GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 2806

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 72 OF 1990

Parties:

Dockworkers Union
and

Kenya Ports Authority

Issues in dispute:

1. Salaries and wages.
2. Standard house allowance.
3. Owner occupier house allowance.
4. Six day week.
5. Third shift as normal shift.
6. Delineation of staff (revision).

THE Dockworkers Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Kenya Ports Authority shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 4th and 5th September, 22nd, 23rd, 24th and 25th October, 19th and 20th November, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th June, 1990, and duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 13th June, 1990, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents are a parastatal organization established under Cap. 391, and are also governed by the State Corporations Act, Cap. 446 of the Laws of Kenya. The parties entered into a recognition agreement on 9th January, 1986, and their last collective agreement expired on 31st December, 1989. Negotiations had, however, commenced on 3rd November, 1989, when the claimants submitted their proposals to the respondents for a review and revision of the parties' collective agreement, covering the next two (2) years. On 16th November, 1989, the respondents forwarded their counter-proposals to the claimants and on 24th November, 1989, the parties held their first Joint Industrial Council (J.I.C.) meeting. Thereafter a series of meetings were held between them, and at their last Joint Industrial Council (J.I.C.) meeting held on 25th May, 1990, the parties were able to solve six (6) issues out of the 15 items which were under consideration. Again, at the conciliation meeting they agreed upon three (3) more issues out of the remaining nine (9) items, but recorded a deadlock on the six (6) issues now before the court for consideration.

In their opening written submission, the claimants stated that they represented approximately 10,000 unionizable employees who are covered by this dispute; and they fall under grades PA6 to PA12 inclusive—i.e. skilled, semi-skilled, technical, clerical and marine staff, drivers, mechanics, winch and crane operators and auxiliary grades—of the respondents' workforce. On the respondents' "package offers", which will be alluded to later, the claimants accepted the first three (3) items, viz: salaries and wages, standard house allowance and owner-occupier house allowance, but rejected the issues on six-day working week, third shift as normal shift and delineation of staff (revision) as unjustified and unreasonable. They contended that the six-day working week and the third shift as normal shift had been considered by the court in cause No. 74 of 1987, and awarded in their favour. As regards the delineation of staff (revision), the claimants averred that the respondents' demand was unreasonable because the existing set-up had worked very well even during times of stress. They denied that the respondents had suffered any loss of revenue in their operations at the port on the ground that the services were paid for by the port users, and asserted, on the contrary, that the respondents wanted to deny the employees their meagre income to which they were entitled. The claimants maintained that the employees were already under severe financial stress, and the respondents' attitude did not augur well for their, the employees' interests and welfare. They strongly objected to the use of the Government's name by the respondents to intimidate them during the negotiations and in support of their case. The claimants were also against the conditions attached to the package offers by the respondents that they must either accept or reject them as a whole. They pointed out that such conditions were contrary to the industrial relations practice and the employer/employee relationship. The claimants felt that each item should have been considered on its merits.

The claimants accused the respondents of mismanaging the port to the extent that its operations and competitiveness were in grave danger. They feared that if the respondents' package offers were allowed this would destroy the vital human resource, which was the mainstay of the port operations and adversely affect the employees' morale. The claimants averred that the Tanzania Harbours Authority, which was the principal competitor of the respondents, provided several incentives—e.g. meals and beds and mattresses—to their employees, thus rising productivity; whereas, on the other hand, the respondents made their employees scapegoats for their own blunders and mismanagement. They stated that they would not oppose any changes at the port so long as the changes would bring about improvements for the benefit of the employees, and requested the court to award them the three (3) issues for which they have no comment.

The respondents stated in their background submission that the delay in reviewing or revising the parties' collective agreement when it expired on 31st December, 1989, lay with the claimants as the latter procrastinated over the negotiations and settlement of the issues under consideration. Consequently, they were constrained to report a trade dispute as a result of an illegal strike that took place on 4th, 5th and 6th June, 1990, which occasioned industrial disharmony and financial loss to them. The strike was later declared illegal by the Minister for Labour. The respondents contended that the claimants misinformed, misdirected and incited their members that they, the respondents, had imposed stiff conditions on the increases in respect of subsistence, taxi, transport, travelling and games allowance and salaries before implementation. They denied that they imposed any conditions on the agreed allowances. On salaries, the respondents stated that the same had not been agreed upon, and for the claimants to suggest that the management had imposed conditions thereon was in bad taste and dishonest on their part. In fact, they had only forwarded a package offers to the claimants in the spirit of "give and take" and in the light of the court award in cause No. 74 of 1987. The respondents stated that the negotiations between the parties were held in a free and voluntary atmosphere; and, in the circumstances, the claimants' allegations of intimidation were, therefore, wild and unfounded and the same were meant to solicit sympathy from the court. They requested the court to take judicial notice of the fact that the chairman of the Joint Industrial Council (J.I.C.) was independent, because he was mutually appointed by the parties some time ago. He was not subject to intimidation by either party, nor would he allow intimidation of one party by another. The respondents, therefore, submitted that, on the contrary, the claimants were culprits because they incited the employees to go on an illegal strike contrary to the law, the recognition agreement and the good industrial relations machinery existing between the parties.

