GAZETTE NOTICE No. 1081

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 19 OF 1968

Parties:—

Kenya Game Hunting and Safari Workers' Union (Claimants)

and

E.A. Professional Hunters' Association
(Respondents)

RULING ON INTERPRETATION APPLICATION

The Court announced its award in the above dispute on 11th July 1968. Amongst the job categories on which the Court made its award, there appear under the heading "General" the following descriptions:—

	Per Month Sh.
Clerks	428
Mechanics and Carpenters	378
Tents and Sail Makers	328
Watchmen, Store Labourers, Messengers and
Sweepers	200

The award was effective from 1st March 1968, for a period of two years. So in fact the Court award has expired on 28th February 1970.

The Claimants had, however, on 6th February 1970, put in an application for interpretation of the Court award as far as the category of "tents and sail makers" is concerned as they maintained that two employees working for Hunters (Africa) Ltd., namely Miss Mary Kamau and Mr. Waithaka, should have been paid the rate awarded by the Court in respect of "tents and sail makers", i.e. Sh. 328 excluding house allowance. The Claimants stated that this rate as awarded by the Court was not conditional upon a worker being in possession of Government Trade Test and in fact interpreted the Court award to mean that if any employee repaired tents and other articles of clothing on a machine then he should be paid Sh. 328 p.m. plus house allowance.

The Claimants pointed out that the other members of the Respondents' Association had implemented the Court award in a manner which was consistent with their interpretation. They produced the job descriptions which they had submitted prior to the 1968 negotiations and referred to "tailor" and the definition which they had suggested which was "means an employee engaged mainly in repairing tents, clothes which are torn during safari work". In reply to their job descriptions the Respondents had eliminated the word "tailor" and in its place had substituted "tent and sail maker". The Claimants also stated that an official of the Ministry of Labour who had looked into the matter had agreed with their interpretation and recommended that these two workers should be paid Sh. 328 plus house allowance. Accordingly they asked the Court to confirm their interpretation.

The Respondents on the other hand stated that the wages which were paid to the two workers concerned prior to the 1968 negotiations clearly showed that they were not intended to be covered in the "tents and sail makers" category as otherwise it would be tantamount to giving them a 100 per cent wage increase. They stated that the two employees were employed in the store but they did perform minor functions on the sewing machine. Further they added that all their major repairs to tents were done by qualified tent repairers who were paid a considerable amount every year for this service. They further submitted that in the agreement which the parties had signed subsequent to the Court award they had relied on job titles and there was no description, job summary or job content available for identification purposes. They finally suggested that this difference between them had shown that the job titles were defective in that it made no provision for tent and canvas repairers which was the function performed by these two workers.

The Court has very carefully gone through the original submissions which the parties had made and further submissions which they put forward both verbally and in writing during the hearing of this interpretation application on 10th March 1970. The Court is very surprised that this matter has taken almost two years to come before it for interpretation and in fact the Court award, which was the basis of an agreement between the parties, has already expired. The Court is not happy that the parties should have waited till the expiry of its award before making an application for its interpretation. It is in the parties' own interest to refer any doubts to the Court at the earliest opportunity. In view of the job titles that appear in the agreement and keeping in mind the actual job which these two workers do, the Court finds that they definitely do not qualify to earn the rate specified for "tents and sail makers". At the same time it is obvious that they do not either fit in the job descriptions of watchmen, store labourers, messengers or sweepers, the rate in respect of which they have been earning. There has obviously been an omission by the parties in this respect. The Court is not prepared to award these two workers wages at a grossly inflated level and feels that in the circumstances the proper thing now for the parties to do is to discuss and finalize this matter during their next wage revision which the Court was notified is imminent.

Dated this 1st day of April 1970.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 1082

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 32 OF 1969

Parties:-

Kenya Chemical Workers' Union
and Aspro Nicholas (E.A.) Ltd.

