and

Distilling and Bottling Employers Association
(Bottling Group Association)

Issues in dispute —

- 1 Wages (rates of pay)
- 2 House and house allowance
- 3 Gratuity and increase in rate of gratuity

1 The Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Distilling and Bottling Employers Association shall herein-after be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 28th day of April 1970 and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

3 The Respondents in this dispute are Coca-Cola (E A) Ltd, Gilbeys (E A) Ltd, Coastal Bottlers Ltd and Fitzgerald, Baynes & Co Ltd In 1968 the four companies employed 292 employees and during the hearing they stated that today they give employment to 349 persons

The parties had appeared before the Industrial Court in Cause No 21 of 1968 when the Court had awarded the following rates for the various grades—

Grade	Basic Minimum Wage p m Sh
A	280
B	305
C	365
D	445
E	500
F	790

These rates were effective from 1st November 1967, for a period of two years

In order to avoid any backdating of new wages and terms and conditions of employment, the parties started negotiations through a sub-committee appointed at a Joint Industrial Council meeting in February 1969 This sub-committee agreed on a schedule of gradings to come into effect on 1st November 1969 The grades basically remain the same as previously, except that a new grade—G—has been added on Thereafter, negotiations were carried out on the basis of these grades The parties agreed on the duration period which was to be for three years Although the Respondents made a point during the hearing that there was no agreement on the effective date and that it was neither an issue in dispute, the Court finds that the parties had, in fact, agreed to an effective date, this being 1st November 1969 The Court is unable to accept that the Respondents had made their various proposals on wage increases conditional on the effective date being open to variation

The Claimants' final demand on the issue of wages and housing was that the workers should get an annual wage increase of Sh 20 p m for three years, and in addition they should be granted a house allowance of Sh 35 p m The Claimants argued that the Respondents had failed to honour an undertaking which they had given at the time the housing allowance was consolidated into wages, which was in 1962 They said that the undertaking was that the Respondents' members would build and provide houses for their workers at economic rates and that except for Pepsi Cola, all the other firms had taken no steps whatsoever to provide houses for their workers In these circumstances, they were entitled to ask for an award for house allowance

The Respondents pointed out that the house allowance was consolidated into the wages at the Claimants' own request in 1962 and that the Court had rejected twice since then the Claimants' demand for its reintroduction

The Court has carefully studied the agreement of 1963 which followed the consolidation of the house allowance and can find nowhere any undertaking or any reference to it which the Respondents are alleged to have given to the Claimants In fact, clause 6 (a) under the heading of "Housing" reads —

"Where Association housing is available, it will be allocated to employees on an agreed rental basis"

In view of this the Court is not prepared to accept the Claimants' allegation that the Respondents had undertaken to provide houses for their workers at subsidized rental Further, the Court had twice in the past rejected this demand and the Court can see no reason to reintroduce it at this stage The Court would like to point out that where wages are consolidated, an increase in rental is naturally taken into account along with other factors when the Court awards a wage increase

On the question of wages, the Claimants submitted that the current wages were much lower than those being paid by the brewing industry although the Respondents used to be a part of a group which included the brewing industry in the past The Claimants particularly criticized Gilbeys who, they alleged, were in a position to pay very good wages and fringe benefits They also referred to the wages and house allowance being paid by the Coffee Marketing Board to its workers and to the DATA rates which at present gave a minimum rate of Sh 315 p m They also referred to the negotiations which were in progress with the Kenya Wine Agencies from whom they hoped to secure much better rates than the Respondents The Claimants also stated that if the Court awarded a small increase only, in the hope that the Respondents would create new jobs, there was no guarantee that they would do so

The Respondents on the other hand strongly submitted that their current wages were very generous along with the other terms and conditions of employment, and despite this they had been able to create 50 more jobs since the Court made its last award They had examined the current wages in the light of the cost of living figures published by the Kenya Government For employees earning less than Sh 350 p m the figures are 120 3 in October 1967 and 120 9 in November 1969 For the middle income group (above Sh 350 p m mark) the figures are 107 5 in October 1967 and 101 5 in November 1969 The Respondents had also examined the comparative rates and had decided to offer a wage increase of 4 per cent per year for three years The Respondents submitted that the Claimants' demands progressed from just over Sh 100 p m above the current rates to as much as 30 per cent for Grade F, and alleged that the Claimants' attitude throughout the negotiations was most unrealistic and negative

