THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 29 OF 1981

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food & Allied Workers
and
Distilling and Bottling Group of F.K.E.

Issues in dispute:

1. Termination of employment.
2. Retirement by the employer.
3. House allowance.
4. Wages.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food & Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Distilling and Bottling Group shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 26th January, 1982, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 14th May, 1981, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 22nd May together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The hearing of this dispute was originally fixed for 23rd July, 1981, but was adjourned to 18th September by consent of the parties at their own request. On 6th August, however, they informed the Court that they had settled issues of house allowance and wages as they wanted them to be implemented without any delay. The Court accordingly asked them to draw up a collective agreement so that it could be registered expeditiously.

On the remaining two issues the parties requested that they be heard and a hearing date was fixed for 20th November, 1981, when it was again adjourned due to the Claimants' representative being sick. The dispute was eventually heard on 26th January, 1982.

1. Termination of employment

The current provision in the parties' collective agreement reads as follows:

"Employment may be terminated on any day of the month by a member of the group or the employee, as the case may be, by each giving to the other notice in writing."

In the case of the employee with less than five years or more he will be given two months notice or payment in lieu thereof.

An established employee whose employment is terminated under this clause shall be given leave pay in respect of all annual leave accrued for his benefit which has not been taken by him at the date of termination. If the employment is terminated by the employer (but not if the employee resigns) the employee shall also be given his full travelling allowance for that leave. If an employee resigns he will not be entitled to any gratuity."

During the current negotiations the parties have agreed to amend this clause to make provision that in the case of an employee having served ten years or more he will be entitled to three months' notice or payment in lieu thereof. The dispute before the Court is on the Claimants' demand for the deletion of the last sentence which reads "if an employee resigns he will not be entitled to any gratuity".

It would be appropriate at this stage to note that in the collective agreement clause 18 under the heading "retirement by the employer" under clause (c) (vi) and (vii) the following provisions exist:

(vi) The retired employee's gratuity shall be half month's salary for every completed year of service.

(vii) Where an employee concerned is a member of a provident or pension fund he or she will get the employer's contribution or gratuity whichever is the greater but not both."

In support of their demand that an employee who resigns should also be entitled to a gratuity as provided in the parties' collective agreement the Claimants argued that as matters stand at present an incompetent worker whose services were terminated by the Respondents on grounds of inefficiency would be entitled to gratuity but if an employee who has served them most faithfully and efficiently for over 20 years decides to resign for some reason or the other then he would forfeit this important benefit. They maintained that this was most unfair. They also pointed out that as there is no qualifying period for gratuity an employee whose services are terminated by the Respondents would be entitled to gratuity even if he has worked for only one year and this seemed most illogical and unreasonable.

The Claimants demand that Court should award that an employee who resigns from the service of the Respondents having completed not less than five years of service shall be given gratuity in accordance with the relevant clause in the collective agreement.

The Respondents strongly opposed this demand and stated that the gratuity benefit was introduced in 1976 and was applicable to employees who retired at the age of 55 or whose services may be terminated by the employer for no justifiable reason by appropriate notice provided for in the collective agreement. It was agreed at the time that no gratuity shall be payable to employees whose services are terminated for cause or who resign. They stressed that the gratuity benefit was established under the retirement clause because it was a retirement benefit payable at the age of 55 and it was never the intention of either party to introduce a clause which would act as an incentive to employees to resign and take away as much money as if they were declared redundant only to fail to find jobs elsewhere in the economy. They asked the Court to reject the Claimants' demand.

The Court notes that the Kenya Breweries collective agreement with the Claimants provides that an employee may opt to retire from the service of the company after he has completed at least four years' continuous service and he shall be entitled to payment in accordance with the provisions of clause 26 (retirement from the company) on giving the necessary notices stipulated therein.

The Court must, however, accept that generally there is no provision in the collective agreement for employees who resign to be given a gratuity.

In the present case the current gratuity provision was introduced when the National Social Security Fund (N.S.S.F.) had already come into existence since 1966. This gratuity payment would link up with the private provident fund schemes which are being operated by at least four of the five members of the Respondents' group. This means that the employers are making contributions to the N.S.S.F. and also to the private provident funds and have also undertaken to pay gratuity if the gratuity payment due to the workers is more than their contribution to the private provident fund scheme.