On the conditional "package offers" the respondents submitted that the same was made bona fide and in the light of the following court observation at page 25 of its award to cause No. 74 of 1987:

The court finds itself in an extremely difficult position in this dispute because collective agreements are supposed to be a package deal yet in this dispute two (2) most important issues re: labour costs, that is, the salaries and house allowance have been agreed upon by the parties themselves and implemented. The remaining 18 items were left for the court to decide upon including the date from which they would be effective. This is most unfair considering the fact that this dispute involves a total labour force of well over 10,000 workers and above all the welfare of approximately 70,000 dependants.

The respondents pointed out that the issues of salaries and wages, house allowances, owner-occupier house allowance and hours of work were closely inter-related and could not be considered in isolation because the same were critical to the economy of their large organization. They, therefore, urged the court to uphold the "package offer" as an all-embracing and balanced working arrangement in that it, on the one hand, improved the employees' salaries and wages, house allowance, and, on the other hand, made the port viable that is able to sustain and attract more shipowners and other port users with cost-effective tariff rates.

In their concluding remarks and final submissions, the claimants urged the court to note that, although the respondents were a parastatal, or public utility fully owned by the state, they were run on commercial principles. The Government should not therefore, influence the respondents' operations and decisions as employers, or allow them to implement their decisions arbitrarily, victimize and intimidate the claimants under the guise of the Government's directives. The claimants also blamed the respondents for the unorthodox manner, delay and protracted negotiations, in handling this matter, thus creating serious and dangerous precedent in industrial relations practice.

The claimants admitted that, although changes are essential in any dynamic society, and especially at the port in this case, such changes should be orderly, and the accrued benefits therefrom should be equitably shared between the respondents and the employees in order to enhance productivity. They felt that the respondents were only interested in the maximization of their profits at the expense of the employees' needs or human resources. The claimants stated that they did not reject the package offer as alleged by the respondents, but felt that there was room for improvement on it.

On the basis of the parties' respective submissions and the court award in cause No. 74 of 1987, the claimants prayed that the respondents' demands should be rejected, and at the same time be ordered to honour their offers on the demands favourable to them.

Coming to their final submissions, the respondents reiterated their main submissions and stated in a nutshell that they were committed to the good industrial relations and the negotiating machinery in accordance with the parties' recognition agreement, the industrial relations machinery 1986, and the welfare of the employees. The package offer was a step in the right direction, and it did not amount to an appeal or challenge against the award in cause No. 74 of 1987. The I.L.O. Conventions Nos. 47 and 137 and recommendation 145 were only guidelines all over the world, to be applied as the social, economic and working conditions and circumstances of each country permitted.

The respondents urged the court to uphold the package offer because of the high cost on labour, capital investment, housing, pension, etc. They re-emphasized in detail all the material points alluded to in their main submissions on all the issues at stake and the need to make the port competitive in conformity with the Government directives and business considerations.

The respondents, therefore, prayed the court to uphold their package offer of 22nd May, 1990, and award accordingly.

First of all the court would like to apologize to the parties to this dispute for the inordinate delay in announcing the award. But occasionally delays are inevitable, particularly when the nature of the dispute is delicate and intricate as in this case in which the court had to shoulder the burden of wading through a mass of documentary evidence in support of the parties respective stands.

Briefly, the six (6) issues in dispute between the parties before the court arose after protracted negotiations, and as a result of a deadlock at the joint industrial council, the last three (3) of which have been most contentious because the claimants stoutly resisted them. Both parties have led voluminous documentary evidence in support of their respective cases. At page 25 of its award in cause No. 74 of 1987, the court observed that "collective agreements are supposed to be a package deal," and it was on the basis of this observation that the respondents made a package offer to the claimants on 22nd May, 1990. The claimants accepted the first three issues which were most favourable to them, and left the rest within the package offer without indicating any counter-offers.