The Court has very carefully considered the various submissions made by the parties on the issue of wages and has decided to award the following new rates for the various grades —

Grade	Basic Minimum Wage p m
	First year Sh	Second year Sh cts	Third year Sh
A	300	317 50	335
B	325	342 50	360
C	385	403	423
D	467	490	515
E	525	551	579
F	829	871	914
G (new grade)	1,050	1,103	1,157

On the issue of gratuity and increase in the rate of gratuity the Claimants stated that those employees who earn more than Sh 900 p m at present benefit, as a result of the Industrial Court's award, from a private provident fund scheme, gratuity scheme and National Social Security Fund, whereas those who earn below Sh 900 p m were entitled to benefits under the gratuity scheme and the National Social Security Fund They pointed out that the gratuity scheme had been frozen and asked the Court to increase the benefit under the gratuity scheme to one month's salary for each completed year of service as paid to the employee at the date of retirement and multiplied by the total number of completed years of service

The Respondents argued that the Claimants sought to change the terms of the terminal benefits and they wanted to deny the Respondents the right to off-set obligations to the National Social Security Fund under section 42 They added that they had been consistent in their stand, and asked the Court to reject the demand

The Court has carefully considered this matter and can find no reason whatsoever for awarding an additional retirement scheme or for increasing the gratuity benefits which are already frozen

AWARD

3 This is the eighth time that the parties have appeared before the Industrial Court, the last occasion, for the purposes of the present dispute, being Cause No 17 of 1968 when the issues before the Court were 16, including most of the issues which are in dispute in the present case. The Court's award in Cause No 17 of 1968 was for a duration period of 18 months from 1st May 1968, that is up to 31st October 1969.

On 7th November 1969, the Claimants forwarded their proposals for revising wages and other terms and conditions of employment to the Respondents. The Respondents stated during the hearing that having failed to receive new demands from the Claimants during the lifetime of the Court's award in Cause No 17 of 1968, they took the initiative on 13th November 1969, and made their proposals for revising wages and terms of employment. This is rather odd, but it is quite probable that the Claimants' proposals and the Respondents' proposals crossed each other, but the result, nevertheless, was that both sides had put forward proposals which were diametrically opposed to each other. The Claimants had asked for a wage increase ranging between 40 to 45 per cent on all grades coupled with the demand for reduced working hours and a higher level of fringe benefits covering almost all items. The Respondents on the other side proposed a reduction of 5 per cent in the minimum wage rates for all employees covered by the last Court award provided that no employee would suffer an actual reduction in wages, but all new employees and all those promoted to higher grades on or after 1st November 1969, would be entitled only to the minimum for the grade and followed this proposal up with certain reductions in some of the fringe benefits.

The Joint Industrial Council meetings took place under the aforesaid circumstances on 4th and 10th December 1969. It is not surprising, therefore, that only one minor item was settled. The Claimants thereupon formally reported a trade dispute to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Labour, on 17th December. The dispute was accepted and a conciliator was appointed on 2nd January 1970. However, before conciliation could proceed, the Respondents requested the Permanent Secretary to give them a further opportunity to discuss the matter with the Claimants as they had had fresh thought on the subject. The Respondents hoped that they would be able to reduce considerably the number of deadlocked items before proceeding to conciliation. The Claimants were very critical of the Respondents' suggestion and alleged that this was done by them only to delay matters as it was quite obvious that they had no intention whatsoever of settling any items in dispute with the Claimants. The Claimants added that it was they who had first, during one of the JIC meetings, reduced their demands on wages to a 25 per cent wage increase and had dropped their demands on a number of fringe benefits both at JIC meetings and during conciliation in the hope that the Respondents would also make a move, which they never did. The Claimants charged the Respondents with insincerity and dishonesty and held them responsible for this unnecessary delay of six months before the matter could be heard by the Industrial Court. On their part, the Claimants said that they had made their proposals after expiry of the Court's award as they were hopeful and expected that negotiations for revising the wages and terms and conditions of employment would be carried out in a friendly atmosphere and would for the first time be concluded without resorting to any third party.

