GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 3185

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE NO. 81 OF 1989

Parties:

Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers
and
General Motors (K) Limited

Issue in dispute:

Refusal by the employer to pay acting allowance to Joseph Otiti.

THE Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the General Motors (K) Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 27th March and 17th May, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 2nd June, 1989, and duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 18th October, 1989, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant was employed by the respondents on 13th September, 1977, as a tool room and machine shop operator grade 6. He was confirmed in this position after three months, and in July 1978 he was promoted to the position of auto-mechanic in the factory department. He remained in that position until June 1980 when he received another promotion to grade 7, but his job title was unchanged. However, in November 1985, his job title changed from auto-mechanic to senior auto-mechanic, but his grade was unchanged—that is grade 7. On 22nd November, 1985, he was promoted from the position of senior auto-mechanic to that of charge-hand, but within the same grade, and his salary rose from Sh. 2,495 to Sh. 2,800 per month.

The claimants told the court that on his promotion as aforesaid, the respondents transferred the grievant to the bus-shop section to act as a foreman in that section. He acted from 22nd November, 1985, to 3rd December, 1987. The grievant continued to act thereafter in that position and first reported to the production manager and later to the factory area manager. But by a letter dated 10th June, 1988, the respondents' personnel manager made it clear to the grievant, after some shopstwards had approached the respondents to pay him some acting allowance, that his position remained that of charge-hand, grade 7, reporting to the chassis-line foreman. The claimants felt that the letter was a cover up by the respondents in order to deny the grievant his acting allowance entitlement and an attempt to defeat the course of justice. The parties held several meetings at their own level in order to resolve the issue but no settlement was reached. Consequently, the claimants reported a formal trade dispute to the Minister for Labour; and, after failing reconciliation, the matter is now before the court for consideration. The claimants prayed the court to award the grievant the acting allowance.

The respondents prayed the court to reject the claimants' demand as baseless and unjustified.

On a very careful consideration of the parties' submissions and thorough scrutiny of the various documents in support thereof, the court notes that between September 1977 and November 1985, the grievant was promoted from tool room and machine shop operator to the position of charge hand, and in consequence was assigned various duties. He also received appropriate salary increments. These promotions, salary increments and changes of duties were accompanied by written advice. But when the grievant was transferred to the bus-shop section in November 1985, the respondents did not inform him in writing that his position remained unchanged. Under the circumstances, the grievant worked in the bus-shop section for a period of over two years under the assumption that he was acting as a foreman; but it came to light that this was not so when the shopstewards approached the respondents for payment of acting allowance to him.

Some people seem to think that the conditions of employment should be explained to the employee only when there is a dispute. This is the wrong time to do it. Generally people want to know how they are progressing so that when changes take place, they can satisfy themselves that such changes follow rational patterns. The average employee, for instance, wants to know how much money he is entitled to for doing a particular job, and he will be quite happy to have his area of authority clearly defined and to know to whom he is accountable. He is also interested in promotion prospects and other conditions that are associated with the job he is doing. Therefore it is an essential duty of management to ensure that all this is passed on to the employee for his information.

The court appreciates that promotion is of course the prerogative of the management, and is not subject to negotiation with the union. However, some unions do insist on a certain length of service by employees when considering them for promotion; and, while this might be taken into account when dealing with the lower paid jobs, it is certainly out of place when considering skilled and managerial jobs. It is efficiency and ability and not length of service, including acting appointments, or age, which should determine who should be promoted. But then procedures for promotion must be clearly spelt out.

In the present dispute the court feels that the respondents must be criticized for having allowed this most uncertain situation to develop. This clearly exhibits a lack of co-ordination between the respondents' personnel department and their various sections. Furthermore, the court finds that transferring the grievant and assigning him work for over two years without advising him of, or regularizing his, status is an undesirable labour practice, and the respondents should take steps to ensure that such a practice is not repeated because it can amount to an undue exploitation of a worker, which should not happen in such a reputable motor industry. Apart from this criticism of the respondents, and taking into account the procedure of promotions obtaining in their industry, and the grievant's letter of application dated 18th August, 1988, in which he requested for promotion from a charge-hand to production supervisor, the court holds that the grievant did not act as a foremen in the bus-shop section; and accordingly he is therefore not entitled to any acting allowance therefrom.