On salaries and wages, the respondents accepted the increases as demanded by the claimants "provided the items were negotiated wholly as a package." These increases were:

Upper income group KSh. 230 (7.1 per cent).

Middle income group KSh. 210 (13.1 per cent).

This would hike the monthly wage bill by KSh. 2,172,800. As regards standard house allowance, the respondents made the following increases:

Grade	Current Allowance per month	Proposed Allowance per month
	KSh.	KSh.
PA6 and PA7	1,375	1,515
PA8 and PA9	1,070	1,180
PA10 and PA11	760	840
PA12	545	600

This offer would increase the monthly allowance on this item from the current outlay of KSh. 6,843,815 to KSh. 7,543,455 or 10.2 per cent. Turning to the owner-occupier house allowance, the respondents conceded to the claimants' demand in respect of grades PA6 and PA7, involving 69 employees who own their own houses, to increase the current allowance from KSh. 3,125 and KSh. 2,500 to KSh. 3,325 and KSh. 2,700 per month, respectively. The allowance for the rest of the grades have also been increased as follows:

Grade	Current Allowance per month	Proposed Allowance per month
	KSh.	KSh.
PA8	1,875	1,980
PA9	1,250	1,350
PA10	875	975
PA11	750	850
PA12	625	725

As has been stated hereinabove, the claimants accepted the above offers without conceding to any negotiations for the remaining contentious demands by the respondents in the package offer.

On the six-day week the respondents stated that they had proposed in their package offer that the operations of the port should be on a six-day working week from Monday to Saturday as follows:

(a) Monday to Friday.

1st shift: 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.

2nd shift: 3 p.m. to 11 p.m.

3rd shift: 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

(b) Saturday.

1st shift: 7 p.m. to 12.30 p.m.

2nd shift: 12.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m.

They strongly contended that the effects of these proposed working hours would mean that:

(a) Saturday which has hitherto been a non-working day and therefore double overtime earning would be regarded as a normal working day.

(b) The forty (40) hours per week worked at the moment would be increased to forty-five and a half (45½) hours per week with full compensation for the additional hours.

(c) The port would become cheaper since the port users would now be charged at normal rate for Saturday work.

(d) The change would be a response to the above Government's directive which reversed the previous five-day week—i.e. the port, being an essential service utility must operate a six-day a week.

This is one of the items in cause No. 74 of 1974 on which the court awarded in favour of the claimants because the respondents did not give any compensation to the employees for working these extra 5½ hours on Saturday which has hitherto been treated as overtime. However, the respondents have reviewed the matter and now offer a full compensation, which will include additional pension benefits to the employees, for the extra 5½ hours per week for the Saturday work. The compensation or expenditure would cost the respondents KSh. 2,772,234 per month compared, for instance, to KSh. 2,236,040 which they spent in the month of January, 1990, as overtime payment. Thus there would be no saving at all for them. Furthermore and as a marketing strategy to attract more business to the port, the respondents are convinced that their proposal of having a six-day working week would be a viable one; and the employees would also stand to gain as follows from the proposed compensation as opposed to the current overtime payment:

(a) Whereas the overtime is currently being enjoyed by only a small proportion of the employees, the compensation which will be part of their salaries and wages will now be payable to all shift workers.

(b) The additional pension arising from the compensation element will range from KSh. 36.30 to KSh. 142.25 per month for the lowest to the highest paid unionizable employees, respectively. The additional pension cost, which would be borne entirely by the respondents since the current pension scheme is non-contributory, would be about KSh. 540,000.

In view of all these immediate and long term benefits affecting the entire shift workers who are the majority, the respondents expected the claimants to positively respond during the negotiations, but this was not the case.

The claimants maintained that as a result of the Presidential directive in 1983, for public service employees to adopt five-day working week, they and the management of the defunct Kenya Cargo Handling Services Ltd., entered into an agreement whereby forty-five and a half (45½) hours per week previously worked were reduced to forty (40) hours per week and a five-day working week from Monday to Friday adopted. But, when the working hours were harmonized in January, 1986, after the merger, all the respondents' employees adopted five-day working week from 1st March, 1986. In the circumstances, the claimants, therefore, insisted that there was no basis for the respondents to propose the reversion to sixty-day working week. In any case, this issue had already been adjudicated by the court in cause No. 74 of 1987, and an award given in their favour. They therefore, saw no point or valid reason in opening up the matter for negotiation.