The Court must say that both sides have raised very interesting submissions in this dispute with the Respondents also relying on a decision given by the Industrial Court of Trinidad and Tobago. The Court, however, has to take into consideration what would be equitable here in Kenya.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court awards that an employee who has attained the age of 50 years and has rendered 15 years' continuous service shall be entitled to the gratuity payment as provided for in the parties' collective agreement even if he himself resigns.

2. Retirement by the employer

As stated earlier the gratuity which is worked out at the rate of half month's salary for every completed year of service is linked with the employer's contribution to the private provident fund schemes with the worker getting the higher of the two benefits. The Claimants' demand is that the workers should get both the gratuity and the employer's contribution to the private provident fund scheme because the latter was the worker's right under the rules of the provident fund and it could therefore not be tampered with. They insisted that it was the worker's legal right and if the employers had agreed to pay the workers gratuity also then that should be in addition to the worker's legal right.

The Respondents emphasized that their members had voluntarily established private provident fund schemes to which they were contributing in addition to the employer's contribution to the N.S.S.F. for the benefit of the same employee. They added that the gratuity aspect had been provided for in the parties' agreement to cover employees not covered by either a pension or a provident fund scheme and is also designed to cater for cases where the employer's contribution to established pension or provident funds may be less favourable than the gratuity payment.

The Court is satisfied that the current arrangement as it exists is fairly satisfactory because in practice what it amounts to is that the worker gets his full dues under the private provident fund scheme and if the gratuity scheme would give him a higher benefit than the employer's contribution to the provident fund then the worker would get the balance also. So there appears to be really no infringement of any legal right of the worker because his provident fund benefits are given to him in full. It is only the gratuity payment that is adjusted either way depending on the amount of the employer's contribution to the provident fund. If the contributions are more than the gratuity then no gratuity is payable but if they are less than the balance of the gratuity due is paid.

The Court has considered this matter carefully and rejects the Claimants' demand.

Given in Nairobi the 9th March, 1982.

The Respondents at the time of the mention indicated that they would be calling about four witnesses including the Minister for Labour or his top representatives and hon. Juma Boy, the Secretary-General of COTU (K).

On 20th November, 1981, the Minister for Labour wrote to the Judge of the Court that the hearing of this dispute be deferred until such time as "our tripartite meetings on the revised Industrial Relations Charter are completed. Our main reason for this request is to avoid a possible interpretation of a ruling on the dispute as interference with our negotiations".

The Claimants submitted their memo on 11th January, 1982, but the Respondents wrote to the Court saying that in view of the Minister's letter to the Court they would not submit their memorandum until the Minister moves the Court again. They stated in their letter that the Minister had informed them as follows in writing:

"After very careful reconsideration of this matter (recognition dispute between the Kenya Bus Services Ltd. and the Kenya Management Staff Association Cause No. 58/81) in general and the fact that a decision in favour of the Association might be construed to prejudice further negotiations on the revised Industrial Relations Charter, I have asked the Judge of the Industrial Court to defer hearing of this case until such time as our negotiations are completed."

The Court called the parties to a further mention on 27th January, 1982, and invited their comments on the Minister's request asking for the dispute to be deferred until the tripartite meetings on the revised Industrial Relations Charter are completed. During this mention the Respondents stated that they supported the Minister's position and asked the Court to defer the hearing of the dispute in accordance with the Minister's wishes because the dispute had in the first place been referred to the Court by the Minister himself. They stated that the Minister's request stops the Court from hearing this dispute and pointed out that under section 14 (9) (c) the Court shall not take cognizance of any trade dispute or deal with any matter connected therewith while such dispute or matter is in the process of being settled, investigated or otherwise determined by means of any other proceedings under the provisions of this Act or of any other written law.

The Claimants made a scathing attack on the Federation of Kenya Employers for having influenced the Minister in taking what they called the most unusual step in requesting the Court to defer the hearing. They submitted that this was tantamount to influencing the Court in its work and the Court being completely impartial should reject any such approaches. The Claimants proceeded to refer to the correspondence that they had exchanged with the Minister in connection with this dispute before he decided to use his powers under section 8 in forwarding the dispute to the Court for adjudication. They stated that there was a conspiracy against their association with a view to destroying them. Finally they accused the Federation of Kenya Employers of misleading the Minister who was also being used as a scapegoat by them. They asked the Court to reject the Minister's letter because no one has a right to direct the Court in any manner and requested the Court to proceed with the hearing.

