GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 199

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 41 OF 1986

Parties:

Kenya Engineering Workers Union
and Civicon Limited

Issue in dispute:

Wages clause in the signed collective agreement which the parties agreed on, on 14th November, 1983.

THE Kenya Engineering Workers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Civicon Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 13th November, 1986, and in addition to relying on their written and verbal submissions, the respondents called Christopher Horsey, who is one of the directors to give evidence on oath.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th November, 1985, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 29th April, 1986, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The claimants submitted that the parties negotiated the agreement in question under the chairmanship of the Provincial Labour Officer, Mombasa, and that the draft of what was agreed upon was initialled by both parties. They stated that they undertook to prepare a proper agreement on what was agreed to be signed by the parties. They further submitted that while preparing the agreement the shop steward forwarded them a list showing that the employees were earning more than the new basic minimums which they had agreed upon.

The claimants further submitted that the parties at the joint negotiating committee had agreed on a 10 per cent increase on the new basic minimums because the respondents had misled them during the negotiations saying that their employees wages were below the basic minimums. Later the claimants found from the list compiled by the shop steward that the employees were earning more than the new basic minimums.

The claimants stated that when this came to light, they telephoned the respondents' accountant, Mr. Khan, and the Provincial Labour Officer, Mombasa and informed them that they had been taken for a ride and also that the agreement they were preparing was to read 10 per cent increase on the current wages and not on the new basic wages as agreed during negotiations.

They further stated that Mr. Khan did not agree with the shop steward's list but the claimants went ahead and prepared an agreement including a clause giving the workers a 10 per cent increase on current wages.

They stated that after the agreement was prepared, they forwarded it to the provincial labour officer to sign and informed him to forward it to the respondents to counter-sign. They stated that the employer signed the agreement as amended by them after the provincial labour officer had also signed it.

Finally, they submitted that it was the respondents' duty to read the agreement properly before signing and that their objection to the registration of the agreement was an after thought as they had signed the agreement voluntarily. They strongly denied that they had tricked the respondents into signing the agreement and requested the court to order the respondents to implement the agreement as worded by them and signed by the respondents and the provincial labour officer.

The respondents strongly submitted that the agreement they had signed had been altered by the claimants to read differently from what was agreed upon during negotiations and that they were tricked by the claimants to sign the agreement which had been altered without their knowledge.

They strongly submitted that the claimants should not be allowed to take advantage of inserting words which were not agreed upon during negotiations, and that the claimants never called to inform them about the alterations they had made.

The respondents further stated that the parties had agreed to 10 per cent increase on minimum wages and not 10 per cent increase on the current wages as worded by the claimants. They stated that they signed the agreement in good faith and with mutual trust but later on they discovered that the claimants had made some alterations and they requested the claimants to re-draft and re-type the agreement as agreed upon at the joint negotiating committee which request, the claimants totally refused and instead had demanded that the agreement should be implemented as amended by them (the claimants).

The respondents stated that the court should not confirm what the claimants are intending to achieve fraudulently and requested the court to direct the parties to draw up a proper agreement on what was agreed during negotiations.

The respondents witness Christopher Horsey while giving evidence stated that he had signed the agreement on behalf of the respondents and that he did not carefully check the wording of the agreement before signing. He admitted that he only checked the basic minimum wages which he confirmed were as agreed before signing the agreement and that after two weeks he noticed the difference in wording giving workers a 10 per cent wage increase on their current wages instead of the new basic minimum as agreed during the negotiations.

The court must recall that in the past in a few cases the trade unions have come and pleaded very strongly that they had signed the collective agreements through a mistake and that they had not bothered to read the agreements before signing them and had relied on the employers for having drafted them properly. Later on after signing the agreements they discovered that they had made a mistake. The court has consistently rejected their pleas and ordered them to live by their mistakes during the lives of those collective agreements.

In this case it is an employer who is pleading that he signed the collective agreement without properly checking it and without noticing that the claimants had according to the respondents' allegation altered the relevant clause on the wage increase.

The court has carefully considered the parties' submissions and the evidence given by one of the respondents' directors, Christopher Horsey, but is unable to find that a fraud has been perpetrated against them by the claimants. The collective agreement in question containing the alleged "fraud" was signed by the claimants, by the respondents and by the Provincial Labour Officer, Mombasa, Mr. Olang'. The explanation given by the claimants as to what transpired after the negotiations and the steps they took to get the workers their proper entitlements appears to be perfectly reasonable and logical. The fact that the parties then signed the agreement witnessed by the provincial labour officer further enforces the claimants' side of the story.

