Position.—DIRECTOR.

Division.—General Technical Assistance Division, Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation.

Classification.—D2.

General:

The general technical assistance division of the C.F.T.C. arranges the provision of professional, managerial and technical skills to requests from commonwealth developing countries and accounts for about 40 per cent of the total programme budget of the C.F.T.C. Experts and consultants engaged on these projects are drawn from both developed and developing member countries. The majority of these are in advisory positions helping with the introduction of new programmes or technology or providing back-up support to senior management in the public sector of developing countries, but there is also a significant number occupying operational positions in civil services or public corporations.

The division works in parallel with the other four divisions of the C.F.T.C. and along with functional divisions of the Commonwealth Secretariat which assist with the assessment and implementation of technical assistance requests received by the division. The execution of projects funded by other bilateral and multilateral organizations is an important aspect of the division's activities.

The Director, reporting to the Managing Director of the C.F.T.C. has overall responsibility for the planning, implementation, management and control of all programme and staff functions of the Division.

Functions:

(1) To formulate annual and three-year programme profiles for the Division.

(2) To conduct periodic reviews of programme performance for purpose of expediting programme delivery, maximizing cost effectiveness, maintaining programme balance on a regional and sectoral basis, and undertaking forecasts of divisional expenditure out-turn in relation to programme allocation.

(3) To assess all requests for technical assistance and to submit appropriate recommendations to the Managing Director. This will include formulating and reviewing criteria used, advising staff on the suitability of requests, consulting with High Commission representatives and Government officials to secure clarification and details of requests, securing views of other Secretarial Divisions which have specific expertise, and where necessary securing views of concerned bilateral and multilateral organizations to avoid duplication of effort or to facilitate effective co-ordination of project.

(4) To expedite programme delivery through—

(a) working closely with the Director, Administration Division on programme implementation, identifying skilled individuals from Commonwealth member countries to participate in Division's projects, in particular special projects, and

(b) preparing monthly implementation reports for Managing Director.

(5) To negotiate and conclude contracts for projects involving use of consultancy firms.

(6) To manage projects in operation, by providing guidance to field experts on conduct of their assignment, and resolving problems experienced by field experts in consultation with recipient Government and other concerned divisions of the Secretariat.

(7) To identify and initiate, pan-Commonwealth and regional technical assistance projects to meet new high priority needs of Commonwealth developing countries.

(8) To maximize staff productivity and divisional efficiency to effectively meet current and future programme requirements by allocation of specific duties to staff members, periodic reviews of staff performance in relation to the duty schedules, and motivation and encouragement to staff to develop special skills to adequately cope with new programme demands.

(9) To participate and contribute in internal committees set up by the Managing Director and the Secretary-General on policy matters concerning technical assistance.

VACANCIES OFFERED BY COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT*(Contd.)*

- (10) To prepare reports, memoranda and papers as required for C.F.T.C. and Secretariat meetings; representatives, international organizations and concerned with technical assistance.
- (11) To maintain close contact with Government institutions, international organizations and liaison with the Director to ensure that divisional evaluation systems are fully effective and informative.
- (12) To undertake any other tasks as assigned by the Managing Director.

Qualifications:

A degree in development economics or a related discipline is essential. Post-graduate qualifications would be an advantage. Understanding gained through work experience, of the problems of developing countries which technical assistance is designed to alleviate, is essential. The post requires extensive practical experience in all aspects of development assistance at both the national and international levels. The appointee should have a demonstrated competence in initiating, planning, and executing technical assistance programmes, in addition to having a thorough knowledge of the literature on the subject. He/she should be familiar with the programmes and the operational procedures of major bilateral and multilateral agencies also providing technical assistance to Commonwealth developing countries.

Position.—DEPUTY SECRETARY (Applied Science and Project Development) Commonwealth Science Council.

Division.—Office of the Science Adviser.

Classification.—D3.

General:

The Commonwealth Secretariat administers the Commonwealth Science Council (C.S.C.) which is an autonomous inter-governmental body promoting the enhancement of national scientific and technological capability through co-operative activities among its 49 member countries. These co-operative activities take various forms, so as to enable scientists and technologists to undertake research, training and information exchange to solve common developmental problems, and enlarge their own professional experience. Programmes have focused on applied sciences and technology transfer, but now focus on the strategic use of science for technology for development. Co-operative research and project networks occur in the following areas of natural resources, technologies and infrastructure:

- (a) Energy resources including both conventional and renewable technologies, and energy policy;
- (b) Renewable natural resources including the identification, collection, culture, conservation and management of plant, animal and microbial species especially perennial plants of food, fibre, oil or pharmaceutical value;
- (c) Water and mineral resources including exploration, mapping, extraction and utilization of water and mineral resources especially in small islands and semi-arid areas;
- (d) Environmental planning including assessment, planning and management, especially in relation to the conservation of fragile but genetically rich environments in the tropics and in the coastal zone;
- (e) Agriculture especially on the utilization of marginal species in marginal environments with respect to phosphate rock, nitrogen fixation, soil-water-plant relationships, ovary-transplantation techniques, post-harvest treatment and animal feeds;
- (f) Industrial support including services such as metrology and standardization, remote sensing, biotechnology, micro-electronics and materials science, especially in relation to natural resources;
- (g) Science management and organization including the roles of organizations and institutions, assessment and evaluation of scientific research and technological development, and dissemination of information on indicators for the better management of science and technology.

