2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 13th, 14th and 22nd October, 1976, and in addition to relying on their written and verbal submissions, called the following witnesses to give evidence on oath—

Claimants:—

F. J. Mbutei.
J. K. Nyaga.
A. Kamunde.

Respondents:—

B. Ratnam.
N. B. Mukutwa.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 9th July, 1976, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 16th August along with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

Although the Notification of Dispute Form lists as issues in dispute termination of services of Alex Kamunde and Joshua Odira Adongo, their disputes are not related in any manner. They are strictly separate disputes but have been allowed to be forwarded to the Court on the same Notification of Dispute Form. Accordingly the Court proceeded to hear only the dispute of Kamunde on the above dates, and the case of Joshua Odira Adongo will be heard by the Court on another date to be fixed with the consent of the parties.

Alex Kamunde had been in the service of the Respondents since 16th August, 1968, up to the time of his termination on 16th May, 1975. He was at that time the chief shopsteward in the Bank and was also Joint Secretary of the Bank's Joint Negotiating Council.

The reason for the termination of his services under clause 4 (d) of the collective agreement between the parties is the allegation that on 5th May, 1975, he had made a false entry in his attendance and overtime sheet indicating that he had worked overtime. As a result he obtained a sum of Sh. 40/10 from the Respondents improperly.

The dispute was the subject matter of investigation by the Ministry of Labour and the Permanent Secretary forwarded the findings and recommendation to the parties on 3rd February, 1976. The findings were as follows:—

"From the reply given by Kamunde it appears that he had no defence to make on the accusations levelled against him. This being the case then Kamunde in making the claim of overtime knew that it was a false claim."

In view of the above observations Kamunde is to blame for the action taken against him."

The Claimants were not happy at the manner in which the investigation had been carried out and asked the Chief Industrial Relations Officer to reopen the investigation. Apparently this was accepted but the Claimants alleged that the Investigator took absolutely no further action in the matter and the Chief Industrial Relations Officer on 5th July, 1976, informed them that there was nothing further to add to the recommendations made on 3rd February, 1976.

The Claimants maintained that Kamunde had been victimized for his trade union activities and that from the time of the strike in the banking industry in 1974 he was a marked man and the Respondents were on the lookout for an excuse to get rid of him.

The Claimants also bitterly attacked the Respondents' management for creating unnecessary trouble in cooking up fictitious charges against their employees which later they had to withdraw and apologize for the same.

The Respondents submitted that they were satisfied that Kamunde although instructed to work overtime on 5th May, 1975, did not do so but the following morning had come and made an entry in the attendance and overtime record that he had worked overtime up to 8.15 p.m. They denied that Kamunde's services were terminated because he was a shopsteward. They maintained that it was a clear case of dishonesty which could not be tolerated in the banking industry as the most important attribute in any employee, in the banks particularly, is honesty. They further stated that the amount involved, Sh. 40/10, is immaterial. It is the fact that Kamunde made a false entry as a result of which he obtained a sum of money from the bank improperly.

This case is not a simple and straightforward case and is further complicated by the contradictory evidence given by the witnesses called by both the parties in support of their respective stands.

The section head under whom Kamunde and three other employees were required to work overtime on 5th May, 1975, stated that he inquired from the other employees where Kamunde was when he came between 5 and 5.30 p.m. and was told that he was around but he never saw Kamunde during the period he was on duty up to 8 p.m. when he left with Kamunde still being absent.

This witness, Mukutwa, admitted that he had also made a false entry once in his overtime sheet in 1973. He was called by the management and after his error was pointed out he apologized for the incident. He was allowed to continue to work for the Respondents and was promoted on 24th February, 1975.

The three other colleagues of Kamunde, however, gave a written statement which was prepared and typed in the Claimants' offices stating that Kamunde came back to the bank at about 5.20 p.m. and stayed there until 7.30 p.m. when he went out. When he was away Mukutwa came in the bank and stayed for a short while and left at about 7.45 p.m. Immediately he had gone, Kamunde came in and was at his desk until 8.30 p.m. when he left and they continued working up to 8.45 p.m. They further stated that although Kamunde recorded his time of departure as 8.15 p.m. he actually left the bank at 8.30 p.m. The reason for this recording was to compensate for the time he had gone out during the overtime working period. Two of them, F. J. Mbutei and J. K. Nyaga confirmed their statement on oath in Court and were cross-examined.