As the court has awarded in the past against the trade unions and ordered them to live by their so-called mistakes the court must order the respondents also to do the same. Accordingly the court finds in favour of the claimants and rules that the agreement which has been submitted to the industrial court for registration should be honoured by the respondents.

The court would like to add a word of caution that if the court was to deviate from this position of upholding properly signed collective agreements by the parties at the behest of one of them, then it will lead to an impossible situation. The court would once again like to warn both the trade unions and the employers to carefully read the collective agreements, which are extremely important documents regulating terms and conditions of employment of hundreds and thousands of workers in the country, before they sign them and commit themselves to honouring them.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 200

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 45 OF 1986

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers
and
Hogg Robinson (K) Limited

Issues in dispute:

General wage increase; housing allowance; leave travelling allowance and burial expenses.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Hogg Robinson (K) Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 2nd October, 1986 and 28th November, 1986 and relied on their verbal and written submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 8th April, 1986, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 29th April, 1986 together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are insurance brokers with headquarters in Nairobi. They employ a total of 132 employees out of which 103 are unionizable and are subject to this dispute. This dispute arose as a result of the parties attempt to revise their latest collective agreement which was in force with effect from 1st April, 1983, for a period of two years expiring on 31st March, 1985. The parties have agreed on most of the issues except the ones now before the court.

General Wage Increase:

During the hearing of this dispute, the claimants told the court that the respondents have been under-compensating their employees since April 1979. The claimants felt that the respondents' refusal to compensate the workers was a violation of the wages guidelines which they viewed as a grave offence. Hence the claimants would like the court to recompensate the workers by awarding them a general wage increase of 59 per cent for the period April 1979 to March 1983 and a further increment for the period April 1983 to March 1985 of 23.5 per cent. The claimants would also want the court to consider the latest agreement covering April 1985 to March 1987 and give the workers another wage increase.

The respondents in their reply strongly denied that they ignored the workers' entitlements. The respondents told the court that they were aware of the workers' entitlements covering the period 1979 to March 1983 and that they, the respondents, gave the workers a salary increase of 70.3 per cent over and above their entitlement of 59 per cent. Praying the court not to award any wage increment for the period April 1979 to March 1983, the respondents stated that the parties' agreement was registered by the court in the presence of both the parties with no complaint by the claimants and that, the resurrection of the period in question is an indirect move to make an appeal to the court to decide on matters which the parties themselves had decided upon.

Housing Allowance:

The claimants submitted that the parties agreed to a 15 per cent of the general wage increase to be treated as housing allowance in 1983 and any balance over and above the 15 per cent was to be paid to the workers as wage increase. The claimants emphasized that KSh. 15 and KSh. 25, respectively, proposed by the respondents to have been paid to the workers in 1983 were the balance which the employees were denied. Because of the foregoing, the claimants are demanding housing allowance as shown below:

	KSh.
Subordinate staff .....	280
Senior Subordinate .....	300
Clerical grade III .....	400
Senior clerical grade .....	520

The claimants stated that the amounts demanded as housing allowance were equivalent to that paid by the insurance group of employers and prayed the court to award accordingly.

The respondents in their response told the court that according to the wage guidelines of 1982 which allowed deconsolidation of wages by 15 per cent to constitute housing allowance, they, the respondents, gave their employees an amount as housing allowance and left the consolidated wages intact. For this reason the respondents now offer an increase of KSh. 15 to subordinate staff and clerical staff grade II. For clerical grade I and senior clerical grade they offer an increment of KSh. 25.

Leave Travelling Allowance:

On this item, the claimants stated that the respondents are engaged in similar business as the insurance group of employers and prayed the court to order the respondents to pay equivalent to the employers group as follows:

	KSh.
Subordinate staff .....	850
Clerical grade III .....	1,470
Clerical grade I .....	1,640
Senior clerical grade I .....	1,640

In their reply, the respondents submitted that they were insurance brokers and exist on commission and it would be wrong for the claimants to expect them to pay like the insurance underwriters. All the same, the respondents offered an increment of KSh. 50 to the current leave travelling allowance of KSh. 800.

Burial Expenses:

The claimants are demanding KSh. 2,000 as burial expenses and based their demand on the insurance group of employers' agreement.

The respondents objected to the introduction of this item and told the court that the respondents at present operate a fully funded life insurance scheme for their employees which provides for payment of four times annual salary on the death of an employee to his beneficiary. Calling it an "extra-ordinary lavish benefit" the respondents prayed the court to reject the claimants' demand on this item.