A fellowship scheme complements the co-operative programme, enhancing professional and technical excellence. The C.S.C. functions as a catalyst or broker in the co-operative programme: having identified broad areas of developmental concern, it consults and brings together relevant governmental, academic and professional institutions and experts to define a programme of work, identify members of a network to carry out the work and to identify sources of funds; once the work programme is underway, it provides supporting services such as information, expertise and administration, while also continuing its catalytic role; training workshops, study tours and fellowships are arranged as the programme advances; and links are then forged with other regional and international organizations or with nations outside the Commonwealth, so that the network evolves towards self-sustenance. In performing its catalytic functions, the C.S.C. has its own administrative budget but receives some programme finance for training elements from the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation. It has decided to develop "bankable" projects to raise the remaining programme finance for sustaining its project networks. This constitutes a novel approach for the C.S.C.

Functions:

The Deputy Secretary is responsible to the Science Adviser of the Commonwealth Secretariat and Secretary of the Commonwealth Science Council; and under his guidance is expected to assist him in the following activities in collaboration with other professional staff:

- (a) Managing a distinct number of programme activities in science and technology;
- (b) Formulating, implementing, monitoring and revising a financial strategy for the C.S.C. programme especially in terms of "bankable" projects to sustain project networks;
- (c) Defining and advising on opportunities and approaches for project development, implementation and financing;
- (d) Co-ordinating all approaches for programme and project finance;
- (e) Developing and managing a data base on programme and project funding (strategy, opportunities, approaches, follow-up);
- (f) Managing finance on a day-to-day basis;
- (g) Servicing the C.S.C. and the Division through meetings, briefs, appraisal of requests, identification of suitable expertise, etc;
- (h) Maintaining contacts with national and international organizations and institutions in science and technology.

Qualifications:

The Deputy Secretary should have good post-graduate qualifications in applied science or technology, judgement and creativity, and substantial practical experience in developing projects, in designing and implementing a financing programme, and in establishing relations with governmental and non-governmental organizations, corporations and foundations, and/or with philanthropic individuals. He/she should be fully conversant with conditions and requirements of scientific and technological infrastructure in both the advanced and the less advanced countries. He/she will be required to work closely with a team from different cultural backgrounds, and with senior officials in the Commonwealth countries at both governmental and non-governmental levels. A capacity and willingness to travel extensively are essential.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 67 OF 1985

Parties:

The Kenya Bakers and Confectioners Workers' Union
and
J. Lyons & Company (Kenya) Limited

Issue in dispute:

Dismissal of Markson Irungu

THE Kenya Bakers and Confectioners Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and J. Lyons and Company (K) Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 31st October, 15th November, 1985 and 27th January, 1986 and relied on their written and verbal submissions. The respondents also called Miss Charity Boit as a witness.

AWARD

3. The reference of this dispute by the Minister for Labour dated 6th June, 1985, was received by the court on 14th, June, 1985, together with the statutory certificates signed by him and the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant in this dispute, Markson Irungu, worked for the respondents from November, 1978 as a trainee in the quality control section and was subsequently confirmed in this position at a salary of KSh. 900 per month. He was later transferred to the position of assistant mixer grade III. In 1980, Mr. Irungu applied for company sponsorship to the Polytechnic to read food technology technician course. The respondent's managing director, supported the request provided that Mr. Kuster, the factory manager, would agree to release him to attend classes during working hours. It would appear that Mr. Irungu's problems started when he was elected shop steward in May 1983. This appointment was followed by the check-off authority sent to the respondents by the claimants' union on whose behalf the grievant had started to recruit members. According to Mr. Irungu, on the 4th May, 1983, he was asked by the respondents' personnel officer, Miss Boit, to attend a meeting in her office. On arrival, Mr. Irungu found:

Mr. Kuster.—Factory Manager.

Miss Boit.—Personnel Manager.

Shopsteward.—Ice-cream Factory.

Shopsteward.—Grocery Factory.

Branch Secretary.—Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers (KUCFAW).

