Issue in dispute

Interpretation application ruling

THE court announced this award in the above dispute on 29th January, 1985. The court awarded the grievants three months pay in lieu of notice plus three months ex gratia pay as per the respondents' offer.

The claimants have applied for an interpretation of the award saying that the respondents are refusing to pay the three months ex gratia pay.

On 4th April, 1986, after the court heard the parties arguments, the court proceeded to make the following ruling.

The court rules that it awarded the grievants six months' pay in all and if the respondents have paid this amount then there is no further claim. Since the claimants were paid three months' notice pay in 1980 they are now entitled to an additional three months' pay only.

Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union and Vaja's Limited

Issue in dispute

Dismissal of Gilbert Otieno

THE Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Vaja's Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on 25th February, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions. In addition they called the following people who gave evidence:

Claimants—Gilbert Otieno

Respondents—Joseph Kamande and Noah Asiachi

AWARD

3 The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th September, 1984, duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 20th February, 1985, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are engaged in mass production of garments and employ several tailors on piece work terms. These tailors have a fixed number of garments to be sewn daily but when a new style is introduced the respondents give it a trial and if it takes more time to sew the shop steward negotiates with the respondents for increase in the piece rate for that style. It is claimed that Gilbert Otieno was dismissed for asking for an increase after the introduction of a new style.

The claimants told the court that Gilbert Otieno was dismissed on 23rd March, 1983, after four years of service with the respondents for allegedly negotiating for an increase for newly introduced garments which were difficult to make. The claimants further told the court that Mr. Otieno had received only two warnings during his said service both of which were not in force at the time of dismissal.

Giving evidence in court Mr. Otieno stated that on the day in question he was elected by his workmates to go and negotiate for an increase after introduction of a new style of garment. He went to the supervisor in charge who refused to listen to him so he went back and reported to his workmates who in turn asked him to go and see the director. Before going to the director, Mr. Otieno stated that he saw the supervisor again and informed him of the workers' requirements but the supervisor told him that there was no need for new rates and that they should forget about it and if any one so wished he could leave employment. After the supervisor's refusal to listen to the workers' demand, Mr. Otieno then went to see the director. Mr. Otieno stated that when he went in the director's office he found the director with the supervisor and after explaining him what the workers' demands were he was dismissed on the spot.

The respondents denied all allegations by the claimants and told the court that there was a practice which is followed by both parties when a new style of garments is introduced. The respondents stated that the new garments are first given to a few tailors for trial and if found to be taking longer period than the others then the shop steward and the management negotiate on the new piece rate. The respondents further told the court that at their undertaking they listen to workers' grievances from 1:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. The respondents stated that Mr. Otieno was not an official of the claimants and was not elected by the workers to represent them. The respondents went on to state that on the day in question, Mr. Otieno was not given the new style of garment for trial but he had incited others not to give a trial to the newly introduced garment before new rates are fixed. This happened at 10 a.m. When Gilbert Otieno went to see the supervisor he was told to wait until 1:30 p.m., when he would see the director but Mr. Otieno refused and insulted the supervisor by telling him that he will never go with the Asians back to India. The respondents told the court that Mr. Otieno found the supervisor in the director's office where he started quarrelling and misbehaving which prompted them to dismiss him.

Giving evidence in court, the supervisor, Joseph Kamande, and an assistant shop steward, Noah Asiachi, accused Gilbert Otieno of having failed to follow the procedure of giving new style garments a trial and also failing to wait till 1:30 p.m. to meet the management. These two witnesses told the court that Mr. Otieno was not a representative of the workers and that he was a trouble maker.

In considering this dispute the court finds that Mr. Otieno assumed responsibilities which were not his as he was not the workers' representative at the work place and further he had incited workers to stop work which they did for sometime. The court finds no reason to disbelieve the evidence of Joseph Kamande and Noah Asiachi and in view of their evidence the court finds Mr. Otieno committed a gross misconduct for which he deserved summary dismissal.

The court accordingly rejects the claimants' demand.