After careful consideration of the parties' submissions, the court awards as follows:

General Wage Increase:

The court awards a wage increase of 12 per cent for the first year and another 12 per cent for the second year. The second year wage increase is to be worked out after adding the first year wage increase to the salaries of all the employees affected by the award.

Housing Allowance:

After examining the arguments put before it and relying on guideline (v), the court awards as follows:

	KSh.
Subordinate staff ...	205
Senior Subordinate	220
Clerical grade II	270
Clerical grade I	320
Senior clerical	400

Leave Travelling Allowance:

The court awards KSh. 850 as leave travelling allowance to the subordinate staff and KSh. 1,000 to the clerical grades.

Burial Expenses:

The court rejects the claimants' demand in view of the fully funded life insurance scheme for their employees.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 55 OF 1986

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers
and
Insurance Company of East Africa Limited

Issue in dispute:

Recognition.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Insurance Company of East Africa Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 17th November, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. This dispute was referred to the Industrial court by the Minister for Labour on 7th May, 1986 in accordance with section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act.

The respondents are an insurance company and deal with insurance business of general nature and employ a total of 89 unionizable employees. The claimants allege that they recruited all the unionizable employees of the respondents into their membership and that the respondents have refused to recognize them, while the respondents say that the claimants have not recruited a simple majority of the unionizable employees.

The claimants told the court that since 1982 they had enrolled about 95 per cent of the whole labour force of the respondents. The employees voluntarily signed check-off forms which were forwarded to the respondents. In January 1983, the claimants wrote to the respondents seeking recognition. The claimants stated that the respondents never bothered to acknowledge or reply to the said letter. As they were left with no alternative they reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour. The claimants produced to the court check-off forms which they claimed were sent to the respondents to effect deductions of union dues but the respondents failed to do so. The claimants told the court that they are the right union to represent the employees of the respondents. The claimants accused the respondents of victimization of union members so that the members would revoke their check-off instructions. The claimants prayed the court to award in their favour.

The respondents told the court that they had no quarrel with the claimants over recognition but pointed out that the claimants had not recruited a simple majority of the workers as required by law. The respondents stated that since 1965 when the respondents commenced their business no attempt was made to recruit employees into the claimants' union until November 1982 when the respondents received from the claimants the first notice under the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act authorizing the deductions of trade union dues from the salaries of the employees listed.

The respondents produced to the court the originals of seven such notices which contain names of 61 employees. Out of the original check-off list, 19 employees have left service of the respondents and another 18 employees have revoked their union membership. At present, the respondents said there are 24 employees who are union members and to date check-off system is being applied with dues being forwarded on monthly basis to the claimant and to COTU in respect of these.

The respondents submitted that the claimants have failed to recruit a simple majority of the staff working for the respondents and their two subsidiary companies and prayed the court not to accord the claimants recognition as demanded.

The court concurs with the finding of the Ministry of Labour investigator who found that the claimants could not fully explain the check-off system as it had many erroneous entries. Even during the hearing, the claimants failed to satisfy the court that they had enrolled a simple majority of the respondents' unionizable employees into their membership. The representation in court by the claimants' representative left a lot to be desired.

The court finds that the claimants cannot win recognition until such time as they have recruited a simple majority of the respondents' employees who are unionizable. In the meantime, their demand stands rejected.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 202

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 85 OF 1986

Parties:

Kudheha Workers

and

Aga Khan Hospital (Nairobi)

Issues in dispute:

Minimum wage; general wage increases; house allowance; and medical treatment.

THE Kudheha Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Aga Khan Hospital shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 15th December, 1986, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 4th April, 1986, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 3rd September, 1986, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a private hospital whose prime objective is the need to care for the sick in the country.

The present dispute arose from the parties' attempt to renew their collective agreement which expired on 30th November, 1984. The parties held several meetings and later the Ministry of Labour appointed a conciliator to assist the parties on reaching an agreement. The parties agreed on most of the issues except the ones now before the court.

Minimum Wage

The claimants demanded that the basic minimum wage for each and every job group be raised by Sh. 300. They argued that, the parties had agreed in previous collective agreement for Sh. 100 per year increase for three years. Therefore, as employees wages were automatically raised by Sh. 100 every year so did the basic minimum wages. The claimants argued very strongly that, basic minimum wages pertaining to Aga Khan Hospital are the lowest within the city of Nairobi among the medical institutions like the Nairobi Hospital and the Social Service League (M.P. Shah Hospital). They contended that, their demand was to place the respondents on the same level with those other hospitals of similar standard cited herein above.

