GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 4035

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE NO. 104 OF 1984

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers and
B.A.T. Kenya Limited

Issue in dispute:

Violation of Clause 27 (Housing) of the parties collective agreement.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and B.A.T. Kenya Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard on 10th June, 1985, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 22nd August, 1984, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 20th December, 1984, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The parties to this dispute have an existing recognition and collective agreement governing terms and conditions of employment.

This dispute concerns some 345 unionizable employees housed by the respondents of which about 310 are housed in respondents' village in Nairobi while the remaining 35 are based in rural areas. This arrangement has been in existence for a number of years.

The dispute arose after the parties had negotiated and signed the latest collective agreement over the administration of the house allowance to be paid to the housed employees.

The respondents in the past paid a consolidated wage inclusive of housing element prior to April, 1981. This position changed after the parties agreed that the respondents would provide housing, but, where housing was not available a housing subsidy would be given on top of the consolidated wage, depending on the grades as shown below:

Grades	Sh. per month
1-3	280
4-5	230
6-8	200
Rural areas	50

The above allowances were, however, only paid to employees not housed in the respondents' village in Nairobi or, other company centres in accordance with clause 27 of the parties collective agreement.

During a central joint council meeting of 18th June, 1981, it was resolved that:

"The employees will get the housing subsidy or be housed at a subsidised rental but will not get both."

The question of a new housing subsidy was to be a subject of further negotiations together with other terms and conditions of employment as was the case previously.

The respondents, however, submitted that, when the last agreement expired on 31st March, 1983, the parties entered into new negotiations which, among others included the subject of a new housing subsidy. This issue was vigorously contested by the claimants arguing that the wages had already been deconsolidated after the introduction of a housing subsidy. The respondents pointed out that the subsidized rental charge paid by those housed in the respondents' village in Nairobi and elsewhere was the workers' contributions towards the cost of utilities paid for by the respondents on their behalf. In fact, revenue collected from those housed by the company amounted to some KSh. 388,800 against monthly electricity and water charges of about KSh. 448,674 thus reflecting a deficit of about KSh. 60,000. The respondents failed to understand why the claimants have misconstrued their share towards these outgoings to mean house rental. They were fully aware that a consolidated wage had a housing element in it. This, was the parties understanding at the meeting of June, 1981. It was in this spirit that when the last negotiations came up, the respondents agreed to substantially increase housing allowance and deleted the word "subsidy" and inserted "house allowance" instead.

However, with effect from 1st April, 1983, the parties reached an agreement to amend clause 27 on housing to read as follows:

"Housing"

Besides basic wages/salaries, all employees on permanent terms of service will be entitled to a house allowance as follows:

Grade	House allowance (KSh.)
1	530.00 per month
2	490.00 per month
3	460.00 per month
4	375.00 per month
5	355.00 per month
6	310.00 per month
7	300.00 per month
8	290.00 per month
Rural	80.00 per month

It was agreed further that:

"If housed appropriate deductions will be made"

The above supplementary agreement was signed by both the parties on 1st July, 1983.

Before the registration of the above supplementary agreement, the parties as usual were invited by the court to attend and express their views for or against the registration of the said agreement but no objection to the registration was recorded and the court accordingly proceeded with the registration under RCA. No. 144 of 1981 and the parties were subsequently accordingly notified.

The court has observed that, at a joint negotiations meeting of 28th June, 1983, attended by both parties representatives the issue of housing was raised under item 5 and the minute reads as follows:

"5 Housing"

The Union wanted to know the administration of house allowance for members of staff housed by the company in view of the improved house allowance. After a brief exchange of views from both sides it was suggested and agreed that a sub-committee be appointed to look into the matter and to come up with recommendations on or before the registration of the agreement. Members selected to form this sub-committee were Messrs. Njuguna and Muriithi representing management and Messrs. Kogo, E. Diodio and B. Kabiru representing the Union".

Indeed, both the claimants and the respondents agreed to the foregoing plan of action and were by the above agreement bound to wait for the committee's decision and recommendations before paying new house allowance and effecting appropriate rent deductions to those employees who are housed.

The court would now like to analyse the reasons behind this dispute. The court has noted that when the negotiations broke down because of the respondents' failure to wait for the outcome of the sub-committee's report, the respondents went ahead and made rental deductions as previously but refused to pay new house allowance as was agreed to those workers who are housed. The court further observed that those who had house allowance paid to them had the same allowances withdrawn physically on the pay day from their pay packets, or, deducted from the following month's pay in the case of those paid by cheques. The respondents claimed that the house allowance paid to the affected employees was as a result of a computer error which had to be rectified following a circular letter to the claimants explaining the reasons for their action.

The court finds it very difficult to believe that such an enlightened and educated management like the respondents' made an error in programming their computer to pay full house allowance to their housed employees as well which they call computer error.

The court can find no ambiguity in the collective agreement in the housing clause. It is clearly worded and it is very easy to understand what the parties meant. It was that all employees on permanent terms will be entitled to the house allowance appropriate to their grades and that appropriate deductions will be made in respect of those who are housed.

Prior to this agreement those who were housed had to pay KSh. 180 for double room and KSh. 90 for single room accommodation.

The parties took a step in the right direction when a meeting was held between the shop stewards and the management on 10th August, 1983, which was called to discuss the appropriate rent which should be charged to the employees housed at B.A.T. village and other company houses. The chief shop steward and his colleague attended this meeting where the following conclusion was arrived at:

- (a) Since the two parties could not agree the matter was deferred to allow further consultations.
- (b) It was agreed that deductions of rent shall continue until a decision is made. If it is agreed to scrap them off then they will be paid retrospectively with effect from 1st April, 1983.
- (c) A circular should be put to explain that rent deductions shall continue until the issue is resolved.

The claimants disowned the above conclusion on the ground that the shop stewards approach was not strictly to safeguard the interest of the workers as both of them were soon after the said meeting promoted to managerial positions. The respondents vigorously challenged this assertion and maintained that the shop stewards adopted a realistic attitude.

The court finds that the respondents are committed wittingly or unwittingly through carelessness on the part of their negotiators to giving a house allowance to all their employees including those who are housed as they are not excluded. This is further reinforced by the sentence "if housed appropriate deductions will be made."

The position then emerges that housed employees are to be paid house allowance but appropriate deductions have to be made. The parties have not stated that the old charges of KSh. 180 for double room and KSh. 90 for single room will continue. They simply stated; if housed appropriate deductions will be made. It is obvious that the old deductions were cancelled and replaced by the words "appropriate deductions will be made."

The respondents are certainly in the wrong by not paying the housed employees the agreed new house allowances and continuing to deduct the old charges of KSh. 180 for double room and KSh. 90 for single room. At the same time the claimants stand is not consistent with the quite clear and simple interpretation of this disputed clause. They are entitled to be paid house allowance but at the same time appropriate deductions will be made from their entitlement. They can't claim house allowance and maintain that old charges should continue. The whole clause stands together and both parts of the clause have to be implemented together.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court awards that the respondents should refund to all their housed employees the deductions which they have made from the effective date of the agreement as they ceased to be effective from the date of the new agreement. The court further rules that the parties should immediately embark on negotiations to determine what are the appropriate deductions to be made and once that is done then clause 27 on housing should be implemented in respect of those employees who are housed. In the meantime the respondents should withhold paying the agreed house allowance to the employees who are housed. Once the parties have agreed on the appropriate deductions to be made, then the housed employees should be paid the agreed house allowance. Both the payment of agreed house allowance and appropriate deductions will be with effect from the date of the collective agreement. It is now up to the parties to finalize this matter at a very early date.