The Court is very surprised at this statement and finds no evidence whatsoever to justify such optimism on the part of the Claimants. In fact, the attitude of the Respondents to their demands and the subsequent events clearly show that the parties' approach and understanding to each other's problems was anything but sympathetic or that a climate had been created which would be conducive to fruitful negotiations. The Court feels that the Claimants should, therefore, have put forward their demands for revising the existing wages and terms and conditions of employment at least two months before the expiry of the Court's award. At the same time, the Court must express even greater surprise at the Respondents' attitude in that, knowing fully well the Claimants' attitude during the past negotiations, they proceeded to ask them to agree to a reduction in the wage rates and several fringe benefits. Keeping in view the past intransigent relationship that has existed between the parties this attitude was nothing short of provocation for the Claimants either to adopt an extremely rigid attitude or to resort to industrial action. The Respondents must be extremely naive to expect that they would be able to get away or achieve any fruitful result by this sort of attitude during the current time of intense economic activity that is going on in the country.

The parties signed the notification of dispute form referring the dispute to the Industrial Court on 12th March 1970, and the hearing proceeded on the days stated hereinabove. Even during the hearing, the parties stuck to their original inflexible attitude.

Wages—The Claimants' main submissions in support of their demands were that the motor industry was mainly an expatriate industry and was draining the economy of the country at a crucial period of our history as millions of pounds were leaving the country. This being the position, the only way to ensure that some part of the profits being made by the Respondents remained in this country was to grant high wages to the workers. They maintained that the Respondents' members were not public-spirited and in fact constantly looked for opportunities to declare workers redundant and named certain firms who had declared redundancies.

The Claimants submitted that the motor industry had expanded considerably since the last Court award and that during the relevant period over 4,200 new motor vehicles were sold and registered. The Claimants reacted sharply to the Respondents' reasons for proposing a 5 per cent reduction in the wage rates and said that they could never accept that there was all round reduction in motor business and that the Respondents had increased substantially the numbers in employment, or that there was an alarming difference between the wages at present paid by the Respondents with other comparable industries. They added that the Respondents had completely overlooked the cost of living factor and gave details of the various items the prices of which had gone up recently. The Claimants maintained that as a result of the hard work being put in by the workers, there had been high productivity in the motor industry which was borne out by the last Economic Quarterly Review showing that though the economy in general had gone down, the motor industry trade had shown very healthy and encouraging results.

The Claimants stated that the only comparable industries which they knew of were the oil, breweries, banks, Power and Lighting, cargo handling and tobacco, all of whom paid higher wages than the Respondents.

The Claimants produced numerous other agreements which they had negotiated in the recent past with many firms and garages in the various towns in the country and who were not members of the Respondents, in order to prove that they had been very active and had done their best to win benefits for their members from all employers in their industry irrespective of their size. They explained that it could not be expected that these small firms would pay the same rates as the Respondents whom they called "the big sharks". They mentioned one firm in Kitale which paid higher wages than the Respondents.

Working hours—The Claimants submitted that the Court should award a reduction in working hours per week because such a move would create more employment, protect employees against loss of job because of technological progress and it was a way of ensuring that workers shared benefits of progress. They referred to Mombasa Municipal Council and Nairobi City Council which had 34 and 39 hours work per week. They also referred to the Industrial Court award announced recently in the Fire Brigade and Ambulance Services of Nairobi City Council and Mombasa Municipal Council.

Annual leave—On annual leave, the Claimants maintained that due to the low wages being paid in the country generally, the workers had to rely on their small-holdings upon which they subsisted and they needed longer leave in order to go and tend to their land. They referred to several other industries and Court awards where the annual leave was of a longer period than 21 consecutive days being allowed at present.

Retirement benefits—On the issue of retirement benefits the Claimants' demand was that the Court should rule that those employees who had completed 10 years' service or more should not lose them even if they resigned or were dismissed for gross misconduct

Tools allowance—The Claimants asked the Court to award a "Tools allowance" at the rate of Sh 100 p m to those workers who used their own personal tools for the benefit of their employers

Housing allowance—The Claimants dropped their demand on the issue of job openings, but made a very vigorous submission on the reintroduction of a house allowance. They referred the Court to the present acute shortage of houses in Nairobi and Mombasa and other towns, and to the Government's serious approach to this problem. They also maintained that rents in the City Council estates in Nairobi and the Municipal Housing estates in Mombasa had gone up. They referred to Kaloleni Estate in Nairobi where rent had gone up from Sh 65 p m inclusive of water to Sh 75 p m exclusive of water. They stated that firms like B.A.T., oil companies and K.C.C. allowed generous house allowance to their workers. In these circumstances they strongly maintained that they were fully justified in asking the Court to reintroduce the house allowance and to make an appropriate award on this issue.