As regards the third shift as normal shift, the respondents proposed that it should be regarded as the other two shifts on the ground that when an employee works on this shift which begins from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. he rested during the day like any other employee who works on first and second shifts rests when not on duty. There was no reason, therefore, why the third shift should attract double overtime pay. In any case, this particular shift only operated in the defunct Kenya Cargo Handling Services Ltd., and not in the former Kenya Ports Authority where there were no difficulties. They asserted that, contrary to the claimants' belief, this shift was a loss making shift to them in terms of labour costs, excluding costs of machines and recovery general overheads. It was an expensive shift not only to them but also to the port users who have to be charged enhanced rates which was not obtaining in the neighbouring ports. The objective of making the third shift normal was to make the port cheaper and attractive for the port users because at the moment the port was facing stiff competition from the neighbouring ports, especially Dar-es-Salaam. As such, therefore, contingency measures needed to be taken if it was to remain competitive. The respondents pointed out that on normalizing the third shift, an employee would be paid an allowance of 15 per cent of his basic monthly wages as compensation for working during the "unsocial hours". The allowance would be payable to all employees provided one worked at least one full shift in a month—i.e. one week of the third shift within the month in which the employee was rostered. Like Saturday compensation, the main advantage is that all shift employees would benefit as opposed to the current overtime which was enjoyed by only a small proportion of the workforce.

The claimants emphatically opposed the respondents' proposal of making this shift normal on the ground that it has been an overtime earning over the years in the defunct Kenya Cargo Handling Services Ltd., and that since it was an odd shift which could not be compared with the other two shifts in must continue to attract double time. They also relied on the court's status quo award in cause No. 74 of 1987. Hence, they refused to enter into negotiations with, and did not consider the allowance of 15 per cent offered by, the respondents to replace the overtime.

Finally the respondents proposed that, because of either the supervisory or confidential nature of their work, the following cadres of staff be non-unionizable in line with the provisions of appendix "C" of the industrial relations charter:

- (i) All employees in grade PA6 who were essentially supervisors.
- (ii) All industrial relations staff of grade PA7 and above.
- (iii) All staff in disciplinary section of grade PA7 and above.
- (iv) All stenographers who worked for managers.
- (v) Security staff whose work was of confidential nature, viz., inspectors, detectives and sergeants.

The claimants objected to this proposal mainly because of loss of membership and the fear that they would be weakened by the removal of employees who contributed to their coffers.

The respondents are a Government wholly owned public corporation and although the Government formulates policy objectives for them they are autonomous corporate body established under a special Act of Parliament that sets out their powers and functions as well as their jurisdiction over this country's ports, harbours and docks. They are also an essential service in accordance with the first schedule of the Trade Disputes Act, Cap. 234 of the Laws of Kenya, and these services include stevedoring and lighting, loading and unloading of cargo from or on to any ship and despatch of any cargo to its destination, etc. Financially, however, they are independent of the Government, and are very similar to a public limited company in their operations. But unlike a public limited company, they are accountable directly to the legislature before which their annual report and audited annual accounts are placed for approval. Thus the respondents blend its efficiency and flexibility of a private enterprise which is guided by commercial considerations or principles with control by the legislature in the broader interests of the community at large. These are precisely the requisites of success and suitability for public utility undertakings.

As the court stated at page 25 in cause No. 74 of 1987, "the port of Mombasa and its operations form a very important part of Kenya's economic activities. The port also serves other land-locked countries in the region. It is, therefore, of utmost importance that this port should continue to function smoothly at all times." Again at page 26, thereof, the court observed "that the working arrangements at the Port of Mombasa should not be disturbed because of the very sensitive nature of its operations which are so vital for the economic well-being of the country and the region as a whole." It is, therefore, not difficult to imagine the widespread repercussion and economic harm of disruption in its essential services and the adverse effects on many individuals, industries and institutions not directly involved in the dispute itself. Hence, it stands to reason that arbitration of trade disputes involving essential services is a priority issue for mandatory treatment.

However, the Port of Mombasa has, since 1958 when the Perkin's report came into force, undergone thorough fundamental changes than in any other previous era, with rising capital investment in the creation of socio-economic facilities which require constant appraisal for investment affects not only the port per se but the whole of the economic and social activities which it generates and sustains. The Perkin's report told of a time that differs markedly from today. It was, to paraphrase Dickens, "The best of times and worst of times."