Issues in dispute:-

1. Wages and duration.
2. Safari allowance.
3. Severance pay.
4. Injury by accident.
5. Effective date.
6. Job gradings.

1. The Kenya Chemical Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Aspro Nicholas (E.A.) Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 2nd day of March 1970, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The parties had negotiated an agreement on terms and conditions of service effective from 1st September 1967, and its duration was until 31st December 1968. Under clause 16 of the aforesaid agreement it was provided as follows:-

"This Agreement shall be effective as from 1st September 1967, and it shall remain in force for a period of 16 months. Thereafter the Agreement shall continue in force until it is amended. Any party desiring to amend the Agreement shall give one month's notice in writing giving the details of the amendment so required."

On 19th December 1968, the Claimants forwarded their demands to the Respondents for revising the terms and conditions of service. The Respondents rejected these demands on 27th December 1968. A misunderstanding developed after that as the Claimants expected the Respondents to convene a meeting of Joint Negotiating Committee whereas the Respondents were waiting for the Claimants to act in accordance with clause 3 (b) (iii) of the Recognition Agreement. This resulted in the Claimants giving 10 days' notice of strike action. This was averted and the parties arranged for a meeting on 6th February 1969. This meeting could not be held because the date was not suitable to the Claimants and another meeting was arranged in early March which again could not materialize. The parties blamed each other for the delay before the first meeting between them could be held on 21st April 1969. Another meeting was held on 12th May 1969, and an agreement was reached on many matters. The Respondents reported the dispute to the Ministry of Labour on 27th May 1969, on the following items: injury by accident, severance pay on redundancy, safari allowance, leave travelling allowance, wages, effective date and duration. The dispute was accepted and a conciliator was appointed by the Ministry of Labour and at this level only the issue of leave travelling allowance was settled. The parties signed the notification of dispute form to the Industrial Court on 31st July 1969, on which an additional issue of job gradings had been added apparently by the Respondents' representative.

The aforesaid background is rather important in this dispute because bitter allegations were made by the Claimants against the Respondents for having adopted delaying tactics first by displaying a completely negative attitude to their demands and secondly by their representative calling off a meeting after having waited for only half an hour for the Claimants' representative. They further alleged that the Respondents' chief negotiator at the crucial time during negotiations had left the country for several weeks and gone to Zambia. During his absence the negotiations could not proceed.

The Respondents on the other hand put all the blame on the Claimants saying that the Claimants' representative's attitude was most unreasonable and unco-operative.

The Court has carefully gone through the record of minutes and the various submissions and facts put forward by the parties on this point and has come to the conclusion that to a large extent both the parties are responsible for this extraordinary delay in processing the Claimants' demands. To make matters worse, after the Court had called the parties for a mention, the Respondents objected to the inclusion of job gradings issue in the dispute on the ground that this item had at no time been in dispute or had been referred to the Ministry of Labour as such. Consequently this particular item at the Claimants' insistence was referred afresh to the Ministry of Labour and an investigator was appointed on 10th October 1969, to look into this issue. The investigator commenced his work and up to the date of the hearing has not made known his findings to the parties. The Respondents in desperation requested the Court to proceed with the hearing on all the issues including "job gradings".

The Claimants have once again, as in numerous disputes, relied on the arguments which briefly are that the present wages paid to their members are not sufficient to enable them to meet their basic necessities, the workers are entitled to share in the profits made by the Respondents in order to improve their standard of living, the Respondents had done extremely good business during the past two years and had acquired another firm which produced the product called "Ambi" which was in great demand. They reminded the Court that the Respondents had not pleaded inability to pay and that the current wages were inclusive of the housing allowance.

The Respondents on the other hand pleaded that their current rates were not unreasonable at all and compared very favourably with the general economic conditions prevalent in the country and were consistent with the wage rates to be found in comparable industries.

As the question of wages is linked up with the job grading, it is necessary for the Court to first dispose of the issue of gradings.

On the question of gradings the Claimants' approach is tied up with the persons actually on the various jobs, their length of service and their current remuneration. The Court finds that this is not the approach for proper job classification exercise. It should be carried out without regards to the persons concerned and independent of wages being paid at the time. It should be noted that job grading is dependent and interlinked with job classification or job evaluation exercise which as the Court has pointed out on several occasions in the past involves a great amount of detailed work and study. The proper party to embark on such an exercise is the employer and the union no doubt have a right of consultation. The Court is satisfied that in the present dispute the Claimants have introduced this issue to acquire better job gradings which could in turn lead to higher wages to their members. The real motive behind this issue is to bolster the Claimants' demand for increased wages for their members. In these circumstances the Court has decided to reject the Claimants' demand on gradings and accordingly makes its award on the issue of wages on the present job grading.