Termination of service—On termination of service, the Claimants submitted that in order to give the necessary security of employment to a worker, the Court should award that one month's notice or salary in lieu thereof should be given for terminating the services of a worker who had less than three years' service. For those with between three to five years' service, two months' notice or salary in lieu thereof, and for those with more than five years' service, three months' notice or salary in lieu thereof should be awarded.

Leave travelling allowance—The Claimants gave the names of 27 firms which awarded leave travelling allowance ranging between Sh 35 to Sh 790 and quoted 18 small firms in the motor industry which granted leave travelling allowance ranging between 10 to 15 per cent of a worker's salary and Sh 20 to Sh 30 per year. They argued that it was a common practice in this country for employers to give cash to their workers to enable them to meet their expenses when proceeding on annual leave, and as small firms in this industry paid such an allowance there was absolutely no reason why the Respondents should not pay it.

Effective date and duration—Finally, the Claimants asked the Court to award that the effective date should be 1st November 1969, as they were in no way responsible for the six months delay that had occurred from the time the last Court award expired to the date of the hearing of the dispute. They warned that if the Court did not make the effective date as demanded by them, the Respondents would be encouraged every time to delay matters on one pretence or the other in order to deprive the workers of their legitimate and just dues. They asked the Court to award the duration period of 12 months only.

The Respondents stated that several of these issues have been raised previously between the parties and the Respondents drew the Court's attention to previous nil awards on items once again before the Court at this hearing.

The Respondents rebutted press cuttings tabled by the Claimants indicating to the Court that these were out of context and therefore not factual.

The Respondents rebutted the Claimants' statement that redundancies had taken place in the industry. They pointed out that in 1965, 4,405 persons were employed by members of the Association and in January 1970, 5,466 were employed, an increase of 1,061.

They drew the Court's attention to the fact that although some members had left the Association and ceased to trade a number of new members had been gained and there was still an increase in the number of jobs created.

They also drew the Court's attention to the investment being made in Kenya by various companies in their Association.

The Respondents rebutted the Claimants verbal and written submission regarding the cost of living indices.

They also drew the Court's attention to non members of the group who gave great competition in the industry throughout the country.

The Respondents refuted the Claimants' claim that they were comparable to the "Big Six".

Wages—The present wages paid in the industry by the Respondents' group were established by the Industrial Court in 1968 and for comparison purpose they drew the Court's attention to the effect of the Claimants' present demands quoting three examples and the excessive increases.

During the conciliation proceedings the Claimants had reverted to their original demands showing that they had made no move from their original demands of 40 to 45 per cent.

Working hours—The Respondents submitted that the present working hours are adequate, not unusual and require no change and that the case put forward by the Claimants cannot justify a reduction.

Annual leave—Again, the Respondents submitted that leave as provided under the present terms of employment was adequate and that the Claimants have made no case that could justify an increase in the duration of leave.

Retirement benefits—The Respondents submitted that the Claimants were again referring back to the Court an item that had been previously decided upon. When their demand was seriously considered no case was made and the Respondents drew the Court's attention to its own interpretation of Cause No 17/68.

Tools allowance—The Respondents rejected this claim as being unreasonable and pointed out that tools costing between Sh 400 and Sh 500 lasted a lifetime.

They also pointed out to the Court that artisans commencing their trade for the first time were advanced money at reasonable terms for the purchase of tools.

Housing allowance—The Respondents drew the Court's attention to the fact that wages included an element for housing and the fact that the Claimants conceded this point in their own submission.

In view of the fact of past consolidation no case had been made by the Claimants to substantiate their demand for the reintroduction of an additional cash payment.

Termination of service—The Respondents asked the Court not to disturb the present arrangement which was very fair and satisfactory.

Leave travelling allowance—The Respondents argued that this was an introduction of an entirely new fringe benefit and militated against the clean wages.

They further submitted that the Claimants had produced no evidence whatsoever to back up their claim.