General Wage Increases

The claimants submitted that, every employee who was in the employment of the respondents as at 1st December, 1984, should receive a 25 per cent wage increase for the first year and a further 25 per cent wage increase for the second year with effect from 1st December, 1985. The claimants strongly argued that, the management staff are well paid and remunerated compared to the unionizable employees. They also told the court that the respondents make a lot of money and have the capacity to pay.

House Allowance

The claimants have in their submissions argued that, their members have continued to receive consolidated monthly wages although such wages were deconsolidated by a legal notice in August 1982. They demanded 45 per cent of individual salaries to be introduced as housing allowance effective from 1st December, 1984. The argument was that, 45 per cent is only meant to subsidize housing and not fully compensate the employees monthly cost on rent.

Medical Treatment

The claimants told the court that, they have withdrawn the amendments they had sought on medical treatment clause. They further pleaded with the court to reject the respondents' prayer of 50 per cent payment of the total medical bill by their employees on discharge. They prayed that they continue paying Sh. 50 per day as agreed by the parties some ten years ago.

Minimum Wages

The respondents stated that, they propose to make the current consolidated basic wages to be the minimum wages as shown hereunder for a period of two years.

Group	Previous Minimum Wages	Proposed Minimum Wages
1	607	800
2	682	900
3	708	1,000
4	818	1,100
5	898	1,200
6	968	1,300
7	1,068	1,400

The respondents submitted that their offer is reasonable and is based on the fact that the minimum wages are only meant for newly recruited staff. The respondents stated further that it would be unfair to place newly employed employees on the same level with long-service employee as demanded by the claimants. They pleaded with the court to uphold their offer.

General Wage Increases:

The respondents submitted that, they are offering their employees their entitlements under the wages guidelines which is 14.5 per cent per year. They continued to tell the court that, their offer is fair upon the ground that they had over compensated on other items particularly daily meals and medical treatment.

House Allowance

The respondents told the court that they have no objection to the deconsolidation of wages as provided for by the wages guidelines.

The respondents went ahead to tell the court that, if their offer on the basic minimum wages is acceptable, they shall deconsolidate those rates by 15 per cent to provide housing allowance. Thereafter, they shall add 50 per cent or a half which is 14.5 per cent to the housing element to make up total housing allowance obtainable under the collective agreement.

They requested the court to reject the claimants demand for being excessive and beyond wages guidelines.

Medical Treatment

The respondents told the court that they would like the employees to pay 50 per cent of the total bill on discharge of their dependants when hospitalized instead of the current Sh. 50 per day. They argued that they have been over generous on medical treatment and they find it, difficult coping with the escalating cost of medical services of their employees.

Their demand, the respondents explained to the court, was prompted by the fact that they are a non-profit making organization and their development projections are estimated to cost over KSh. 10 million during 1986/87 financial year.

After careful consideration of the parties' submissions, the court awards as follows on each item.

Minimum Wages

The court finds that the respondents have agreed to revise the previous basic minimum wages for all job groups by: (a) Sh. 193, (b) Sh. 218, (c) Sh. 292, (d) Sh. 282, (e) Sh. 302, (f) 332 and (g) Sh. 332, respectively.

The court also notes that the collective agreement in dispute expired on 30th November, 1986, and awards basic minimum wages as offered by the respondents.

General Wages Increase

The court finds that the respondents have offered to grant the employees their entitlement under the wages guidelines which is 14.5 per cent for the first year and a further 14.5 per cent for the second year or a total of 29.0 per cent for the whole period of the agreement. The court accordingly rejects the claimants' demand of 25 per cent each year and awards the employees a wage increase of 14.5 per cent per year. The increase for the second year should be calculated after the first year wage increase has been added to the existing wages.

House Allowance

The court has carefully considered this issue and the arguments put forward by the parties and has decided to award as provided for by the wages guidelines.

In accordance with guideline (iv) (b) (ii), the court awards 15 per cent of the basic minimum wages as awarded by the court to be the housing element so as to deconsolidate wages.

The court further notes that, the respondents had offered to grant 14.5 per cent of the housing element obtainable after the deconsolidation process to make up total housing allowance under the collective agreement.

The court, instead of the proposed 14.5 per cent has decided to award an additional Sh. 50 per month to the 15 per cent housing element of the minimum wages.

Medical Treatment

The court rejects the respondents' prayer that the employees be responsible for 50 per cent of their dependants' medical fees and rules that the parties continue with their established pattern since their first collective agreement.