Railways and Harbours Union (K)

and

The Kenya Railways Corporation

Issue in dispute

Dismissal of Fredrick Mangana Oleko

THE Railways and Harbours Union (K) shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Kenya Railways Corporation shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on 2nd October, 1985, 21st January, 1986 and 19th February, 1986, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3 The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 22nd March, 1985, duly signed by the parties, was received by the court on 5th June, 1985 together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The dispute arose as a result of Fredrick Mangana Oleko, a former cashier with the respondents, having allowed personal cheques amounting to KSh 216,530 to be cashed from the railway earnings but failed to present them to the respondents' bankers for crediting to their account as stipulated in clause No 1158 of the Traffic Accounts Manual which reads as follows:

"Cheques must be remitted without delay. Cheques accepted at stations where banking facilities have been arranged must be remitted to the banks not later than the day following acceptance From other stations they must be remitted to the accounts office by the next travelling cash safe service An additional cash remittance note and cash bag must be used if necessary Any employees responsible for delay in the presentation of a cheque will be held personally liable for any loss incurred by the administration as a result'

In addition to the cheques mentioned above, it is alleged that Mr Oleko had a cash shortage amounting to KSh 19,263 85 and was unable to give an account of this discrepancy The total loss purported to have been sustained by the respondents was KSh 235,793 85

The claimants stated that the grievant entered the service of the Kenya Railways in the position of trainee clerk division III on 1st June, 1962

After six months' probationary period he was confirmed to the post of clerk grade RBXI and later in 1971 he was transferred to cash office where he was involved in coaching others in the traffic audit section

Mr Oleko was appointed to the position of an assistant cashier in 1974 under the supervision of cashier in-charge of the station earnings After sometime in that capacity, Mr Oleko was assigned the duties of pay train cashier, a position he held until 17th September, 1976, when he was made to act as cashier station earnings grade RB EX II He was later confirmed in this position on promotion in May 1978

The claimants went on to say that his duties were as follows

- (i) To receive and account for all station earnings remitted from all the stations all over the Kenya Railways system
- (ii) To complete cash remittance notes from all stations in Kenya and to pass them for accounting After recording them in C R Chart and take up with the stations on irregularities
- (iii) To ensure that all cheques remitted are banked by the cashiers under him

In addition to the above duties Mr Oleko was called upon to perform the duties of cashier counter No 1 when the incumbent Michael Weru fell sick He shouldered extra duties from February 1978 to February 1980, when he was removed The duties in this counter included payment of salaries and wages of guards TTES, unpaid wages, advances, subsistence allowance claims and other miscellaneous cash payments in Nairobi The grievant had some staff directly under him

As far as the station earnings section is concerned the staff varied from two to five depending on the volume of work At counter No 1, from where payments were made, there was only one assistant, namely Harrison Magu, who passed away

The claimants praised Fredrick Oleko for discharging his duties well with devotion and without anyone complaining about him till this incident which happened later

The claimants related the events which led to Mr Oleko being interdicted and later dismissed from service, by stating that a spot check was carried out on 8th February, 1980 and it is alleged that the inspector who carried out this audit check, discovered that a big sum of money was missing in the section where Mr Oleko was relieving a Mr Weru Cheques had been cashed but not presented to the bank for reimbursement As a result they became stale There was also an amount allegedly missing about which the grievant failed to give a satisfactory explanation This led to his interdiction and was officially told to report every morning on normal working days and that he will be receiving half his usual salary for the period till the matter is settled

The claimants, however, were surprised when payment of half salary was suspended and the grievant left to suffer in town with his family who entirely depended on him The claimants took up the matter with the authorities concerned but without success The claimants further wish to point out that the matter took over a year for the authorities concerned to level the following charges against the grievant

"Whilst you were working as a cashier at the Cash and Pay Office Nairobi, during the period from 7th June, 1976 to 27th December, 1979 you allowed personal cheques amounting to KSh 216 530 to be cashed from railway earnings but you did not ensure they were presented to the corporation's bankers so that the money was credited to the corporation"

