction or non-introduction of an incentive bonus scheme was entirely a matter of Management prerogative and that having carefully considered the position they were entitled to refuse to introduce any scheme. The Respondents also pointed out the long periods of silence following a definite decision made over the past three years and requested the Court to finally dispose of this issue once and for all.

In these circumstances the Respondents requested the Court to confirm that the introduction or non-introduction of incentive bonus schemes was in the ultimate, a matter of Management prerogative and that after full consideration of the facts the Management had the right to reject any Union demand for the introduction of an incentive bonus scheme. The Respondents stated that, once the Management took a decision to introduce an incentive bonus scheme, then they were under an obligation to carry out consultations with the appropriate Union.

AWARD

6. The Respondents had as a result of a meeting with the Claimants on 9th May 1961, undertaken to continue consultations and negotiations with them on incentive bonus. There is no doubt that this has been done, in that, the Respondents have kept the Claimants informed of the results of their inquiries which they had conducted through the Federation of Kenya Employers from international sources. After having studied these reports together with their own practical experience, they decided not to introduce an incentive bonus scheme.

The Court has carefully weighed the submissions made by both Parties and has gone through the passages quoted in various books in support of their arguments, but finds that the proper stage when the Unions come into the picture on the issue of incentive bonus scheme is after the Management has decided to introduce such a scheme. The Court can find no authority which supports the Claimants' contention that a Union can ask the Management to introduce an incentive bonus scheme.

In a booklet issued by the Trade Union Congress under the title of "Productivity Bargaining" it is clearly stated that, in such matters, the first step is generally taken by Management outlining the methods by which the job or firm can be made more efficient. The Union's job is to look at the proposals and what impact they will have on the workers in the plant and then begin negotiations to secure agreement on the changes and to make sure that, the workers who have to make the changes stand to benefit from the new agreement.

The bargaining stages are first, an appraisal by Management of the measures needed to achieve set purposes. Second, identification of the implications of these measures for workers, in terms of their effect on existing agreement whether formal or not, accepted practices or "union rules". Third, negotiations to secure agreement on the relaxation, modification or abandonment of traditional working practices to encourage positive co-operation in implementing the new methods of work. Fourth, an effective means of putting the agreement into effect.

It is obvious from the above that, it is generally accepted that once the Management decides to introduce an incentive bonus scheme, then as submitted by the Claimants, negotiations with the Union are essential, but the Unions do not have a say on whether or not the Management should, in the first place, introduce such a scheme.

The Court finds that the Respondents did not undertake on 9th May 1964, to introduce an incentive bonus scheme, but had agreed merely to continue with consultations and negotiations should the need arise. This they have done.

For the aforesaid reasons the finding of the Court is that, the introduction or non-introduction of incentive bonus scheme is a matter of Management prerogative and that they have the ultimate and sole right, should they so wish, to reject any Union demand for the introduction of an incentive bonus scheme.

Given in Nairobi this 21st day of November 1966.

President.