The meeting started and discussion was centered on Mr. Irungu's role in recruiting membership for the bakers union, the claimants, as opposed to the existing union (KUCFAW). Mr. Irungu conceded that he had been actively recruiting members for the claimants. This assertion did not please the meeting, in particular, the factory manager, Mr. Kuster. When he refused to denounce his membership he was threatened with dismissal, and from this time onwards he was closely watched and accused of lateness and absenteeism from work. For this, he got warnings and cautionary memos. He ably defended himself both in writing and verbally against the accusations. Mr. Irungu's relationship with the respondents worsened steadily and resulted in his dismissal after a meeting held on 20th May, 1983, attended by the following:

Mr. Lindsell.—Managing Director.

Mr. Sewe.—Kenya Union of Commercial, Food and Allied Workers (KUCFAW) Branch Secretary.

Mr. Martin.—Chief Shopsteward.

Miss Boit.—Personnel Officer.

In this meeting, he was rebuked for having continued to influence workers to join the bakers union, and, in his reply he confirmed that those who have joined have done so without pressure from him. He further suggested that respondents could interview the workers and confirm for themselves whether or not they want to join the bakers union. He was then suspended and asked to leave the meeting until 24th May, 1983, at 3 p.m., when he could be told of the outcome of his suspension. Mr. Irungu reported as directed and was issued with the dismissal letter. The grounds for his dismissal were given as failure to turn up for work without lawful authority.

He reported the matter to the claimants who took up the matter on his behalf. They formally reported a trade dispute to the Minister for Labour and the ministry carried out a formal investigation and its findings established that Mr. Irungu had his short-comings but the management too were out to get rid of him as proved by the 11th May, 1983, incident when he was accused of having spoiled 132 loaves of bread when he was still out of work under suspension. The allegation by the union that his dismissal was due to his "union" membership could not be proved. The ministry finally found his dismissal wrongful and recommended that his dismissal be reduced to normal termination and he be paid all his terminal benefits plus two months' salary as compensation for loss of earnings.

The claimants arguments were that warnings issued by Mr. Kavulu to Mr. Irungu were subsequently quashed by the personnel officer as improper and being invalid. They further submitted that the issue of Mr. Irungu having spoiled 132 loaves of bread could not stand against him as he was at the time under suspension and was, therefore, not expected to be involved in bread making. The claimants could only conclude that he was being dismissed due to his refusal to denounce his union membership.

After careful evaluation of the evidence, the court is satisfied that Mr. Irungu's replies to the accusations levelled against him by the respondents were properly defended and his version of the alleged incidents to be nearer the truth. The court is particularly concerned with the accusation that he, Mr. Irungu, spoiled 132 loaves of bread on 11th May, 1983, when the respondents had in effect suspended him from duty and he could not, therefore, be in the factory. The evidence by the respondents that Mr. Irungu persistently came into the factory and actually engaged in bread production in defiance of the letter of suspension just can't be true. For, if he had behaved in this way he would have been summarily dismissed on grounds of gross insubordination. This, the respondents never did. The court is further satisfied that meetings held by the respondents which included the representative from the KUCFAW and the chief shopsteward of the respondents discussed mainly Mr. Irungu's activities on behalf of the claimants to be recognized by the respondents as confirmed by the respondents' circular letter of 6th May, 1983.

The court was not impressed with the evidence of the personnel officer as she was uncertain of the events that led to the dismissal. Even the letters of warnings issued were generally vague and could not be answered satisfactorily by her when questioned about them.

For instance, when dismissing Mr. Irungu, the respondents relied on clause 16 (f) instead of clause 16 (i) which was operative at the time. Going by this letter, the court is convinced that the respondents were not certain under which clause the grievant was dismissed. The court was surprised to find that the respondents had to put up with Mr. Irungu's alleged habitual lateness and absenteeism dating back to 1981 and retained his alleged "poor services" upto 1983 when they decided to dismiss him. The court finds this to be an unusual degree of leniency on the part of the respondents.

Although the respondents have made a vigorous attempt in this dispute to justify the dismissal of Mr. Irungu on grounds of lateness and absenteeism, the court finds that they have manifestly failed to convince the court that Mr. Irungu deserved a dismissal on the evidence adduced during the hearing.

The court has noted that Mr. Irungu had put in over four years of service with the respondents during which time he had been issued with two warning and cautionary letters some of which have been the subject of this dispute. However, the court, having weighed the evidence advanced by both parties, is convinced that Mr. Irungu was victimized due to his union activities on behalf of the claimants (who have since won recognition from the respondents) and is satisfied that this is a clear case which merits a reinstatement award to protect those workers who hold union office at their place of work against undue victimization.

Under the circumstances the court awards that Mr. Irungu should be reinstated with effect from the 15th February, 1986, and respondents are at liberty to deploy him in any similar position without any loss of seniority. The court further awards that he should be paid KSh. 12,000 by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that he has suffered.

Dated in Nairobi the 10th February, 1986.