"You had a cash shortage of KSh 19,263 85 when your cash book was checked during the month of February 1980

"This is a serious misconduct on your part, which has resulted in the corporation suffering a loss of revenue totalling to KSh 235,793 85 and you are required in accordance with the provision of para 29 head "C" of the E A R C (Appointments and Discipline) Reg 1974 to explain the grounds on which you would like to be exculpated from this offence"

The claimants went on to say that efforts by the grievant to have a personal hearing were fruitless The grievant wrote to be given a chance to defend himself in accordance with the staff regulations but still they refused The grievant pointed out that failure to bank the cheques in question was not entirely his own fault but also of some of his supervisors who had advised him to hold on with their cheques without banking them The grievant tried to exonerate himself by saying that this system of keeping cheques had began before his time in that section There were occasions when checking was done and advice given by inspectors to stop this habit of senior officers cashing their cheques, but to no avail The claimants accused the respondents of using delaying tactics in solving this dispute The claimants, therefore, invoked the machinery and reported a dispute to the Ministry of Labour The acceptance of this dispute led to a series of protests by the respondents and as a result the court ended up receiving two Form "As" from the Labour Commissioner

The claimants recalled that in cause No 117 of 1982, the respondents in their submission stated that they had lifted the interdiction and the staff in question had been reinstated This statement is correct except that those who had been interdicted and not convicted had been reinstated with the exception of Mr Weru, who had died, and the grievant

This action led the claimants to invoke the trade disputes machinery, this time for the wrongful dismissal of the grievant The claimants further stated that the dispute was referred to the Ministry of Labour who investigated the matter and recommended the reinstatement of Mr Oleko without loss of fringe benefits and seniority, also be paid his full salary for the period he had been interdicted

The claimants further felt that it would be unjust and unfair to hold the grievant responsible for the loss of KSh 235,793 85 as there must have been some senior staff who must have asked him to hold the cheques without cashing them The grievant should not be made a scape-goat for other peoples failures The claimants went on to quote clause 1161 of the Traffic Accounts Manual which reads as follows

- (a) "Cheques drawn by members of the public must not be exchanged for cash in any circumstances, nor may change be given in cash"
- (b) "Cheques drawn by the administration's employees will be cashed only in the following circumstances
 - (i) Officers of a rank equivalent or senior to that of district officer may cash cheques up to the value of KSh 500 at any one time upon establishment of their identity
 - (ii) Other employees must produce a letter of authority in the approved form in accordance with the provisions of clause 1162 of these instructions
 - (iii) Cheques will not be cashed at central cash offices during the first four working days or on the last working day of the month
 - (iv) An employee cashing must satisfy himself as to the identity of the drawer of the cheque
- (c) "A cheque drawn by the administration in favour of an employee will only be cashed when the payee is personally known to the employee cashing the cheque or if the payee produces a letter of authority from his district officer"

The claimants wish to point out that the above clause and its subsections, if strictly observed, prohibit misappropriation of funds by employees The senior officers who were the culprits in this case should have prevented this from happening if they were doing their work properly The claimants went on to say that most of the cheques presented to the court as exhibits were authorized by the senior officers such as the revenue accountant, chief cashier or assistant chief cashier in the grievant's absence There has been no denial by the respondents that this is not so

The claimants further asked the court to note that the then chief cashier and his assistant were charged and punished for offences of allowing cheques from individuals to be cashed and later left them to become stale Some of these officers came out with light punishment and their seniors went unpunished

The claimants submitted that the respondents should not apply double standards in handling such matters Furthermore the third allegation that Fredrick Oleko misappropriated KSh 19,263 85 is not true as the respondents have not come up with any proof The accounts do not reflect the shortage as the respondents have now shown the claimants actual books of accounts

The claimants concluded by saying that out of the sum of KSh 235,793 85 allegedly lost, a substantial sum has been recovered by cashing some of the cheques The claimants further pointed out that the respondents have not tabulated the cheques found in the drawer which were stale. The grievant should not continue to be punished by denying him his half salary for the period he was interdicted.