The Court would like to point out that if during the life of the new agreement, the subject matter of this dispute, the Claimants feel strongly about any particular job or the whole set up then they should inform the Respondents of their objections who would no doubt then go into such complaints, if necessary with the aid of an independent person, provided that the current job gradings should not be upset before the next wage revision unless it is with the consent of both the parties.

After a careful consideration of all the submissions made by the parties the Court awards the following wage rates for the various grades:-

	Current	As from 1st Oct. 1969	As from 1st April 1971
	Sh. p.m.	Sh. p.m.	Sh. p.m.

Safari allowance.—On the issue of safari allowance the Court awards that a worker should get Sh. 25 for each night he spends away from home.

Severance pay on redundancy.—The Court awards that a worker should be paid severance pay on redundancy at the rate of 14 days for every completed year of service.

Injury by accident.—The Court is not prepared to make any award on the issue of injury by accident, accordingly the Claimants' demand is rejected.

Effective date and duration.—Finally the Court rules that the effective date should be 1st October 1969, and that the agreement should remain in force for a period of three years from that date.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 1083

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 50 OF 1969

Parties:-

Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union

and

Nairobi Hospital

Issue in dispute.—Over instant dismissal of Mr. Matayo Kamadi.

1. The Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the Nairobi Hospital shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 23rd day of February 1970, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. This dispute has been referred to the Industrial Court by the Minister for Labour in accordance with the provisions of section 30 of the Trade Disputes Act 1965, the Respondents being an essential service. The Minister signed the letter of reference on 26th November 1969.

The person involved in this dispute, Mr. M. Kamadi, was employed by the Respondents as a casualty ward orderly. His duties were to answer calls (bells), open doors for night duty staff, serve meals to nurses and clean the utensils, his working hours being from 8 p.m. to 6.15 a.m.

On 3rd January 1969, at 2 a.m. a patient died at the hospital and this employee was asked to help lift the dead body as it was too heavy for the nurses to manage on their own. He was asked to assist in lifting the body from the bed on to a trolley, this he flatly refused to do because it was against his customary law to touch dead bodies and in any case he maintained it was not part of his duties to do so. He was warned as to the consequences of disobeying a lawful order but he still refused to carry out the order given to him. The Respondents then terminated his services summarily.

The Claimants took up the matter on his behalf and the Ministry of Labour appointed an investigator and as a result of his findings the Permanent Secretary formulated the following recommendation and appealed to both parties to use it as a basis for settling the reported trade dispute:—

"In view of the above observations I recommend that—

- (i) considering the length of service of Mr. Kamadi without adverse report, the disciplinary action already taken against him be reconsidered with a view to ascertaining whether or not he would wish to apologize and apply for re-employment;
- (ii) in the event of failure on the part of the management to compromise on recommendation (i) above, the dismissal of the claimant be reduced to termination or service with terminal benefits in terms of the current agreement between the union and the hospital."

The parties, however, could not settle the dispute.

The Claimants submitted that Mr. Kamadi had worked in the hospital for the last 14 years and 8 months and that during this period he had given no cause for complaint and in fact had not received even a single warning during this time. They maintained that he had never been asked ever before to lift and remove a dead body from the wards to the mortuary, and that since 1954 when the hospital had opened, the dead bodies had been lifted and removed by nursing staff and night duty sisters. The Claimants alleged that the Respondents had decided to ask the night orderly to assist in lifting and removing dead bodies sometime in December 1968. As a result on 11th December 1968, the works council lodged a complaint with the Respondents and wrote the following letter:—

"We have been obliged to inform you that the above staff are complaining that they are being forced by the order from your office to carry the corpses to the mortuary. This job has been done by nursing staff ever since and if there is going to be a change then it should be one's particular job and not done by everybody and therefore ask for the order's withdrawal."