Having come to this conclusion, and after thoughtful attention to this matter, the court is convinced that certain facts have come to light in this case which, in its opinion, required the respondents to appraise the grievant's work at the bus-shop section; and because they shied away from this responsibility, the court feels that the grievant should be paid two months' salary on compassionate grounds, and the court so awards. The court further directs that the respondents should immediately place the grievant on a three months' probation for consideration as a foreman, during and after which his work performance would be appraised, and if he succeeds, then he should be taken into a foreman's position. The respondents' decision will of course be final and binding.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT CAUSE No. 20 OF 1990

Parties:

Bakery, Confectionery, Manufacturing and Allied Workers Union (K)
and
Aurora Baking Co. (1975) Ltd.

Issues in Dispute:

Retirement/gratuity.
Wages/increment.

THE Bakery, Confectionery, Manufacturing and Allied Workers Union (K) shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Aurora Baking Company (1975) Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 15th May, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 11th August, 1989, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 7th February, 1990, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The respondents employ a labour force of 30 employees and are situated in Kikomba area along New Pumwani Road about a mile from the city centre.

This dispute arose when the parties were negotiating for the renewal of their collective agreement which expired on 30th June, 1988.

The parties agreed on all the items except the two issues now before the court.

The claimants demanded introduction of gratuity at a rate of two months salary for each completed year of service based on the last month's salary on retirement.

The respondents rejected and still reject the claimants' demand for payment of retirement/gratuity benefits because they are not able to pay such additional benefits.

The claimants have demanded that the unionizable employees of the respondents be awarded a wage increase as appended below:

- 20 per cent 1st year.
- 18 per cent 2nd year.
- 18 per cent 3rd year.

The claimants were offered a general wage increase of 15.0 per cent for the three-year period of the collective agreement. Th Research and Planning Division report state that the maximum compensation ceiling to which the workers were entitled due to the rise in the cost of living between July 1985 to June 1988, on average is 14.0 per cent for three years or 4.7 per cent per year. The workers are further entitled to compensation for productivity increase for the period under review which is 3.7 per cent per capita increases. In addition, they are entitled to another 6.9 per cent for three years on their housing allowance.

After careful consideration of all the submissions, the court awards as follows on the two issues in dispute:

Retirement/Gratuity

The court awards that an employee who is retired shall receive in addition to his other terminal benefits a gratuity at the rate of 12 days pay for each completed year of service based on the rate of monthly pay of the employee at the time of retirement.

The court further rules that there will be no back-dating of this award and the employee's years of service to be taken into account for this award shall commence from the date of the court award.

Wages/Increment

The court awards the following wage increases:

- 7 per cent for first year.
- 8 per cent for second year.
- 9 per cent for third year.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 3187

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT CAUSE NO. 28 OF 1990

Parties:

Kenya Quarry and Mine Workers' Union
and

Kenya Calcium Products Ltd.

Issues in dispute:

House allowance.

Non-payment of overtime.

THE Kenya Quarry and Mine Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and the Kenya Calcium Products Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

The parties were heard in Nairobi on 30th May, 1990, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 2nd October, 1989, and duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 20th February, 1990, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The parties to this dispute entered into a recognition agreement on 1st November, 1976, and since then have concluded seven collective agreements between them.

The claimants told the court that the present dispute arose when the parties were negotiating for the renewal of their two years' collective agreement which expired on 31st May, 1985, and the respondents have to date continued to violate the two clauses in the parties' collective agreement. The parties met at their own level in order to effect a settlement but no agreement was reached; and, in consequence, the claimants reported a formal trade dispute to the Minister for Labour. The Minister for Labour appointed a conciliator to assist the parties reach an agreement; but the parties have failed in their endeavour and the matter is now before the court for consideration.