The respondents stated that in addition to the cheques mentioned in the claimants' submission, Mr Oleko had a cash shortage amounting to KSh 19,263.85 and was unable to give an account of this discrepancy. The total loss sustained by the respondents was KSh 235,793.85 and when his explanation was called for, Mr Oleko replied that he had received many personal cheques which were cashed from his imprest. He went on to say that he presented all the cheques to the bank, with the exception of those found in his possession which he had kept on instructions of the drawers of these cheques who were his senior officers. In order to justify his failure to comply with the provisions of clause 1158 of the Traffic Accounts Manual, Mr Oleko stated that he was merely complying with instructions of his senior officers as laid down in Staff Regulations A2 (b) and G2 (a). The respondents, therefore, asked the court to note that Mr Oleko admitted the offence of retaining stale cheques, but his explanation was unacceptable as there was no proof that such instructions were given and also, that, if those instructions were indeed given, they were unlawful as he was under no obligation to comply with them and should have reported the matter to a more senior officer who was not involved in these illegal transactions. With regard to the cash shortage of KSh 19,263.85, Mr Oleko denied knowledge of this, claiming that no details were given to him.

The court is asked to note that in his statement to the police, Mr Oleko admitted advancing an amount of KSh 12,000 to one of his colleagues, namely Michael Weru. Subsequent to his explanation being called for his reply thereto, it again transpired that a further amount of KSh 50,000 borrowed by Mr Oleko from the chief cashier was not paid back and this transaction also appears in his statement to the police.

The respondents went on to say that following the loss of this big amount of money which Mr Oleko handled in the course of his duties as a cashier, the case was considered by the respondents' Management Appointments Committee "A" and "B" chaired by the managing director and it was decided to dismiss Mr Oleko with loss of all benefits.

The respondents submitted that the claimants tried to confuse the issue that there had been an assurance to this court earlier in cause No 117 of 1982 that Mr Oleko would not be dismissed for his misconduct. Such an undertaking would not be compatible with the issue before the court at that time, that is "Indefinite Interdiction of Mr Oleko and others". The submissions before the court on that issue only concerned the respondents' failure to lift the interdictions. The giving of an "assurance" that Mr Oleko would not be dismissed could not and did not feature in the court's deliberations. Indeed the respondents' two memoranda to this court dated 5th April, 1983 and 6th June, 1983 in cause No 117 of 1982 (eighth and final paragraphs respectively) make the position quite clear on the aspect of disciplinary action against Mr Oleko and others. The claimants in their own memorandum also refer to lifting of the interdictions as the subject matter before the court in cause No 117 of 1982.

The respondents in summing up stated that the court should note that the respondents went out of their way to persuade the claimants to register the dispute on Form "A" as wrongful dismissal of Fredrick Oleko so that both parties would appear before the court to discuss the broader issue of "wrongful dismissal", and leave the matter to the court to decide. This approach was totally rejected by the claimants who insisted on a non-existent undertaking of not punishing Mr Oleko by dismissal. The only directive issued by the court in so far as Mr Oleko was concerned was that he should not be evicted from the railway quarters until another dispute has been reported and disposed by the court. This directive remains honoured to date.

Finally, the respondents stated that in view of the observations made, the present dispute is based on non-existent facts and therefore should be rejected by the court on these grounds.

The court has carefully considered all aspects of this dispute and finds that the claimants' main argument that the grievant failed to comply with his duties as laid down in the Traffic Accounts Manual on the instructions of his senior officers and therefore should not be held responsible, to be devoid of any merit. It is ridiculous for the claimants to suggest that if an employee refused to obey unlawful and irregular orders of his superiors in an organization like the respondents that he would be disciplined and punished for not obeying those orders.

The claimants in this dispute, as indeed in several other disputes in the past, have complained bitterly at the different standards of punishment that are handed down to various employees who have committed more or less similar offences or are involved in any one irregular transaction. The court while appreciating that every case has to be judged on its own special merits would draw the respondents' relevant committee's attention to this complaint so that at least some sort of consistency can be developed over these punishments.