Effective date and duration—The Respondents drew the Court's attention to the previous criticisms made by the Court in previous causes and they argued that there should be a standstill for a reasonable and prolonged period.

They argued that delays in reaching an agreement should be laid at the door of the Claimants because the demands were unrealistic and unreasonable.

Finally the Respondents again rebutted previous criticisms and charges made by the Claimants and they firmly objected to further new material being introduced in the Claimants' final submission as these things and relevant evidence should have been made earlier in the Claimants' actual case.

They drew the Court's attention to the fact that the demands made by the Claimants were 45 per cent increases reduced to 25 per cent and then reverted back to 45 per cent at the conciliation proceedings, which they felt was very unreasonable.

They asked the Court to judge the case only on its merits and the evidence before it. The Court was asked to make a nil award on all items at the same time giving a standstill for a lengthy period. They said that this standstill would be used as a period of consolidation by the members of the Association.

As stated earlier in the award, the parties embarked on negotiations in a climate which was not at all conducive to any fruitful result being achieved. The Court has taken due note of all the submissions made by the parties and, after a careful consideration, and bearing in mind that the Respondents have created additional jobs despite the redundancies that were mentioned by the Claimants, and keeping in view the fact that the motor industry as a whole is expanding and is bound to expand in the future, the Court has come to the conclusion that it cannot make a nil award as demanded by the Respondents on the issue of wages.

The Court gave anxious thought to the Claimants' vigorous submission for the reintroduction of a housing allowance, it being common ground that some years back the house allowance had been consolidated into the wages. The Court has repeatedly made it clear that it would be extremely unfair to reintroduce a fringe benefit which in the past has been bought over. It would lead to numerous difficulties particularly when there is no evidence to show what was the amount of housing allowance which was consolidated into the wages. It would not be desirable either to consolidate wages for a few years and then to break them up again. It is in the parties' own interests that there should be consistency in their approach to these problems. As the Court has pointed out in the past, it takes into consideration the workers' complaints regarding increase in house rents when it is considering an increase in consolidated wages. In the present dispute the Court was informed by the Claimants that the Government was very much concerned at the housing problem as a whole and the Government accepted the great shortages and the prevailing high rents. The Court appreciates this but feels that rather than break up a consolidated wage, it would be better to wait for the outcome of the Government action which it intends to take to tackle this chronic problem.

Accordingly the Court has decided not to make a separate award on housing allowance but the Claimants' submissions on this item have been taken into consideration in formulating the wage increase.

The Court awards as follows on the various issues in dispute —

Wages—The Court awards that the minimum wage rates for all employees should remain as they are at present, that is, any new entrant would start employment at these rates.

The Court awards the following wage increases to all employees currently in employment —

(a) Motor Trade Manual and Artisan Grades Manufacturing Sector Manual Grades

All workers shall get a wage increase of Sh 30 p.m. for a period of 12 months after which they shall get another increase of Sh 25 p.m.

Working hours—Nil award

Annual leave—The Court awards that those workers who have completed more than ten years of service shall get an annual leave of 24 consecutive days.

All other provisions under this issue will remain as they are.

Retirement benefits—The Court can find no reason to make any amendment to the existing provisions. The Claimants' demand accordingly is rejected.

Tools allowance—Nil award

Job openings—As this item was withdrawn by the Claimants, the Court makes no award.

Housing allowance—For the reasons which have been stated hereinabove, the Court makes a nil award.

Termination of service—The Court finds that the present provisions are fair and reasonable and therefore rejects the Claimants' demand.

Leave travelling allowance—The Court awards that the workers should be paid a sum of Sh 30 by way of leave travelling allowance when they proceed on their annual leave.

Effective date and duration—The Court awards that the effective date should be 1st February 1970, and that the wages and other terms and conditions of employment should remain in force for a period of two years from that date.

GAZETTE NOTICE No 1663

THE TRADE MARKS ACT
(Cap 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form TM No 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh 50

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make, if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Offices, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in Part A of the Register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for Part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.

The undermentioned applications are proceeding in the name of MO OCH DOMSJÖ AKTIEBOLAG (a Swedish limited liability company), manufacturers and merchants, of Fack, S-891 01 Örnsköldsvik, Sweden, and c/o Messrs Lysaght & Co, c/o Barclays Bank DCO, Government Road, Nairobi, Kenya 5th November 1969