In reply the Respondents stated that this matter had previously been before the High Court under Miscellaneous Cause No. 275/77 and the ruling in brief was that an employer cannot be forced to recognize a trade union. They further pointed out that in Kenya industrial relations were based on tripartism which recognized that in any industry there are managers and workers and the managers cannot be divided against each other as this would result in a conflict of interest. They posed the question that if this was allowed who was going to run any given industry. They warned that the Industrial Relations Charter which was a social contract had to be upheld as any attempt to destroy it would have chaotic consequences for the society at large.

The Respondents explained that the tripartite meetings to finalize Industrial Relations Charter had been delayed by COTU elections and that COTU had also to set up an executive board which had now been done. For these reasons they asked the Court to abide by the Minister's letter and defer the hearing.

The Court has carefully considered the extremely important points which both the parties have raised in connection with the Minister's request to the Court to defer the hearing of this dispute for the reasons as stated hereinabove. The Respondents are represented by the Executive Director of the Federation of Kenya Employers and the Claimants by their General Secretary.

At the outset the Court would like to make it clear in no uncertain terms that the Court has never and will not in future accept any interference of any nature from any quarters in the discharge of its duties as required under the Trade Disputes Act. Having said that the Court has to decide whether the Minister's letter asking it to defer the hearing of this dispute constitutes any such interference. It should be noted that the dispute has been referred to the Court not by the parties themselves through the Notification of Dispute Form "A" but by the Minister himself using his powers under section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act. If the Minister had not used his powers the Claimants could not have compelled the Respondents to appear before the Industrial Court.

The Claimants are a properly constituted and registered trade union operating in accordance with the relevant legislation in Kenya. There is no doubt that in pursuance of its objectives it has recruited certain employees of the Respondents into their membership and are seeking recognition from the Respondents to be able to represent their interest. They are quite entitled to do so since they are a registered trade union. On the other hand the Respondents represented by the Federation of Kenya Employers have raised a point which is fundamental to the very existence of the industrial relations system in Kenya which is that here we have industrial trade unions as opposed to craft trade unions. It is common knowledge that this subject matter is under consideration while the Industrial Relations Charter is being finalized.

Considering all aspects of this matter and particularly the fact that the Minister is asking the Court only to defer the hearing the Court finds that the Minister is well within his powers to take any reasonable steps which to him may appear appropriate and expedient to strengthen and streamline the industrial relations system in the country. The Court also is not inclined to prevent a trade union which has been duly registered in accordance with the laws of the land from discharging its obligations to its members.

The Court notes that the Minister has not specified any particular period during which the hearing should be deferred and whereas the Court appreciates the Minister's feelings in this matter and accords it due respect in view of the important points which are at stake and which are bound to arise in this dispute the Court has decided to defer the hearing of this dispute only for a reasonable period and not indefinitely. The Court feels that a reasonable period would be three months from the date of this ruling. The Court accordingly orders the parties to attend a mention before the Court on 14th May, 1982, when the Respondents will be given a date before which to submit their replying memo and when the hearing of the dispute will also be fixed.

Dated the 11th March, 1982.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 734

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT CAUSE NO. 62 OF 1981

Parties:

Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers
and
Austin and Partners Ltd.

Issue in dispute:

Recognition.

1. The Amalgamated Union of Kenya Metal Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Austin and Partners Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 8th February, 1982, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 3rd July, 1981, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on 8th December, 1981, together with the statutory certificate by the Labour Commissioner.

The Claimants are seeking recognition from the Respondents on the ground that the Respondents' activities fall within the Claimants' constitution. Rule 2 (a) of their constitution reads as follows:

"2 (a) The union shall consist of workers in metal industry with all its branches and including in particular the following workers' group:

- (i) Motor trade group.
- (ii) Electrical trades group.
- (iii) Tyre manufacture and retreading group.
- (iv) Battery manufacturing group.
- (v) Allied industries to the metal trade."