The court must reject the claimants' demand that the grievant should be reinstated to his job and that he should receive full salary for all the period during which he remained unemployed. The court, however, finds that the grievant is entitled to half salary per month for 12 months only as the respondents notified him in his letter of interdiction that he would receive half salary during the interdiction period although the respondents stated on 17th May, 1980, that he would not be paid the half salary because he owed some money to them. This was rather vague as no details were given to him. The court is not at all certain up till now as to the exact loss that the respondents suffered from the stale cheques issued by their employees. Surely they were, or are, in a position to recover these amounts from their employees who drew the aforesaid cheques.

The court awards that the respondents should pay the grievant half salary per month for 12 months only.

CAUSE NO 74 OF 1985

Parties

Consolata Sisters
and

Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers

Issue in dispute

Refusal by workers to vacate the rooms which are required immediately

THE Consolata Sisters shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Kenya Union of Domestic, Hotels, Educational Institutions, Hospitals and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on 6th November, 1985 and 28th February, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3 The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 12th July, 1985, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 26th July, 1985, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The claimants are a member of a big Catholic missionary institution with their headquarters in Nairobi. The parties have had a collective agreement regulating the claimants' employees' terms and conditions of employment over the years. The current dispute arose when the claimants wanted some of their employees housed to vacate these quarters for the occupation by the up-country missionaries and lay missionaries, who come to attend a wide-range of courses, retreats and workshops organized for the benefit of running their operations throughout the country.

Clause 1 (f) of the collective agreement provides for the claimants to provide housing or house allowance to employees who are not housed.

Those affected by this dispute are 14 men out of a total establishment of 23 workers, the rest are 9 women. Those housed are within Flora Hostel premises.

The claimants submitted that due to much pressure from the sisters, missionaries and lay missionaries who reside up-country asking to be accommodated at the hostel, the claimants have been left with no option but to cease housing its employees and pay them house allowance in accordance with the collective agreement.

On the 23rd April 1983 the claimants' administrator for Kenya wrote to the affected employees who were housed mainly men, to vacate their accommodation by the 1st June, 1985 and to surrender their keys to the sister in-charge of the hostel. They were specifically informed in the letters that they would be paid their house allowance with effect from 31st June, 1985 as is applicable to the other employees not housed

The pressure on this accommodation became apparent from 1st June, 1985 when the claimants were preparing accommodation ready for guests attending the UN Women's Decade Conference and those attending the 43rd International Eucharistic Congress from the 11th to 18th August, 1985, and thereafter for the sisters and missionaries living up country. Further, the same accommodation would be used for other activities organized by the headquarters which is not far from the hostel.

The communication on this subject was discussed with the Labour Officer, Nairobi area who approved that the letters to these workers didn't infringe the collective agreement. The respondents rejected the letters and asked for a joint meeting. After this, a conciliation meeting was fixed for 28th May, 1985 between

- (a) Labour Officer—Mr Mutisya (Chairman)
- (b) KLDHEIHA—Messrs Kitari and Keiga
- (c) Three representatives from Flora Hostel
- (d) Claimants' administrator for Kenya

After the meeting had started and had proceeded for a while, the claimants' administrator was sent out without explanation and was later called in to sign the paper presented to her by the chairman Mr Mutisya. The gist of the paper was that the dispute would have to go to the Minister for Labour for further discussion.

The claimants later contacted Mr Mutugi, the Labour Commissioner, for advice. He confirmed that the workers should vacate the rooms in order to facilitate renovations to take place in readiness for occupation by their guests attending the conference. His decision was conveyed to the parties appealing to the respondents to co-operate with his recommendations. As the time was drawing near for the NGO forum, another letter was sent out to the workers and the respondents. All these were eventually rejected. The respondents' union wrote to the Labour Commissioner advising him that the workers would not vacate the premises.

The matter took a different turn when the Catholic Secretariat wrote to FKE informing them of their intention to evict the affected workers from Flora Hostel. Nothing much happened after this move other than reporting a trade dispute since the respondents' union refused to support the claimants' proposals.

