GAZETTE NOTICE No. 1377

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 7 OF 1982

Parties:

Kenya Union of Entertainment & Music Industry Employees and Bomas of Kenya Ltd.

Issue in dispute:

Dismissal of Messrs. Rose Nadunga, Susan Ndegwa and Sophia Harun.

1. The Kenya Union of Entertainment & Music Industry Employees shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Bomas of Kenya Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 26th and 27th April, 1982 and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 26th March, 1981 duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 2nd February, 1982 together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

This dispute concerns three dancers who used to work for the Respondents and lost their employment because they became pregnant contrary to rule (e) of the conditions of employment which rule reads:

"Paid maternity leave shall be granted only after two years' continuous service with the company and such leave may not exceed 60 days. Recipients of this leave will normally be those lawfully or customarily married."

Rose Nadunga had her services terminated on 27th January, 1979 when she already had an advanced pregnancy.

Susan Ndegwa received her notice on 8th February, 1979 when she was already three and half months pregnant.

Sophia Harun received her notice on 8th February, 1979 when she was already having a pregnancy of 12 weeks.

Rose had been re-engaged by the Respondents on 1st December, 1976 and Susan was employed on 13th December, 1977. Sophia started working on 3rd December, 1978 which indicates that either she was already pregnant at the time of the employment or became pregnant immediately after joining the Respondents. It is not disputed that she had not even completed her training period of six months to qualify as a full fledged dancer.

The dispute was reported to the Minister for Labour and the Ministry's findings were conveyed to the parties on 11th July, 1980, in respect of Rose and Susan and on 5th August, 1981 in respect of Sophia. The findings and recommendations in respect of each one of them were as follows:

Rose Nadunga.—Investigations revealed that girls employed at the Bomas of Kenya need to be in good health in order to perform the rigorous traditional dances for which they are trained for six months. The company spends a great deal of money which can only be repaid back through shows and displays staged by these dancers.

The company provides that a female dancer is allowed to have maternity leave with full pay after two years of service which Miss Nadunga did not comply with although she was paid in full. Considering the fact that she was given one month's notice which ran concurrently with her leave, I find that her dismissal was justified since she had been given a second chance.

In view of the facts contained herein I recommend that the action taken by the management in terminating her services be upheld. The union's demand is hereby rejected.

Susan Ndegwa.—Investigations revealed that Miss Ndegwa had actually performed an abortion to save herself from losing her job with the company. Besides the action being illegal in the country it also meant that this was a risk to one's health which the employers could not condone. Besides health is of paramount importance to a dancer whose earnings depended on her performance and in whom the company spent a lot of money. It was also found to be true that Miss Ndegwa was given notice and took her leave and in the circumstances the termination was found to have been justified.

Sophia Harun.—Investigations revealed that female employees undergo a rigorous training in traditional dances and as such are required to be in good state of health. The company depends on the shows for its financial affairs. The rule is such that a female employee has to work for two years before she can be granted maternity leave with full pay as good part of this is for training. This regulation forms part of their conditions of service which they sign on engagement. Miss Harun did not honour the terms of her contract as it is obvious by becoming pregnant her training period would be interfered with. It is also noted that she had not been married during this particular time.

Miss Harun was not dismissed as alleged and I recommend that her termination stands."

The Claimants rejected these and the dispute is now before the Court.

The Claimants' main submission is that the Respondents have violated the provisions of the Employment Act 1976 because of restrictive conditions requiring that the dancers in their employment would not be entitled to any paid maternity leave unless they completed two years' continuous service and further that only lawfully or customarily married women would be entitled to this leave.

The Claimants pointed out the Minister for Labour had not exempted female dancers from enjoying the rights like paid maternity leave under section 7 (2) of the Employment Act; they emphasized that this section had been enacted to protect working women from unfair dismissals as the ones before the Court which really amounted to discrimination in job opportunity by reason of women workers having contracted pregnancy. The Claimants asked for all three of them to be reinstated to their jobs as dancers and also asked for an award to cover all the wages for the time they had been out of employment.

The Respondents emphasized that their main and the only business activity is entertainment by the dancers who are not productive or cannot produce a high standard of performance unless or until they have individually undergone a thorough training for a period of six months and continue in their jobs for at least 18 months thereafter. This was the reason why they had included the aforesaid term in the conditions of employment which all these dancers accepted without any complaint. They added that there had been very few cases of pregnancy particularly among unmarried female dancers and added that dancing in the troupe of Bomas of Kenya was no longer a temporary exercise. It was now a permanent feature to which serious persons could aspire as a career.

The Respondents maintained that the condition (e) may be repugnant to section 7 (2) of the Employment Act but there was a justification for it because it was through this that the Respondents were able to maintain discipline and efficiency and direct the general conduct of their female dancers who were drawn mainly from the countryside. They did this in good faith in order to keep their company economically viable and capable of supporting its activities.

The Court finds that the aforesaid condition (e) in the contract of employment of these dancers is indeed repugnant to section 7 (2) of the Employment Act in that it purports to deny a female dancer paid maternity leave in the first year of employment and further imposes a condition that it would be granted to those dancers only who were lawfully or customarily married.

The Court notes that the Respondents have not disputed the Claimants' contention that these three dancers lost their jobs because they had become pregnant.

The Court cannot overlook the parties' own efforts to solve this dispute when they had met on 22nd March, 1982 although this meeting ended in a deadlock they had made significant moves in settling the dispute as following positions indicate:

"Company's position."—The management stated that in the interest of good industrial relations it was prepared to create three new posts to absorb the three ex-employees as dancers on the following conditions:

- (a) They would be taken back under the new terms of employment as contained in the current collective agreement signed between the parties.
- (b) They would start working on 1st April, 1982 provided each one of them produces a letter signed by a qualified medical doctor confirming her physical fitness to perform her duties as a dancer.
- (c) If they did not get their maternity benefits under the law at the time of termination then they would get two months pay each.

Union's position.—The union stated that it would accept the management's offer of taking back the three ex-employees, provided that:

- (a) The question of maternity leave was re-examined. If they were not paid for it then they should be paid.
- (b) In addition to maternity benefits they should be given compensation equivalent to ten months' pay each.

However the union indicated that it was prepared to accept any compensation which was more than the two months' pay offered by the company and less than ten months pay as it had proposed."

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court finds that these three dancers have indeed suffered a wrongful dismissal but keeping in mind the nature of the Respondents' activity i.e. dance entertainment and the necessity that their dancers should maintain themselves in a fit and attractive state to be able to perform their arduous duties the Court is not inclined to award heavy compensation in this dispute. These dancers should realize that if they are serious in making dancing their career then they have to be extremely careful in matters of pregnancy as otherwise they are only jeopardizing their jobs as dancers. It would indeed be uneconomical for an employer who is engaged in organizing dancing shows to keep on granting paid maternity leave every year to the female dancers working for him.

Having said that, the Court awards that Rose Nadunga and Susan Ndegwa should each be given four months' salary by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that they have suffered. This compensation includes the claims that were put forward on their behalf for accrued leave but is in addition to what they have already received.

As far as Sophia Harun is concerned since she had worked for the Respondents slightly more than three months only the Court makes no award.

The Court further directs the Respondents that if any of these three dancers wish to take employment with them then they should be offered jobs on the conditions (a) and (b) as put forward by them and as set out hereinabove when they were negotiating a settlement.

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form TM. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him an opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Office, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in Part A of the Register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for Part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.