Way back in 1977 the Claimants recruited into their membership 25 of the Respondents' employees out of a total of about 30 whereupon, they approached the Respondents on 28th September, 1978, for recognition but it appears that the Respondents did not give any positive response to the Claimants' request of discussing this matter with a view to recognizing them. The matter dragged on until 8th January, 1979, when the Claimants were forced to report a trade dispute on the issue of recognition to the Minister for Labour. The matter remained with the Ministry with a view to conciliating in the dispute but on 22nd August, 1979, the Respondents informed the conciliator that they were unable to recognize the Claimants because their activities were not substantially concerned with electrical business. They gave the following breakdown of their activities:

1. Electrical installation .. .	10%
2. Mechanical engineering—
(a) Refrigeration .. .	40%
(b) Air conditioning .. .	40%
(c) Plumbing .. .	5%
3. Masonry, carpentry and painting .. .	85% 5%

The Respondents also referred to other organizations with similar activities as their own and pointed out that those employees were represented by the Kenya Engineering Workers' Union.

The Claimants did not accept the grounds put forward by the Respondents for not recognizing them and strongly maintained that as they catered for the following trades the Respondents should recognize them:

- 1. Electrical Contractors Group.
- 2. Electronics and Refrigeration Groups.
- 3. Air Conditioning Group.
- 4. Mechanical Engineering Groups."

The dispute then appears to lay dormant until April 1980, when the Claimants forwarded a list of the employees who were their members and also showing the names of the workers who had been dismissed and those who were not their members to the Permanent Secretary. The Permanent Secretary, however, wanted the Claimants to prove that certain employees were their members and suggested that the list used for check-offs should serve this purpose. The Claimants forwarded a copy of the check-off form signed by 25 of the 40 employees working for the Respondents.

On 15th April, 1981, the Permanent Secretary wrote a letter to the Respondents containing the following three paragraphs:

"An inspection was carried out by our Mombasa office on 7th October, 1980, and it was established that most of the employees were members of the union. The union did on 2nd December, 1980, obtain the names of those who are union members and I have signatures of 24 employees who have acknowledged that they are union members. Two of them were on safari and one on leave.

I am informed by the union that you have 33 employees and these seem to confirm with the figures given by our labour officer in Mombasa which show; you have 33 male employees and one female employee and these are in addition to six Asian employees.

This being the case I am satisfied that the union has a majority of your employees as members of the Union. I therefore request you to sign a recognition agreement with the union within 21 days from the date of this letter. If at the end of 21 days you will still be reluctant to sign a recognition agreement then the Minister will be free to invoke the provisions of section 5 (2) of the Trade Disputes Act."

There, however, appears to be no evidence to show that the Minister used his powers under the relevant section of the Trade Disputes Act ordering the Respondents to recognize the Claimants. Instead the parties signed the Notification of Dispute Form "A" to the Industrial Court.

The crucial point to determine in this dispute is if the Respondents are engaged in activities that are consistent with the Claimants' constitution as a trade union as far as membership of the workers is concerned. In the Regulation of Wages (Electrical Constructing Industry) Order 1974, it is provided that the order shall apply to all persons employed in any undertaking which consists in the carrying on of one more of the following activities, i.e.:

"(a) Construction, installation, assembling, maintenance, or repair of electrical and electronic systems and equipment.

(b) Electrical rewinder, auto-electrician and motor electric rewinder."

In the same order the wage rates for refrigeration mechanics are also specified. The Claimants also relied on a little booklet issued by the Directorate of Industrial Training, Ministry of Labour, in which under Group C electrical and electronic trades the following are specified:

"Electrician (general), domestic electronic mechanic, refrigeration and air-conditioning mechanic (general), domestic appliance mechanic, power plant mechanic, armature winder, electrical fitter, wireman and linesman."

The Court has carefully considered the Respondents' submission that the Claimants are not the proper trade union which should be recognized by them because the Respondents' main activity is not electrical work and that the only trade union whose sphere of activity may cover them is the Kenya Engineering Workers' Union whose constitution in article 3 (a) states:

"The union is open to all workers employed in general engineering and manufacturing industries other than those employed in motor engineering, electrical engineering and civil engineering."

The Court notes that the Engineering Union has shown no interest in either recruiting the Respondents' employees into their membership or approaching them for recognition. The Respondents stated that they were remunerating their employees in accordance with the general order.

The Court is satisfied that at least 50 per cent of the Respondents' activities, i.e. electrical installations 10 per cent and refrigeration 40 per cent, falls within the Claimants' constitution and this coupled with the fact that the claimants recruited at least more than half of the Respondents' employees and have clamoured for recognition since 1978 and no other trade union having shown any interest in representing the interests of the Respondents' employees, the Court finds that the Claimants are entitled to be recognized by the Respondents and the Court so awards. The Court directs that the parties should sign a formal recognition agreement within 14 days of the date of this award.