The parties then signed Form 'A' and the case is now before the court for arbitration.

The claimants have in the past, housed male employees in the hostel but now they have found it necessary to set aside these rooms for the needs already stated herein before. The question of renting or paying for hotel accommodation for those attending these courses have been found expensive and prohibitive hence the need to reserve this accommodation for them. The affected staff, like female employees, will be entitled to a house allowance as laid down in the collective agreement.

The respondents have argued that it was early in 1985 when their members, affected by this dispute, learnt that KSh 52 per month normally deducted towards other services provided by the claimants were not effected in accordance with the collective agreement. These nominal deductions covered rent, water, electricity and furniture charges. These deductions, however, were subsequently refunded in full to the workers dating back to January 1984.

The respondents have vigorously rejected the grounds given by the claimants in this dispute calling for the workers to vacate these quarters in favour of a house allowance. The quarters in question were specifically built for housing the employees as provided for under the collective agreement and in the Employment Act (Cap 226, sec 9) which states:

"Every employer shall at all times, at his own expenses, provide reasonable housing accommodation for each of his employees either at or near to the place of employment."

The respondents contend that the claimants have no legal right to evict these workers from accommodation they occupy by virtue of their employment and while the same employment contract is still in force.

They further stress that the respondents have no right of changing domestic buildings under service tenancy for other purposes without proper authority from the Nairobi City Commission.

They further argue that allowing the claimants to evict these workers for whatever reason will create a precedent, and other employers will in future demand vacant possession of such accommodation with a short notice and by menace, thereby subjecting workers to unnecessary hardships.

The court had earlier made the following preliminary ruling:

"The court has carefully considered the submissions made by the parties to the dispute on the question of whether or not the Industrial Court has jurisdiction to entertain and make an award on the issue in dispute which reads 'refusal by the workers to vacate the rooms which are required immediately'."

"In view of the fact that the Minister for Labour accepted the dispute when it was reported to him no doubt after approval by the Tripartite Committee on which COTU, FKE and the government are represented and the Labour Commissioner's certificate certifying that all available machinery (including statutory machinery) for the voluntary settlement has been exhausted the court has decided to proceed with the hearing."

"This will be without prejudice to the preliminary point re jurisdiction as the court would like to know more facts about this dispute before making a final decision. The court would like to leave this point open for the time being in case any new points re facts of the case are brought forward which may have a direct bearing on it."

"The hearing of the dispute will therefore proceed on a mutually convenient date to all."

The court has now carefully considered the parties' submissions and finds that the claimants have made out a case for varying the contract of employment of their employees who are housed by them to the extent that they should vacate their rooms and find their own accommodation. The court is satisfied that the claimants have obtained the change of user permission from the Nairobi City Commission. The court, however, finds that the claimants must offer some consideration to these employees who have been housed by them for years for requiring them to vacate the rooms. The court awards that all these employees should be given a three months' notice from the date of the court award to vacate their rooms and in addition the claimants should pay each one of the employees concerned a cash sum of KSh 1,500. The affected workers will be entitled to a monthly house allowance as laid down in the collective agreement from the date they vacate the rooms.

Having made this award, the court would like it to be noted that this award should not by any means be considered a precedent as each case will be very thoroughly scrutinized before any award is made by the court and the employers should not expect the court to easily fall in with their wishes in such disputes. They will have to have very sound and convincing reasons to bring such disputes to the Industrial Court if at all.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO 1694

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap 506)

NOTICE is given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within sixty (60) days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on form TM No 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of KSh 50.

Notice is also given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

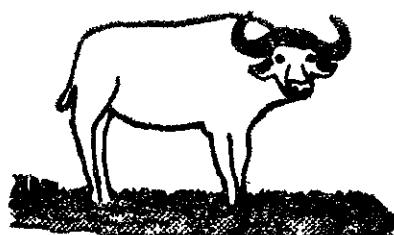

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Office, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in part A of the register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Application for part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.
