THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO 42 OF 1969

Parties

Kenya Electrical Trades Workers Union
and

New Electrical Stores Ltd

Issue in Dispute

Refusal to implement electrical contractors' group agreement on terms and conditions of service

1 The Kenya Electrical Trades Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and the New Electrical Stores Ltd shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents

2 The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 13th day of January 1970 and relied on their written and verbal submissions

AWARD

This dispute has been processed by the Ministry of Labour without any success despite attempts having been made over several months and the parties decided to refer the matter to the Industrial Court for adjudication on 24th September 1969

The facts that have been established during the hearing of this dispute are that the Claimants have entered into an agreement with the Electrical Contractors' Association (hereinafter referred to as the Association) in the matter of recognition and negotiating procedure. The Association and the Claimants have also an agreement regarding terms and conditions of employment for unionisable employees effective from 1st August 1968 for a minimum period of 24 months. The Court was informed that 20 electrical firms are members of this Association.

The Respondents along with 12 other firms whose employees are members of the Claimants are not in the Association and as such their terms and conditions of employment are not up to the same level as those of the Association. The Respondents stated that they paid their employees more than the minimum wages as laid down in the Legal Notice No 236 being the Regulation of Wages (Building and Construction Industry) Order 1969 dated 23rd October 1969.

In addition to the above firms, there are five other electrical contractors whose employees are represented by other unions and what is most surprising and of which the Claimants appeared to be unaware up to the time of the hearing of the dispute, is the fact that there are 71 electrical companies who are neither members of the Association nor are implementing their terms and conditions of employment. This information was conveyed to the Court by the Claimants' general secretary in a letter dated 17th January 1970.

The Claimants pointed out that they have given an undertaking to the Association that they would apply their agreement to the electrical contracting industry either through action by the Ministry of Labour under the Trade Disputes Act 1965 or through the Industrial Court, and in pursuance of fulfilling this undertaking they had approached seven electrical firms who were not in the Association. As a result three had decided to implement the agreement and the other four including the Respondents had resisted their demands very strongly.

The Claimants' main argument was that the electrical firms in the Association are in very serious competition with other electrical firms like the Respondents who paid lower rates of wages and inferior fringe benefits than the Association's negotiated agreement with the Claimants.

The Court appreciates this and wherever possible has stressed the need for organizing undertakings of similar nature negotiating with one union into a group or association so that negotiations could be carried on as broad a basis as possible in order to prevent any employee from undercutting thereby getting advantage over his competitors. In the present case, however, the electrical industry appears to be far from being organized, as a vast majority of electrical firms are not only not members of the Association but the Court is led to believe that employees of at least 71 firms are not even members of the Claimants.

The Respondents relied on this to a great extent in their submissions and pointed out that they had to compete with firms few of whom were members of the Association but the majority of whom were outside the Association. They stated that they could not subscribe to the policy of the Association as they were not members of it nor had they been consulted during negotiations. They would, however, be quite willing to enter into negotiations with the Claimants if all the electrical firms were brought together but until such time they could not implement the Association's terms and conditions of employment.

The Respondents further submitted that since they were established in 1938 they had trained many of their African employees who after acquiring the necessary skills left them and were now drawing handsome salaries. They warned that if their present rates of wages were increased as demanded by the Claimants they would be compelled to terminate the services of many of their employees and claimed that their employees had always been well paid and well treated even before the Claimants came into existence.

The Court has very carefully considered the various aspects of this dispute and the effect that its award is likely to have on the Claimants' negotiations with the Association in the middle of this year but unfortunately the Court cannot see its way to awarding that the Respondents should implement the Association's agreement because as is obvious the majority of electrical firms are not members of the Association. The Court accordingly rejects the Claimants' demand and directs that the Claimants should negotiate on terms and conditions of employment with the Respondents on an individual basis so that if the matter is not settled then the dispute could be referred to the Court on specific items in dispute. The Court would like to point out that during discussions leading up to the present dispute the Respondents had at one stage offered a wage increase of Sh 15 to Sh 20 per month but in view of the issue as it is framed at present the Court cannot make an award of a wage increase. It is up to the parties to embark on fresh negotiations.

The Court would like to state that the question of the application of the Wages Council Order vide L N 236 in respect of building and construction industry to these electrical firms is not very relevant to the present dispute. However, as a matter of general interest it should be noted that in the first schedule to the said Order under the heading "General Tradesmen", electricians are mentioned along with carpenters, joiners, etc., and various rates are specified for learner tradesmen, Grade I, II and III trade tested. The Respondents stated that they paid their workers more than the rates specified in the said schedule. The Court feels that the Claimants would be fully justified in view of the facts that came to light during the hearing of this dispute in approaching the Minister for Labour to consider the possibility of establishing a wages council for the electrical industry.

GAZETTE NOTICE No 627

THE TRADE MARKS ACT
(Cap 506)

NOTICE is hereby given that any person who has grounds of opposition to the registration of any of the trade marks advertised herein according to the classes may, within 60 days from the date of this Gazette, lodge notice of opposition on Form TM No 6 (in duplicate) together with a fee of Sh 50.

Notice is also hereby given that official objection will be taken under rule 21 (3) to all applications in which the specification claims all the goods included in any class unless the Registrar is satisfied that the claim is justified by the use of the mark which the applicant has made or intends to make if and when it is registered. Where an applicant considers that a claim in respect of all the goods included in a class can be justified it will save unnecessary delay in examining applications if a claim is filed simultaneously with the application, accompanied in appropriate cases by supporting documents.

The period for lodging notice of opposition may be extended by the Registrar as he thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct. Any request for such extension should be made to the Registrar so as to reach him before the expiry of the period allowed.

Formal opposition should not be lodged until after reasonable notice has been given by letter to the applicant for registration so as to afford him any opportunity of withdrawing his application before the expense of preparing the notice of opposition is incurred. Failure to give such notice will be taken into account in considering any application by an opponent for an order for costs if the opposition is uncontested by the applicant.

Where it is stated in the advertisement of the applicant that the mark upon its registration, is to be limited to certain colours, the colours are as far as possible indicated in the accompanying representations of the mark in the usual heraldic manner.

Representations of the marks advertised herein can be seen at the Trade Marks Registry, State Law Office, Nairobi.