The Court notes that the Respondents suspected Kamunde of having made a false entry re overtime worked on 5th May and asked him the very next day after they had verbally questioned him in the morning that as they were not satisfied with his verbal version they wanted a written reply from him within three days. Kamunde, however, replied to this letter on 13th May, 1975, and in this letter in the last paragraph he wrote as follows:—

"In any case, I would request you to make whatever adjustments you deem fit based on the information you have, rather than engaging in correspondence on such trivial matters."

It is most surprising that although the Respondents were in the process of investigating the false entry made by Kamunde they proceeded to pay him the overtime claimed for that particular day, i.e. Sh. 40/10. They explained that they did so because at that time the investigations had not been completed and Kamunde had not given a written explanation. They had therefore no alternative but to pay him this amount.

The Court very much doubts the explanation by the Respondents for paying this amount to Kamunde and finds that they did so in order to make Kamunde's offence of making a false entry in his attendance and overtime record more serious in order to give them a justifiable reason to terminate his services. There was nothing to prevent them from telling Kamunde that he would not be paid for this overtime claim until such time as their inquiries were completed. The Court does not accept their explanation that if they had not done so all hell would have been let loose on them as Kamunde was a shopsteward.

The Court has carefully studied the evidence of all the witnesses and has come to the conclusion that Kamunde did not work overtime for all the period for which he made the claim on 5th May, 1975. The Court, however, cannot with absolute certainty come to the conclusion that Kamunde having left the bank at about 4.45 p.m. did not come at all into the bank to work overtime that night. The Court feels that Kamunde to begin with came rather late to work overtime and then after sometime disappeared, thereafter he came back shortly after 8 p.m. when Mukutwa, the section head, had left the bank. It is quite probable that on two occasions when Mukutwa inquired about Kamunde, the latter was at the time out of the bank.

The Court was told that the employees in this bank who work overtime are trusted to stay in the bank and work overtime for the period required and to make their entries in the attendance and overtime record the next day and there is no supervision as such to ensure that they do so. This is indeed a weakness in the management and if there was a proper supervision then such an incident could not have occurred whereby an employee took such an undue advantage of the trust placed in him.

The Court was told that Kamunde had behaved badly towards the management on previous occasions and the Court is satisfied that at least on one occasion Kamunde's behaviour towards a senior member of the management was most deplorable and for which he received a warning letter.

While the Court cannot find that Kamunde did not do any overtime during the night of 5th May, 1975, the Court has no hesitation in finding that he did some overtime work that night but made a claim in excess of the overtime so worked.

The Claimants have pleaded that if the Court comes to this conclusion then the action taken by the Respondents in dismissing Kamunde from the service would be too harsh as they could quite easily have adjusted his overtime claim and at most given him a severe warning.

The Court finds that there is a lot of merit in this plea made by the Claimants on behalf of their member. The Court is quite convinced that had Kamunde not been the chief shopsteward he would not have suffered a termination and in all likelihood he would have received a severe warning as in the case of Mukutwa in the past.

The Court was told that the shopstewards in the Respondents' banks are in the habit of bullying the management. While this may appear to be so at first sight the management cannot escape shouldering blame for this sort of confrontation with the union representatives in view of at least two incidents when having made serious allegations against certain of their employees they had to apologize to the Claimants subsequently.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court finds that Kamunde has suffered a wrongful termination but the Court is not prepared to order his reinstatement because of his past behaviour towards the management when in service. He was indeed rude and arrogant towards the management forgetting that an employee's first and foremost loyalty is to his employer and while if such an employee is a union representative he should put forward the members' grievances with vigour this does not give him a licence to ignore his own duties and to adopt an arrogant and rude attitude towards his superiors. Moreover, Kamunde is working in another job now although he stated it was temporary.

The Court awards that Kamunde should be paid three months' salary by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that he has suffered.

Given in Nairobi this 15th day of November, 1976.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 3416

THE TRADE MARKS ACT
(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge Notice of Opposition on Form T.M. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.