Time does not stand still, and the parties especially the claimants, must not continue living in the past because yesterday is not today and today is not tomorrow; and it is regrettable that the parties in this case have been backward in studying and understanding the changes that have taken place at the port. They should have stood back and undertaken a critical, objective and retrospective view or perspective of the surging stream of the events which have taken place since 1959, and articulate their understanding of the changes. The parties are indeed a part of the port community and they should, therefore, avoid an ambiguous love-and-hate relationship in their dealings vis-a-vis the port's operations.

With regard to "package offers" or proposals for incorporation in any collective agreement, the most important point to note is that they go hand-in-hand with the productivity and growth or otherwise of the industry or enterprise under consideration. The parties usually make proposals during the negotiation process in the spirit of "give and take"; and, with goodwill and the desire to co-operate and compromise, they must resign themselves to something less than complete success in their quest for an acceptable settlement of the issues at stake. The fact that the court stated in cause No. 74 of 1987, that status quo should be maintained in respect of the six-day working week and the third shift, did not mean that the parties were not at liberty to renegotiate the issues after the expiry of the outgoing parties' collective agreement, as shown by the claimants' resistance to negotiate with the respondents on these issues, although the latter had offered some compensation and the Government had directed that they should revert to six-day working week. It would simply appear from the claimants' attitude that, by seeking the changes in the current working arrangement on these issues, the respondents are leaning in favour of container handling which is capital intensive as opposed to conventional cargo which is labour intensive. But that is not the case. The port has attracted a good deal of adverse publicity and steadily lost considerable business ground to the port of Dar-es-Salaam in recent years; and in order to arrest the trend, there is need to improve efficiency and competitiveness of the port by better utilization of labour available, time, materials, equipment, etc., for the benefit of the employees and with regard to the public interest. In this respect, therefore, all the legitimate efforts being made by the respondents towards that goal must receive co-operation of the employees and the claimants—of course on reasonable terms.

Having made the foregoing observations and after giving anxious thought to all the facts in this dispute and the P.R.D. report on the matter, besides some others which need not be mentioned here but are incorporated in the documents on record as well as the facts and figures stated in the pleas of the parties, the court has decided to award as follows on each item:

1. Salaries and wages.
2. Standard house allowance.
3. Owner occupier house allowance.

The claimants' demands on the above issues were acceptable to the respondents on condition that all items in the package offer were negotiated as a whole. The P.R.D. report on salaries and wages shows that the parties' positions, re: demands/offers and the package offer by the respondents are within the wages guidelines. On the standard house allowance and owner occupier house allowance, the report clearly states at page 11 thereof that:

"The respondents' package offer which is acceptable to the claimants when compared to the entitlement under the wages guidelines reveals that, except for grade PA11, all the other grades offers are slightly less than the wages guidelines entitlements due. The demand for PA8-12 are above the wages guidelines compensation entitlement amounts due. However, the overall picture is that both offers/demand are nearer the wages guidelines entitlements, and the small differences can be ignored given that the claimants have stated that they accept the respondents package offer."

In the light of the foregoing and without taking into account the outcome of the remaining issues, the court finds that the claimants' demands and the respondents' package offer on these issues are in line with the wages guidelines. In terms of the package offer the court, therefore, awards that:

1. Salaries and Wages:

All unionizable employees in the respondents' undertaking should receive salary and wage increases as follows:

Upper income group KSh. 230 or 7.1 per cent.

Middle income group KSh. 210 or 13.1 per cent.

The increases should be effected on their salaries and wages as at 1st January, 1990, and the adjustment or progression of the increases in respect of the other grades should be slotted in accordingly.

2. Standard House Allowance:

The respondents should pay to all the unionizable employees the following monthly allowances with effect from 1st January, 1990.

PA6 and PA7—i.e. KSh. 1,515 per month.

PA8 and PA9—i.e. KSh. 1,180 per month.

PA10 and PA11—i.e. KSh. 840 per month.

PA12—i.e. KSh. 600 per month.

3. Owner Occupier House Allowance:

Under this item, all the respondents' unionizable employees should receive, with effect from 1st January, 1990, the following monthly allowances:

PA6 KSh. 3,325 per month.

PA7 KSh. 2,700 per month.

PA8 KSh. 1,980 per month.

PA9 KSh. 1,350 per month.

PA10 KSh. 975 per month.