On 13th December 1968, the Respondents' labour officer replied to the Secretary, Works Council, and in that letter included the following paragraph:—

"Should any member of the hospital staff be asked to help lifting or removing the dead body within the hospital but refused will be deemed to have refused to do part of his/her normal duties and therefore his/her services may be terminated or else he/she can either resign."

The Claimants' Assistant General Secretary on 16th December 1968, replied to this letter and made clear that "any dismissal to this effect would result to a protest against your negative attitude towards our members and also our working agreement". The Claimants said that this was a clear case where the Respondents had taken advantage of their right to hire and fire and have deprived a worker of his legitimate retirement benefits by dismissing him summarily.

The Respondents on the other hand maintained that Mr. Kamadi had all along admitted that he had refused to touch a dead body because it was against his tribal custom to touch the dead bodies of strangers. In view of this the Respondents had claimed that this kind of work may at any time require the services of an orderly on duty and due to the fact that they had not experienced similar problem from other workmen in the past they had no alternative but to dismiss Mr. Kamadi from their employment. They further submitted that the investigator had found that he had refused to obey a lawful order. Therefore there was no alternative but to dismiss him instantly. The Respondents stated that the investigator's recommendation was not acceptable to them because it was inconsistent with his own findings. Finally the Respondents stated that this dispute should never have been referred to the Industrial Court but should have been taken to the Civil Court by Mr. Kamadi for alleged unreasonable dismissal.

The Court must point out that on several occasions in the recent past disputes which are strictly actions for damages by workmen against their employers have been brought to the Industrial Court for adjudication as the unions take up their complaints and turn them into a trade dispute with all its logical consequences like threat of strike and so on. The Court finds itself in considerable difficulty in refusing to entertain such matters in the Industrial Court as obviously a workman has a choice of two forums. The Court would, however, like to emphasize that the parties and the officials of the Ministry of Labour should consider such disputes most carefully and wherever possible actions for damages should be channelled to the High Court or the Resident Magistrates Court as the case may be. Despite the very wide definition of "trade dispute" in the Trade Disputes Act 1965 the Industrial Court has not been created to take over the functions of ordinary civil courts. Strictly speaking and technically a workman would be entirely within his rights provided he had the support of his union, of bringing all his complaints including alleged actions for breaches of contract to the Industrial Court. In these circumstances it is very necessary for the trade union officials and the officers of the Ministry of Labour to handle such cases with great care and to channel them to their proper forum.

As stated earlier this dispute has been sent to this Court by the Minister for Labour and the Court is therefore bound to hear and give its decision. There is no doubt that it is not clearly stated in the job summary of a night orderly that he should assist in lifting and removing dead bodies whenever required by the nursing staff but the Respondents made it very clear that such occasions were very rare indeed—about three or four times in one year—and that it was not too much to expect a night orderly to give a helping hand as they could not afford to employ a person specially for this task. The Court also notes that there was a certain amount of correspondence in December 1968 on this subject but this question was not resolved and it was left with both parties having taken different stands. In any case, the letter from the Respondents' labour officer dated 13th December 1968 which is quoted hereinabove states that "his/her services may be terminated or else he/she can either resign". It does not contain a clear cut warning that a person refusing to obey an order in assisting in lifting and removing a dead body would be summarily dismissed.

The Court has very carefully considered the facts and circumstances surrounding this case and has come to the conclusion that Mr. Kamadi, by refusing to assist the nursing staff in the early hours of the morning in lifting and removing a dead body which they could not handle themselves has shown to be most unco-operative and unhelpful. It is not asking too much of a worker to expect him to give a helping hand occasionally during his employment although that particular work may not be specified amongst his duties. The Court finds that this worker deserved a termination of his services and the Court must rule out his reinstatement, but in view of the fact that there was controversy on this matter and that this worker had served the Respondents for 14 years without any complaint and that the Respondents had not clearly warned the workers that they would be summarily dismissed if they refused to assist in lifting and removing dead bodies, the Court has decided to give him the benefit of doubt regarding his summary dismissal. The Court finds that Mr. Kamadi's services should have been terminated in accordance with the provisions of the relevant agreement covering terms and conditions of service and accordingly awards that he should be granted wages in lieu of notice that should have been given to him, leave due on pro rata basis, leave travelling allowance and service gratuity to which he might be entitled.
