GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 4950

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 22 OF 1989

Parties:
 Kenya Engineering Workers Union
 and Collapsible Tubes Ltd.

Issue in Dispute:

"Termination of services of Joseph Kariuki, Robert Masinde, Albert Namasake and Jairus Kariuki."

THE Kenya Engineering Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Collapsible Tubes Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 3rd August, 1989, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 13th June, 1988, and duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 10th January, 1989, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a limited liability company based in Kiambu and they manufacture aluminium collapsible tubes for toothpaste, cosmetics, creams, pharmaceutical products, etc. The grievants were employed on casual basis between 1983 and 1986, and in January 1987, they were absorbed into permanent terms of employment. The grievants were dismissed on 28th February, 1987, on the allegations of organizing a strike which resulted in loss of production and switching off the machines, thus jeopardizing safety of other employees and the respondents' property.

The court has carefully analysed the submissions by the parties, and also perused through the ministry's report, and notes that the investigation of the circumstances which led to the summary dismissal of the grievants was poorly done and utterly lacked in details. It is apparent from the record that the investigator did not interview the parties and their witnesses, if any, and record all the evidence in a form of statements. It is also noted that the investigator did not record background information of the dispute, full submissions by the parties and concise and clear findings and recommendation, based on the submissions and the evidence tendered in support thereof.

In his book entitled "The Kenya Industrial Court", at page 33, Cockar J. has this to say:

The investigation should be strictly confined to material that is put forward to the investigator or which he himself finds during the investigation and such material should be properly set out in the investigation report.

Ideally, investigation should commence soon after a dismissal has taken place because the witnesses to the incident have got to be interviewed and their statements recorded as they are likely at that stage when their memories are still fresh to give a true account from their personal knowledge as to what had happened. Moreover, the interested parties have not had time or opportunity to influence witnesses, one way or the other. Further, if the investigator conducts himself impartially there is every chance that the recommendations . . . would have an excellent chance of being accepted and in the event of such a dispute finding its way to the industrial court, the court would find such an investigation to be of immense help in addition to the submissions and verbal testimony adduced by the parties during the hearing of the dispute."

In their written submission, the respondents stated that on 28th February, 1987, when the day-shift employees were taking over duties from the night-shift employees, "one of the workers pushed off the emergency switch" and as a result there was a confusion in the plant. This particular incident is very vital in the whole dispute and the court is satisfied that the allegations which the respondents have levelled against Mr. Kariuki in court have not been positively proved by them on the balance of probabilities to convince the court that he was the person who pushed off the emergency switch. There is a big doubt in the court's mind on this point, and the court was decided to give Mr. Kariuki the benefit of doubt.

The respondents might have suffered the big loss as stated above, and it is very regrettable and unfortunate; but the court cannot find that this loss was caused by the grievants, especially Mr. Kariuki, who was mentioned in court during the hearing of this dispute.

All in all, and after taking into consideration the parties submissions and the foregoing reasons, the court finds that the grievants were wrongfully dismissed; and in the circumstances the court awards that their dismissal should be reduced to normal termination of service. In addition the grievants should be paid three months salary each as compensation for loss of their employment.

The grievants are not entitled to any other benefits.

Dated the 6th October, 1989.

Judge.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 28 OF 1989*Parties:*

Tailors and Textiles Workers Union
and

Interfashions Garments Manufacturers Limited

Issue in Dispute:

"The employer refusing to pay Messrs. Peter Onyango and others arrears from 1st August, 1986 to-date."

THE Tailors and Textiles Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Interfashions Garments Manufacturers Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 2nd August, 1989, and they relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 25th July, 1988, and duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 7th March, 1989, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a limited liability company and a member of the Garment Manufacturers Group of F.K.E. The parties have a valid recognition agreement and several collective agreements between them. The present dispute arose out of the implementation of their 1986/88 collective agreement. The agreement was belatedly signed on 21st October, 1987, and registered by the court under R.C.A. No. 309 of 1987, on 26th November, 1987.

The court notes that the services of the grievants on whose behalf the claimants are demanding arrears of wages were terminated before the registration of the collective agreement on 26th November, 1987. In other words, the grievants' contract of employment with the respondents had ceased before the date of the registration of the collective agreement.

The claimants have submitted that the issue in dispute revolves on the correct interpretation of the aforesaid section 13 of the Trade Dispute Act, Cap. 234. On the other hand, the respondents stated that employees whose services had been terminated before the registration of the collective agreement cannot derive any benefits under either section 13 or 16 of the said Act because at the time of registration of the collective agreement there was no valid contract of employment between them.

The court would like to state that the voluntary negotiation and strict observance of a collective agreement is widely regarded as a principal virtue of our system of industrial relations; and, if any party is to be bound by, or is to claim the benefit of, a collective agreement, he must show some legal basis for it. In this dispute, it was undoubtedly the intention of the parties to incorporate the benefits arising from the collective agreement after registration to the individual contracts of employees. However, since the grievants were no longer in the respondents' employment at the material time when the collective agreement was registered, any benefits accruing from it could not be expected to form an implied term of their individual contracts of employment, which did not exist, or which had been terminated prior to its registration.

The court has carefully considered the parties submissions and also thoroughly read the authorities cited by them, and finds that the claimants' demand must fail. The fact that the effective date of the collective agreement was retrospective to 1st August, 1986, did not alter the fact that the grievants had ceased employment with the respondents when the collective agreement was accepted and registered by the industrial court, and as such they were not entitled to any benefits thereunder.

Accordingly the claimants' demand is rejected.