House Allowance:

Clause 9 of the parties' collective agreement on this issue states as follows:

"When housing accommodation is not provided by the company for any employee covered by this agreement, the company will pay to the employee a house allowance of Sh. . . . p.m. or 15 per cent of his wages, whichever is the greater in addition to the basic rate of wages."

The claimants submitted that the respondents have failed to pay house allowance to their 18 employees at the monthly rate of Sh. 130, Sh. 150 and Sh. 175 in respect of the three collective agreements for the periods 1st June, 1985, to 31st May, 1987, 1st June, 1987, to 31st May, 1989 and 1st June, 1989, to 31st May, 1991, respectively. But during the hearing it came to light that there were only 14 genuine employees under this claim.

Non-payment of Overtime:

This issue was hotly contested by the parties in their submissions, and it falls under clause 6 of the parties' collective agreement which reads:

"In respect of any time worked in excess of the normal hours of work per week specified in clause 5 above, employees shall be paid overtime at one and one-half times the basic hourly rate."

Overtime worked on a rest day and public holidays by employees specified in clause 5 (i) and (ii) shall be paid at twice the basic hourly rate."

The claimants told the court that their demand was in respect of the same periods and covered 79 employees. The claimants prayed the court to award the said employees their one-half times overtime the basic hourly rate for rest days and public holidays.

The respondents told the court that the parties were not in agreement with the interpretation of this clause. However, they admitted that there might have been some arithmetical errors on their part when calculating the individual entitlements of the employees. The respondents submitted that, once the principle was established and the claimants submitted specific and correct claims of the 79 employees, such mistakes would be rectified.

The court has carefully considered the submissions by the parties and awards as follows on each issue:

House Allowance:

Under this item, the claimants produced to the court a list of 18 employees who were alleged to have been denied house allowance by the respondents. But the respondents proved during the hearing that 14 out of 18 alleged employees in the list were genuine. They also proved that on diverse dates of their engagement each of the 14 employees was allocated a house, but they made their own arrangements to live elsewhere.

It is therefore evident that these employees were allocated company quarters; but they decided to vacate the premises on their own accord, and for this reason the claimants' demand on this issue is rejected.

Non-payment of Overtime:

The respondents have strongly resisted the claimants' demand that after the agreed normal hours per week, an employee who worked on rest days, for example, Sundays and public holidays should be paid double the hourly rate. In the respondents' view, an employee who was required to work on a rest day and a public holiday should be entitled to an extra hourly rate only because the other hourly rate was included in the agreed or guaranteed normal working hours per week, as stipulated under clause 5 of the parties' collective agreement whether the employee worked or not.

The normal working hours of any organization are those fixed by mutual agreement, or by collective agreement between an employer and a trade union; and the general practice among employers is the payment of salaries/wages to the employees covering the whole month, or part of the month, including a rest day or a public holiday, when this is observed. However, under most industry-collective agreements, where an employee works on a rest day, for example Sunday, or a public holiday, he will be entitled to overtime pay of double hourly rate for the period worked.

Having established the principle at stake as set out hereinabove, the court is satisfied that the claimants' demand has some merit, and therefore holds that any hours worked by the employees during rest days or public holidays shall constitute overtime and should be paid for at double rate.

The court notes that some names in the above list appear similar and for this reason the parties should scrutinize the same with a view to rectifying the mistakes, if any, after which the respondents should pay the affected employees their overtime entitlements in respect of the rest days and public holidays during which they worked for the period 1st June, 1987 to-date.

In case the parties encounter any difficulties in calculating the overtime rates, the court directs that the Labour Officer, Mombasa, or his representative, should assist them in working out the exact amounts due and owing to the employees in accordance with the court award.