PA11 KSh. 850 per month.

PA12 KSh. 725 per month.

4. Six-Day Week:

This issue was before the court in cause No. 74 of 1987, and it would appear the court awarded a status quo on the ground that the overtime payments had been enjoyed by the employees for a long time—over thirty (30) years. Furthermore, although it was not expressly stated by the court, the element of compensation for the loss of this benefit by the employees was lacking in the above cause. But a full compensation has now been introduced by the respondents in the present case and the claimants have conceded it. However, they have resisted negotiations on the matter because of the nature of port work—hard, arduous, etc. Besides, the system of five-day work has sustained the port without any serious difficulties.

The other very important aspect in this issue is the Government directive to the respondents to revert to six-day working week. Millions of working hours were lost when the Government introduced a five-day working week in 1983, but it set the ball rolling again when it restored the six-day working week. Thus, most of the parastatals and all arms of the Government resumed work and rendered the much needed public service and modalities of recouping lost time. To the court's mind the case of the port of Mombasa stands on a much higher level than those of any ordinary industry. The ships have got to be attended to—i.e. the loading and unloading operations must be completed within the lay days to enable the ships keep within their turn-round time table—and their requirements have got to be met within a given time, otherwise the whole economy of this country in particular, and the entire region in general will be paralyzed. If that happened, the nature of work is such that the respondents cannot employ any casual labour from the street on the spur of the moment to do the job which requires skilled labour.

As stated herein above, the Government directive is in force and it has to be complied with; but since the change has not been sufficiently appreciated by the claimants and the employees, and taking into account the essential nature of this particular industry, the court is of the opinion that there is room for further negotiation on the compensation payable. In the circumstances, and keeping in view the fact that the overtime pay has become a habit for a long time and the employees have come to rely on it as part of their income, the court has, therefore, decided to advise the parties to negotiate further on the matter. Meanwhile, it is ordered that status quo must be maintained at the port.

5. Third Shift at Normal Shift:

The material facts on this issue are similar to those advanced in cause No. 74 of 1987, except that the respondents have offered 15 per cent compensation of an employee's basic monthly wages. On careful consideration of the various arguments advanced by the parties on this issue, the court is of the view that it is purely the function of the management to regulate the number of shifts according to the retirements of their business. They are the best or sole judge to decide which are the thin and busy hours of the business, and what should be the number of the shifts to cope with the business. The management are also the best judge as to how their work should be carried on economically and efficiently, and the employees have no right to complain as long as they are not victimized. Under the circumstances, and taking into account the attractive compensation offered to the employees, the court cannot restrain the respondents from determining the number of shifts they require in accordance with the dictates of the industry. But as the third shift is so awkward—i.e. "unsocial hours" from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.—the same employees should not, therefore, be kept in the same shift all the time.

Accordingly, the court awards that the third shift should be treated as normal shift and the three shifts must be rotated so that the same set of employees do not always work during the third shift or in the night and the distinction and/or discrimination arising from the past practice eliminated. The court further awards that any employee working during the third shift or "unsocial hours" should be paid 15 per cent compensation in addition to his basic monthly salary or wage.

6. Delineation of Staff (Revision):

The court notes that the respondents intend to absorb some supervisory and confidential staff in grades PA6 and PA7 into the managerial cadre. The claimants have vehemently objected to this demand on the ground that their union membership or strength would be weakened, and they would also lose some income from the employees.

After an exhaustive perusal of the documents in support and against this demand and on serious consideration of the arguments put forward by the parties, the court is satisfied that the respondents' intention to upgrade or integrate a limited number of unionizable employee in grades PA6 and PA7 into the management is a welcome move, and such a step would not create an upheaval in the existing employment set up and the wage structure.

In the result, the court allows the respondents' demand, but orders that the list of the affected employees should be carefully and selectively gone into by the parties, with the assistance of the chief industrial relations officer or his duly appointed representative, so as to ensure that the strength of the claimants' membership or representation is not jeopardized or weakened.

Dated the 31st May, 1991.

Judge.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 2809

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

(Cap. 506)

NOTICE is given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within sixty (60) days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on form TM. No. 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh. 1,500 (local application) or US$75 (foreign application).

Notice is also given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made, or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him an opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark, upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are, as far as possible, indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Office, Nairobi.

Applications for registration in part A of the register are shown with the official number unaccompanied by any letter. Applications for part B are distinguished by the letter B prefixed to the official number.
